Stopgap Aid Passage Seen In House by Tomorrow

Action Will Clear Way for Message On Long-Range Marshall Plan

House approval of stopgap aid to Europe is expected today or tomorrow, in time to clear the way for President Truman's message on the long-range Marshall Plan.

Reports were that the Administration would seek 7½ billion dollars as a first installment in the four-year, 15-20-billion-dollar program to assist 16 western European nations to regain their economic feet. Receipt of Mr. Truman's message outlining the program was expected Wednesday or Thursday.

Whatever its provisions and whatever its cost, it was headed for a bitter partisan wrangle which has been put aside to meet the emergency posed by shortages of food and fuel in Europe this winter.

Delaying Move Likely

In the Senate, it appeared likely a Republican move would develop to put off actual appropriation of funds for the long-range plan until the middle of next year. Senator Taft (R., Ohio), chairman of the Republican steering committee, said he had revised "downward" his thinking on long-range foreign spending.

In the House a bipartisan move was shaping up to attempt to restore the stopgap aid bill to the full 597 million dollars asked by the Administration. The Senate voted the full amount, but the House Foreign Affairs Committee added 60 million for aid to China and then cut the total to 590 million. At any rate, a flood of amendments was expected to reach the floor today, designed both to increase the total and to reduce it as low as 300 million.

Representative Jarman (D., Ala.) said he and Representative Merrow (R., N. H.) were attempting to whip up a bipartisan move to figure out the best way of getting 597 million for France, Italy and Austria while allowing 60 million for China as well. He added that if it appeared such an amendment had no chance of adoption, he thought the best strategy would be to hold it back and attempt to restore the amount in Senate-House conferences.

May Limit Wheat Exports

On the parallel question of holding down domestic prices in the face of heavy exports, influential Republicans were lining up behind a proposed limit on wheat exports plus an enforced carryover of 125 to 250 million bushels annually. They hoped such a plan would serve to stabilize food prices without the necessity for rationing or price controls.

On the other hand, Senator Flanders (R., Vt.) said yesterday enactment of meat rationing legislation was essential if another

U. S. Prints New Currency for Use in Germany, Korea

By The Associated Press

The United States Treasury has printed new currency for occupied Germany and Korea to be issued in the event of continued failure to reach agreement with Soviet Russia on a peace settlement.

Responsible Government officials confirmed the action yesterday after keeping it a top secret for weeks because of the Big Four Foreign Ministers conference at London.

(Drew Pearson, columnist and news commentator, said in a broadcast last night three carloads of new currency for Germany had been actually shipped from Washington to Brooklyn under close guard.)

The move forecast revaluation of both the German mark and the Korean won. A ranking official in the occupation administration said a prime purpose was to cope with inflationary trends.

Incompetence Charged

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

Administration leaders may try a new approach this week to remedy their admittedly ineffective presentation to Congress of Mr. Truman's anti-inflation program.

The method will be the submission of concrete legislative proposals to carry out the 10-point plan recommended by the President. Bills have been drafted in various executive departments on all but one point, it was learned yesterday.

Some or all may be delivered to the appropriate congressional committees this week, it was indicated.

If this tack is followed, it will be in recognition of the fact that so far, the Administration has failed to make a satisfactory explanation of the need for the inflation control program or to spell out the machinery to carry it out.

Testimony Unconvincing

High officials reluctantly but honestly admit that the program has bogged down on Capitol Hill. Furthermore, they agree that a major fault has been the unconvincing testimony of Cabinet heads and their chief lieutenants.

Observers, in and out of the Government, are almost unanimous in feeling that the testimony since November 17, when the plan was proposed by the President, has been apathetic, in part incompetent, and too largely uninformed and uninformative.

Principally, Cabinet officers have signally failed to be precise about what techniques they propose to use to implement Mr. Truman's 10 points. And none has been able to answer the most important and persistent questions asked by Republican heads of the various Senate and House committees:

"What standards can be set to guide the exercise of the authority you want? What concrete limitations do you propose in order to guarantee that you will not impose controls indiscriminately over the entire economy?"

Failure of Administration witnesses to come close to answering this type of question has let the

Truman Has Quiet Day In Florida

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Key West, Fla., Dec. 7.—President Truman, nearing the end of his Florida vacation, attended church services at the United States Submarine Base here today.

He later walked to the beach to swim and loaf in the sun.

Mr. Truman and members of his party are scheduled to take off in the Sacred Cow at 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning, and should arrive in Washington about 3 p. m.

This was the sixth anniversary of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, which plunged the United States into history's greatest war, but there was little talk about it in Key West.

The Baptist chaplain who preached the sermon at today's service in the white, frame chapel, Lieut. W. J. Davis of Brunswick, Ga., made no mention of Pearl Harbor. He said afterward that he had not thought of it.

Lieut. Davis asked President Truman and about 40 others who made up the congregation to pray for those around the world who are less fortunate. He also praised those men and women who had triumphed over handicaps.

The program for the services carried a poem called "Fortitude,"

Colored Honey In Six Flavors Bee-chievement

Corning, Calif., Dec. 7 (U.P.).—E. C. Close, a beekeeper, announced today he has applied for a patent on a process to produce honey in six colors and flavors.

He said his bees turn out honey in strawberry, maple, chocolate, lemon, pineapple and mint flavors, each of them appropriately colored.

He keeps his bees in electrically heated glass hives, the temperature controlled by a thermostat. The flavored syrup is in a glass container, from which it trickles into a trough for the bees.

Along with the syrup, the bees are fed pollen in a "special mix," which Close says is the real secret of the colored honey.

Food coloring is added to the syrup to get the right colors for the flavors of strawberry, mint, lemon and pineapple. The chocolate and maple flavors need no coloring.

Hartley Eyes Strike Threat At Oak Ridge

Labor Committee Head Orders Probe By 3 Colleagues

By the United Press

Chairman Fred A. Hartley, jr., (R., N. J.) of the House Labor Committee said yesterday he has appointed a three-man subcommittee to investigate a threatened strike at the Oak Ridge, Tenn., atomic energy plant.

Hartley, coauthor of the Taft-Hartley Labor Act, said the group would "look into" all phases of the dispute between the United Gas, Coke and Chemical Workers of America (CIO) and the Carbide and Carbon Chemicals Corp., which operates the uranium separation plant for the Atomic Energy Commission.

He expected a report from the subcommittee this week which will "lay before the full committee all facts surrounding the dispute." He said he would "rather not make public the names of the subcommittee members" pending their report.

Hartley raised the possibility the threatened work stoppage might constitute a strike against the national welfare.

If so, he pointed out, President Truman would be called upon to invoke the Taft-Hartley law's emergency procedures for dealing with such strikes.

This would involve appointment of a special board to make a report on the situation and the obtaining of a Federal injunction against a strike or walkout pending mediation of the dispute. Such an injunction would force postponement of a walkout for 80 days.

Hartley said he was going to introduce additional labor legislation in January and might include provisions against strikes such as the one threatened at Oak Ridge, if the facts warrant.

Clyde Mills of the United States Mediation and Conciliation Service is meeting with union and company representatives in an effort to settle the dispute before the strike

Cigarettes for Old Masters

$500,000 in Stolen Paintings Believed in Homes of Ex-GIs

Frankfurt, Dec. 6. (Delayed)—(U.P.) A truckload of paintings by old and modern masters valued at $500,000 was spirited from a locked iron bunker two years ago and today may be hanging in the homes of ex-GIs who purchased them with cigarettes from German thieves.

Art authorities said not one of the 114 paintings stolen from an air raid bunker in Bad Wildungen in 1945 had been recovered.

The thieves slipped through bolted iron doors without leaving a scratch. They by-passed Rubens' "King David Playing the Harp" and a number of Rembrandts. Each worth several times any single missing item.

But in addition to the Bad Wildungen haul, authorities still are looking for 25 valuable paintings plundered at Amerbach, Bavaria, allegedly by American soldiers, and later at Buedingen, Hesse, by an American Army officer.

The catalogue of 139 missing paintings was printed a year ago and sent to art galleries and museums all over Europe and the United States. None has discovered any one of the items, which include Max Liebermann's "Courtyard of an Amsterdam Orphanage," a landscape by Corot. A still life by Cezanne, a Madonna by an unknown master done about 1350 and works of Matisse, Millet and Renoir.

The items taken at Amorbach and Buedigen obviously are in the United States today, American officials said. They believed the other 114 may have been marketed to Americans during the first disorganized year of occupation.

Army, Navy May Review Pensions

Recheck of 30,000 Officers for Actual Disability Asked by Personnel Board

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Reexamination of more than 30,000 Army and Navy officers now drawing disability pensions has been recommended by the Army-Navy Personnel Board, Defense Secretary Forrestal disclosed yesterday.

Forrestal revealed also that the board suggested that pensions awarded by the armed services for disability be "related to the percentage of actual disability" instead of on the "all-or-nothing" basis now prevailing. He pointed out that the Veterans Administration awards disability compensation on the percentage basis.

At the same time, Chairman Elston (R., Ohio) of a House Armed Services Subcommittee said it would start work today to determine of there had been any "abuses" of the disability retirement privilege. He pointed out that as high as 80 per cent of recent retirements of high-ranking Army and Navy officers were for physical disability.

Questionnaires to Go Out

Elston said questionnaires would be mailed to all officers retired for disability except those "obviously" disabled by wounds. The questionnaire, Elston explained, would seek to determine whether the retired officer was now employed, how much he earned from his employment and how recently he had undergone a physical examination.

Elston added that if an officer, retired for disability, "immediately took over a high-paying civilian job, the so-called disability apparently not interfering with his work, it would be good reason for us to examine."

Current concern over the status of officers retired for disability arose from the revelation before the Senate War Investigating Committee that Maj. Gen. Bennett E. Meyers, retired Air Force officer, received $500 a month in tax-free pensions. Meyers' pension was stopped by the Air Secretary after sensational testimony before the committee regarding his extracurricular activities during the war.

Periodical Tests Asked

Forrestal's disclosures were contained in a letter to President Truman which the Defense Secretary described as an "interim report" on steps taken "in the field of retirement for physical disability." He added that a list of all officers retired since VJ-Day for physical disability requested November 24 by Mr. Truman would be in the President's hands by December 15.

The personnel board, Forrestal told the President, also recommended that all persons drawing disability pensions receive periodic physical examinations.

Forrestal told Mr. Truman the personnel board's full report had been sent to the Secretaries of the Army, Navy and Air and, pending their comments, he felt it would be "premature" to transmit the report in detail.

Navy Experience Recalled

He recalled that shortly after VJ-Day a Retirement Advisory Board was created in the Navy Department, which he then headed, to "provide the Secretary of the Nvay with competent advice concerning retirements for physical disability." In January, 1947, he added, a check was made of 202 physical disability cases then

The Washington Post Poll

83% in D. C. Want to Learn Truth If They Have Cancer

Should a doctor tell a patient the facts when he has cancer, or should he conceal them?

Eighty-three per cent of Washingtonians would want to know the truth, if they had cancer, The Washington Post Poll finds.

Only 11 per cent would want the doctor to conceal the facts from them, and the remaining 9 per cent are undecided.

This desire to know their condition is not entirely based on ignorance of the disease, for more than one of every two persons in this area has known quite well someone who has had cancer. Within the last 12 months, 3 per cent of Washington families report that there have been cases diagnosed as cancer in their own households.

Is cancer always fatal? Twenty-seven per cent of Washingtonians believe it is, although doctors stress the fact that cases discovered early can be cured. The majority of local residents, 64 per cent, know that people sometimes recover from the disease. The remaining 9 per cent are not sure of the answer.

These findings of The Washington Post Poll are based on personal interviews with a representative cross-section of adults living in the District and nearby Maryland and Virginia.

Washingtonians were asked:

If you had cancer, would you rather be told by the doctor, or have it hidden from you?

Answers were divided as follows:

Prefer to be told	83%
Prefer not to be told	11
Undecided	6

No differences were found between women, different age, race, or educational groups. But people with friends or relatives who have had cancer are somewhat less likely to say they would want to be told.

Comments indicate that people would want to know so that they could take every possible step to effect a cure; that people feel doctors have no right to keep such important information from the patient; a few feel that they would make a special effort to enjoy themselves for the remaining time if they had an incurable disease.

Washingtonians were also asked:

Has anyone you have known quite well ever had cancer?

Replies were as follows:

Has known someone with cancer	All Groups	Race: White	Race: Negro
	54%	62%	26%
Has not known anyone with cancer	36	28	59

The striking difference on this question between members of different races cannot be entirely due to differences in the incidence of cancer. According to a report of the Public Health Service, approxi-

Arabs Await Chiefs' Ruling

Middle East Ominously Quiet As 7 Jews Are Slain in Palestine

By Joseph C. Goodwin

Jerusalem, Dec. 7 (A.P.).—Intermittent knife and gun clashes cost the lives of seven more Jews in Palestine tonight, but an ominous Sunday quiet hung over the rest of the Middle East while the Arab world awaited the decision of its chiefs whether to wage an all-out fight against partition of the Holy Land.

The Arab-Jewish strife raged through its eight consecutive night in Palestine and, in addition to the fatalities, two other Jews and Arabs were wounded during the disorders. An unofficial count showed that 80 persons have been killed in the past eight days.

As the leaders of the Arab League made plans tonight for convening their session in Cairo tomorrow to make a decision which may set a "D-Day" for a general Arab uprising against the United Nations' decision to partition Palestine, British sources here said their intelligence operatives believe the Moslem Brotherhood was responsible for violence against the Jews throughout the Arab world since the U. N. voted partition November 29.

The Brotherhood, born in Egypt two years ago as the brainchild of 1000-year-old Azhar University's faculty, virtual hierarchy of Islam, now has spread to a membership estimated at 300,000. According to some official estimates, there are 25,000 members in Palestine, 80,000 in Syria and Lebanon, and the remainder in Egypt.

Arab leaders here and elsewhere in the Middle East, however, discounted the British belief, saying the disorders were "spontaneous expressions of the whole Arab people."

Meanwhile, Arab leaders in Trans-Jordan telegraphed the Arab Higher Executive in Jerusalem that Bedouin raiders had ransacked two oil pipeline camps in an outbreak of anti-American terrorism.

Eight American employes of the Iraq Petroleum Co. and seven members of the Trans-Arabian pipeline crew were forced to flee from Trans-Jordan, leaving thousands of dollars worth of equipment behind.

A Higher Executive spokesman said the main raids were in the Mafrac area, north of Amman, Trans-Jordan's capital, and that it was believed the Americans were flown to Beirut, Syria, and Haifa in planes sent to rescue them. U. S. Consular officials in Jerusalem said they had made a full report to the State Department and were investigating further.

Arab youth organiations opened "enlistment offices" and the Arab secret radio urged them to go to Damascus for military training. The Jews said registration of men between 17 and 25 for "security

Zone Merger Plan Winning Over France

Firmer Support Seen Likely as Russians Try 'Squeeze Play'

By Wes Gallagher

London, Dec. 7 (A.P.).—Firmer French support of British-American policy on Germany appeared a strong possibility tonight as an apparent Soviet "squeeze play" at the expense of the three Western nations neared a showdown in the Council of Foreign Ministers.

John Foster Dulles, Republican adviser to Secretary Marshall, returned from a three-day conference with French political leaders, including General de Gaulle.

He described the results of his trip as "most satisfactory." Dulles said he did not expect to make a formal report to Marshall, but made it plain he would talk over the French views with the head of the American delegation.

Reliable informants said Dulles' main purpose in going to France was to ascertain whether future French governments — specifically any headed by De Gaulle — would support merger of the French zone with the Anglo-British zones of Germany in event of a breakdown in treaty negotiations here.

French Foreign Minister George Bidault has indicated here a willingness to enter into such a merger if such a breakdown occurs.

Dulles said he could not comment for publication on views French leaders expressed to him. He said he talked to De Gaulle for

Chevy Chase Man, Pledging Love, Kills Himself

Frederick Malcolm Offutt, 24, of 4406 Leland st., Chevy Chase, shot and killed himself early yesterday after leaving two notes, one pledging everlasting loce for a former Government girl here.

Police said Offutt described himself as a "failure" in one note to his family and the other to Miss Maggie Caven, now of Hollywood.

"You don't know why I'm doing this and you'll never know," said the note to Miss Caven. "I die loving you as always." A postscript added: "Hereafter, I'll be waiting for you always."

Offutt, a graduate of Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School, was unemployed. Friends said he had been ill for some time.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Jones Offutt; three brothers, Douglas L., William Vincent, and Robert Gordon, and a sister, Mrs. R. L. Roberts of Bethesda.

Reds Order Paris Subway, Bus Strike

Government Seizes 1000 for Sabotage; Express Derailed

Paris, Dec. 7 (A.P.). — All Paris subway and bus employes were called out on a 48-hour strike for higher wages tonight, a few hours after the government announced the arrest of nearly 1000 persons in a France-wide campaign against sabotage in strike-ridden industry and transportation.

The Communist-dominated General Confederation of Labor (CGT) voted the strike to begin at midnight, after the central strike committee, a group of CGT members which functions independently, rejected Premier Robert Schuman's offer of a cost-of-living money indemnity for workers.

The Paris subway normally opens at 6 a. m. and it was estimated that two million Parisians who depend on subways and buses would have to bicycle, use their automobiles or walk.

A few hours before the strike was called, the Interior Ministry announced the arrest of nearly 1000 persons in its sweeping drive against saboteurs. Security police have made the arrests over the past eight days, a ministry spokesman said, and about 500 persons were taken into custody Saturday and today.

"Some have been detained," the spokesman said, "others fined and a few jailed."

Express Train Derailed

Another train derailment believed to have been caused by sabotage occurred today, when the Lyon-Paris express left the rails near Vaise.

A section of track had been unbolted, causing an accident, an official report said, "without gravity. There are no casualties. Material damages are slight."

As a temporary indemnity against the rising prices of commodities, the government offered workers 1500 francs ($12.67) a month, and promised to consult labor unions and national economy organizations about establishing a general wage scale which would be satisfactory to all workers.

The subway strike will mark the third occasion within the past six days that the capital's vast network of underground railways will have suspended service temporarily.

The strike vote was taken in the face of a last-minute appeal from the government for the operators to remain on the job. Leaders demanded 25 per cent wage increases.

The committee said it offered the government a counter-proposal which included an automatic revi-

U. S. Gift to France

Friendship Vessel Departs With 8-Million-Pound Cargo

New York, Dec. 7 (U.P.).—A friendship vessel crammed with eight million pounds of food brought from all parts of the Nation on the Friendship Train, sailed for France today with America's Christmas present for the people of that country.

Flag decked, and with "Friendship Cargo, USA" lettered on its sides, the 10,000-ton freighter American Leader steamed from New York harbor, sounding its whistle as it passed the Statue of Liberty, symbol of France's friendship for the United States.

It was the first of four ships which will carry to France and Italy the tons of food contributed by school children, farmers, businessmen and entire communities as the Friendship Train rolled from Los Angeles to New York last month.

Destination was Le Havre, where the vessel is scheduled to arrive December 15, in time for distribution of the food throughout France before Christmas.

In the holds of the American Leader were 10,000 pounds of macaroni, given by the church women of Kemmerer, Wyo.; raisins from Fresno, Calif.; tons of flour from Kansas; corn from the Sioux Indian tribe at Grand Island, Nebr., and a ton of honey given by a man in Clinton, Iowa.

There was $73,000 in cash, which will be used to buy more food in France. And there were movies, taken along the route of the Friendship Train, showing communities turning out at railroad stations to make their donations. The movies will be shown in French schools.

Communists Lead 50,000 Partisans in Rome March

Viewed as Display Of Military Power; Threat Renewed For General Strike

Rome, Dec. 7 (U.P.).—An estimated 50,000 Communist-directed Partisans paraded through Rome today in an obvious show of military strength as the Executive Union Council renewed the threat of a general strike in the capital at midnight next Tuesday unless the government meets its demands.

The Partisans, celebrating the opening Saturday of the National Resistance Movement Congress, marched smartly from the Piazza del Esedra through the heart of Rome to the Piazza Venezia where a brief ceremony honored comrades who had died during the war.

Waving their brigade flags, they shouted to spectators "today we carry flags, tomorrow we carry arms" but the general atmosphere was subdued.

Christmas Bonus Demanded

The Executive Union Council with Christian Democrat officials abstaining, reiterated the demands of the Rome Chamber of Labor and said "the executive committee is ordered to keep all organizations mobilized and to intensify agitation as far as a general strike if these requests are not promptly accepted."

The chamber has demanded a special Christmas bonus for unemployed and an official inquest into the riot during a leftist demonstration Friday in which one Communist was killed and 20 others injured. Four policemen were hospitalized, two in critical condition, from injuries received fighting the demonstrators and 15 others were treated for minor hurts.

Labor bosses demanded that the cabinet meet by Wednesday to take measures to give work to unemployed, and appropriate 10 billion lire (17 million dollars) immediately for public works in the Rome area.

Demonstrations Planned

Protest demonstrations against Friday's riot in the Rome suburb of Primavalle were set for tomorrow with streetcars ordered to stop for 10 minutes in the afternoon and theaters prohibited from opening until 2:30 p. m. Since Monday is a religious holiday, however, the orders were not expected to affect normal activities.

The labor ultimatum was the main issue for new Communist and left-wing Socialist editorial attacks against the Catholic Christian Democrat Party of Premier Alcide de Gasperi. The Socialist newspaper organ Avanti raised the fear that De Gasperi's cabinet was considering an anti-strike ban, as in France, and claimed that a secret Interior of Ministry report to the cabinet last night included assurances that police would use firearms if necessary against demonstrating mobs.

Reds Lose Seats In Finnish Councils

Communist View

Norway Seen Under U. S. Thumb

Moscow, Dec. 7 (AP).—Trud, trade union organ, said today that Norway is being forced "by American pressure" to renounce her plans for the economic development of the nation.

Trud criticized Norway's governing Labor Party, which it said "could count on support of the Communist Party and other progressive groups" in any opposition to "American pressure."

The article claimed that Norway was told by the United States she must not develop her own steel industry as planned, that her shipbuilding program is being hindered by American "monopolies," and that her foreign trade has "been wrecked" by the same forces, "supported by their network of agents within Norway."

Trud asserted that Norway was forced to participate in the Marshall Plan against her "own will."

Social Democrats, Conservatives Gain In Cities, Country

Helsinki, Dec. 7 (AP).—Incomplete returns from Finnish municipal elections showed tonight the Communist-dominated Popular Democratic Party had suffered setbacks in both rural and urban areas.

The Popular Democrats, who emerged from the 1945 national elections as Finland's strongest party, lost council seats to the Conservative bloc in rural communities and to the Social Democrats in the cities.

Preliminary figures, from 312 of the 548 municipalities which held elections last week, showed the Conservative parties won 450 seats and lost 47; the Social Democrats won 252 and lost 47, and the Popular Democrats won 61 and lost 296.

Sixty-eight of Helsinki's 100 voting districts showed the Social Democrats won 16 seats in the city council, a gain of five over 1945; the Conservative Rally won 14 seats, the same number it held previously; the rightist Swedish People's Party won, 11, losing 1; the Progressive Party won 5, losing 1, and the Popular Democrats won 12, losing 3.

The incomplete popular vote for the 68 Helsinki districts: Social Democrats 28,453; Conservative Rally, 26,480; Swedish People's Party, 20,874; Progressives, 10,141; Popular Democrats, 22,711.

Sugar Sticks U. S. at Havana Trade Parley

Havana, Dec. 7 (AP).—The United States, prime mover in calling a foreign trade conference, is finding that sugar can leave an unpleasant taste.

The State Department originally bespoke an International Trade Organization that would work toward elimination of preferential trade treaties and export-import quotas.

Then, in view of the United States sugar quota law which rigidly apportions the sugar any producing country may send to the United States, the State Department had to ask that the ITO charter permit continuance of the United States-Cuban preferential treaties.

Today other nations use that example to demand any sort of exemption that favors them. Even Cuba is vocally unhappy about the sugar deal.

The United States delegation at the United Nations Conference on Trade and Employment has kept silent in the current debate over the right of Cuba and the United States to be exceptions to the general ban on preferential treaties. Its hands are tied by the law, passed and repassed by a Congress intent on fostering American sugar interests.

Arabs and Jews Clash in Germany Over Palestine

Frankfurt, Germany, Dec. 7 (U.P.).—A Jew was killed and one Arab and 13 Jews were injured in the south German city of Ulm today in disputes over the partition of Palestine, United States Army authorities announced.

The dead Jew and four of the injured were victims of a series of clashes of which no details were given.

An Arab received a serious knife wound and nine Jews were injured in a fight near the Ulm railroad station. The disorder broken up quickly by United States military and German police.

The wounded Arab was taken to a hospital at Ulm where later 40 to 50 Arabs from a Bavarian displaced persons camp visited him, army authorities said. Although their conduct was peaceful, 28 armed Jews arrived in a truck, apparently acting on a false rumor, to protect "Jews in the hospital."

Baghdad Papers Would Close All U. S. Institutions

Baghdad, Iraq, Dec. 7 (AP).—Baghdad newspapers have launched a campaign against American institutions.

Al-Nadha urged today that the government "close all American schools and institutions in Iraq and withdraw all Iraqi students from the United States."

The volunteer recruiting movement to oppose partition of Palestine is making headway, with newspapers estimating that 60,000 men and women have registered. They reported that hundreds of Jews had offered to fight alongside the Arabs against Zionism.

Senator Haj Raih Alatiyah opened the parliamentary campaign to aid Palestine Arabs by contributing one year of his personal salary. Other senators and representatives are following suit.

Jews and Arabs exchanged gunfire in the strife-torn area between Jewish Tel Aviv and Arab Jaffa. One Jew was killed and two others wounded. An Arab constable suffered serious gunfire wounds.

Three Jews—including one woman—were killed in Arab attacks on Jewish buses in Ramle and southern Palestine. A grenade attack on a Jewish bus in suburban Jerusalem injured six, including two Hadassah hospital surgeons.

A Jewish banana merchant was killed in the Hacarmel market and for the second day the body of a stabbed Jew was found near the Jaffa mosque.

Jewish informants said a small Arab mob from the old city of Jerusalem attacked Jewish homes on the slope of Mount Fiori, 100 yards from the headquarters of the British army in the King David Hotel. Arab security patrols surrounded the old city section where a grenade wrecked an Arab home last night and killed three inmates.

Scare Bombs Hurled

A bomb tossed in Kamara Square in Haifa injured four Arabs. Elsewhere in the port city one Arab and one Jew were stabbed. Scare bombs were hurled in the Arab market place and gunfire echoed in the eastern part of the city. A Jewish passenger and driver were wounded. Police guarded Jewis quitting the Arab section and Arabs leaving the Jewish section.

Jewish mobs set fire to Arab houses in Carmel st. in Tel Aviv and small fires broke out on Barnett st. in neighboring Jaffa.

Police said an Arab band discharging firearms broke into a customs house at Jenin an dtook property valued at $12,000.

Amid all this violence, Sir Alan Cunningham, the British High Commissioner, conferred with David Ben-Gurion and Hussein Khalidi, Jewish and Arab leaders.

Discussions centered on "matters concerning the withdrawal of the civil administration and British military from Palestine," an announcement said. The British are scheduled to go by August 1.

A Jewish agency spokesman at a news conference charged that the exiled mufti of Jerusalem, Haj Amin el Husseini, was inciting bloodshed in Palestine "in order to cause Jewish retaliation and larger disturbances, which in the long run might induce the United Nations to reconsider its Palestine decision."

He reiterated the agency contention that the ordinary Arab, organized Arab labor associations and Arab economic circles opposed any form of trouble.

The Jewish community prepared for tomorrow's celebration of Chanukah, or Feast of the Lights, marking the success of the fighting Maccabeans in driving the Romans from the temple in Jerusalem in 164 B. C. The Jews said in the future the holiday will also be observed as the "independence day" of the Jewish state.

Irgun Zvai Leumi, the extremist Jewish underground organization, announced it was prepared to destroy "Arab murderers" and set up "security cordons around vital Jewish towns and settlements."

Irgun said "we will also attack the British," claiming the British are against the U. N. decision on partition. Irgun said a Jew killed in the Tel Aviv-Jaffa border warfare today came from their ranks.

Fighters from Hagana, the Jewish defense army, fired three rounds above the graves of three of their members killed in two days of fighting in the border area.

The mother of one of the dead men, Jacob Shiff, speaking at the graveside, said "you, my only child, fell for Jewish Palestine, for the security of our little country. Your comrades will avenge your innocent blood and will rebuild our country."

Hagana claimed Shiff was killed by British policemen while commanding a Hagana post in the Tel Aviv Hatikvah quarter.

Congregations Open Festival

Prayers of thanks for the creation of the Jewish state in Palestine were offered last night as the Jewish Chanukah Festival began with traditional candlelighting ceremonies.

Chanukah, which continues eight days, commemorates the Maccabean victory over the Assyrians and the rededication of the Temple at Jerusalem in 165 B.C.

"The Chanukah tapers symbolize the eternal truth that spiritual light ultimately overcomes the darkness of wickedness and brutality," Rabbi Zemach Green said at Ohev Sholom Synagogue, 5th and I sts. nw. He added:

"The creation of a Jewish state in Palestine, as decided upon by the United Nations, is also a demonstration of the providence fulfilling the age-old dream of Israel for a great lighthouse in the Holy Land that will shed its light throughout the world and warm the hearts of Jews with a realization that justice prevailed at long last for the most suffering people on earth."

Six scholars of the Talmud Torah graduated at last night's services were Libby Levin, Leo Horowitz, Solomon Margolis, Monte Herman, Daniels Margolis and Julius Homer.

Pearl Harbor Rites Recall War's Start

Chiefs in Pacific Attend Ceremony In Open Air Chapel

Pearl Harbor, Dec. 7 (AP).—A little group of civilians and military men gathered today in the warmth and peace of this quiet Sunday to "Remember Pearl Harbor."

Less than 200 attended brief ceremonies in an open-air chapel looking out over this harbor which was under surprise attack by the Japanese on another Sunday exactly six years ago.

The top commanders of the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marines in the Pacific, a few territorial officials and civilians, filed to the chapel in the naval shipyard for the observance. There they heard Millard W. Rice of Washington, past National Commander of the Disabled War Veterans, speak of what he called inadequate government provisions for disabled veterans.

"As a matter of fact," Rice concluded, "without complete regimentation—which no true American wants—our Government alone cannot provide for them: Their varied problems can be solved only with the cooperation of our fellow citizens."

There was not much at hand to remind anyone that six years ago Pearl Harbor was clouded in smoke and ruddy with flames, that many men were dead and dying and that the United States Pacific Fleet was virtually destroyed.

Today the sunshine was clear and bright and a Sabbath quiet prevailed. There were fewer ships, fewer planes and fewer men here than six years ago.

France Grateful

Bonnet Says 'Thanks' for U. S. Food

Henri Bonnet, French Ambassador to the United States, delivered his country's bread and butter letter yesterday in appreciation of the "spontaneity and graciousness of the American people."

Food collected by the Friendship Train will be distributed to the needy in time for Christmas, Bonnet told the District Citizens' Food Conservation Committee.

For many children, he said, the traditional Christmas Eve meal, reveillon, or midnight repast, will be "something to celebrate," thanks to voluntary food rationing and the Friendship Train.

Wheat, Milk Are Critical

Wheat and milk are the two most critical food items in France today, he added. As a result, tuberculosis is "rampant."

The Ambassador pointed out that by the summer of 1946 France was well on its way to recovery, and "optimism was universal." But drought and frost wiped out most of the December, 1946, wheat crop, and farmers were forced to plant potatoes instead. However, that harvest, too, was a disappointment.

This year's winter wheat crop already is in the ground, he went on to say, but it will be March before any bushel estimates can be made.

Bonnet deprecated reports of American visitors claiming there were no "starving people" in France. His answer: "One cannot see malnutrition or feel pangs in the pit of the stomach which are evident only to the hungry man himself."

"Conditions are much worse in the cities than in the country," he continued. One may order a luncheon in a Paris restaurant for about 120 francs (one American dollar at prevailing exchange rates), but one will "walk away from the table feeling a bit hungry," Bonnet said.

"Before conditions can improve," Bonnet said, "economic security and stability must be restored to the country."

And that stability, he emphasized, is possible through cooperation between the respective recovery programs of the United States and France.

Non-Socialist Parties Lead German Vote

Frankfurt, Germany, Monday, Dec. 8 (AP).—Substantial returns from yesterday's local elections in the state of Wuerttemberg-Baden indicated today that two non-Socialist parties together had polled a popular majority again, and that the fourth-place Communists had failed to muster as much strength as last year.

The elections were held to fill 15,000 municipal council seats in 1469 cities and towns and 926 county council seats in 29 counties.

American Military Government observers said that, with returns still incomplete, the Christian Democratic Union (CDU) had 39 per cent of the vote, the Social Democratic Party 32 per cent, the Deutsches Volkes Partei (DVP—German People's Party) 19 per cent, and the Communists 16 per cent.

That would give the CDU and the DVP, known as "rightist," inasmuch as they do not advocate socialism, together 58 per cent of the vote.

Early returns had shown some Communist losses in particular localities.

sion of the wage scale based on the rise, or decline, of the cost of living and additionally an indemnity of from 1125 francs ($9.50) to 1500 francs ($12.67) a month for all workers.

The strike committee is a solid group of Communist members of the CGT. It functions independently of the Confederation.

The government-controlled French radio read to its listeners a complete text of the new laws making sabotage punishable by prison terms up to 10 years. The law defines sabotage as "any act that makes a machine or piece of machinery cease to function."

Two non-Communist organizations of subway employes voted against the strike, but they are minority groups.

Arrests Made in Subway

Several arrests were made in Paris subway terminals today. A prefecture spokesman said:

"One man had 18 "handles" in his satchel. A "handle" is used to cut off the power in a subway motor. He could have stopped nine trains."

Sabotage sent three railroad trains crashing from their tracks last week. In one wreck, 20 persons were killed.

The interior ministry spokesman refused to say whether any foreigners had been arrested, but a police report this morning stated 13 foreigners were caught performing acts of sabotage.

Albert Beugrel, secretary of a militant Communist body, was picked up and accused of carrying arms without a license. Thieves broke into a national arsenal in Tours and stole one carbine, three pistols and 500 rounds of ammunition.

round of wage and price increases was to be avoided.

Senator O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.) warned in a radio address that attempts by Republicans to play politics with inflation might well result in another depression. He called attention to GOP meetings "behind closed doors," and said:

"If these meetings are called to play politics with inflation, and to throw this inflationary program into the lap of the President, the presidential campaign of 1948 can easily become the means of bringing on another depression that can hit the Republicans as well as the Democrats."

Whisky Ban Urged

Senators Aiken (R., Vt.) and Kilgore (D., W. Va.) urged quick passage of their bill to give the President authority to ban use of grain by distillers, contending whisky supplies on hand were sufficient for "some time to come." They declared that prior to the voluntary distilling holiday in October, distillers used more than eight million bushels of grain.

Senator Fulbright (D., Ark.) said he would introduce legislation to end "the restrictive and discriminatory tax" on oleomargarine in an effort to take some of the burden off low-income families.

Senator O'Conor (D., Md.) demanded economies in Government and said the current "appalling" rate of Federal spending should be curtailed as a means both of fighting inflation and helping Europe. He asked in a radio address how moderation in prices could be expected when "the cost of Government today exceeds by more than 25 per cent the total national income just 15 years ago."

6 in Family of 9 Perish in 2d-Story Apartment Fire

Greenwich, Ohio, Dec. 7 (U.P.)—Six members of a family of nine were burned to death or suffocated today in a fire which trapped them in their walkup apartment as they slept.

Victims were Warnie Rice, 47; his wife, Estella, 43, and four of their seven children—Donol, 18; Martha, 15; Robert, 14, and Roy, 3.

Two of the three surviving sons, Everett, 25, and Dewey, 21, awoke to find the five-room apartment filled with smoke. They succeeded in getting their father and the other son down the back stairs from the apartment, but Rice died later. The rear staircase, the only exit, was soon enveloped in flames.

Colorful Rites At Groveton Hail Veterans

A 75-mm. cannon, a memorial to veterans of World War II from the Groveton, Va., area, was unveiled and dedicated at ceremonies at the Penn Daw Fire Department Hall yesterday.

The dedication ceremonies were sponsored by the Groveton Citizens Association, the Penn Daw Fire Department, and the local post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. Color guards from the Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard, as well as veterans' organizations, participated in the program.

Principal speaker was Maj. Gen. William R. Schmidt, former commander of the Seventy-sixth Infantry Division, who cited the need of a strong program for military preparedness.

He advocated a well-integrated central intelligence organization, a research program, stock-piling of essential materials, and a balanced armed force.

Universal military training, Schmidt said, is the surest and most democratic way of obtaining a balanced military force.

Other speakers included Maj. Gen. William M. Hoge, commanding officer of Fort Belvoir; Representative Olin E. Teague (D., Tex.), Col. Gordon R. Bliss, chairman of the Second Army Advisory Committee and Rear Admiral Frank E. Beatty, USN.

Music was furnished by the United States Army Band from Fort Belvoir.

some time shortly before leaving for London.

The so-called "squeeze play" was being engineered by Communist leaders in Germany, and the Soviet-dominated Socialist Unity Party, which is holding a "People's Congress" in Berlin.

The congress, echoing Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov's demands for a central German government, is asking to be heard in London on behalf of Germany. It is believed here Molotov will support the request to be heard.

The granting of visas for such a delegation would be up to the British government. If the visas are refused the Communist and Soviet-sponsored parties of eastern Germany could charge the west with attempting to stifle German pleas.

If the visas are granted the Conference of Foreign Ministers may be laid open to a new propaganda barrage from Molotov. British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin has criticized Molotov's remarks as being aimed at convincing the Germans Russia is their "only friend."

For two weeks the western ministers have tried unsuccessfully to halt Molotov's long tirades against the West and get down to discussion of basic facts.

Members of the western delegations have charged that Molotov's speeches were aimed at getting German support and not at healing Big Four breaches or producing German and Austrian treaties.

The Berlin Congress is looked upon as another step in the Soviet campaign to keep "selling" publicly their demand for a strong central German government and avoid specific discussion on basic differences in Germany.

Tomorrow's meeting may bring a showdown between East and West whether this campaign is to continue, particularly if Molotov should support the German demand to be heard.

Two weeks' meetings have produced nothing except to show hardening of the differences between East and West.

The only difference from the deadlocked Moscow meeting has been the shift in German policy by the French. At Moscow France rode a diplomatic fence between the East and West. In London French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault has sided consistently with the West and has been the sharpest of the Western Ministers in his exchanges with Molotov.

He has further indicated his willingness in the event of a breakdown of Big Four negotiations to merge the French zone of Germany with the British and American zones.

This represents a big turn-about in French policy in six months.

Marshal Tito Calls Slav Bloc Rumors False

Budapest, Hungary, Dec. 7 (AP).—Premier Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia, who arrived here yesterday, told Hungarian Premier Lajos Dinnyes that the conclusion of a treaty of mutual assistance between the two countries "proves that the rumors about the formation of a Slav bloc are untrue."

"We do not want to threaten anybody's freedom or independence," Tito said. "The Hungarians are not Slavs. Nevertheless, there is cooperation between these two democratic states."

The Yugoslav premier attended a state reception last night and today placed a wreath on the statue of Louis Kossuth, Hungary's national hero and champion of better understanding among the Danubian states.

Szabad Nep, leading Hungarian Communist newspaper, said:

"If the Americans succeed in creating a Fascist Greece, this would mean a permanent and advanced bridgehead on the body of our democratic states. Our democracies will mobilize their powers to support morally and materially the people of Greece."

Dimitrov's Cabinet Expected to Resign

Sofia, Bulgaria, Dec. 7 (AP).—Sofia newspapers said today Premier Georgi Dimitrov's cabinet probably would resign Tuesday.

Sofia newspapers also said that Col. Gen. Enver Hoxha, Premier of Albania, will visit Bulgaria soon to sign cultural and other agreements.

Nationalists Wrest Rail Route From Chinese Communists

Peiping, Dec. 7 (AP).—Progovernment reports today said Chinese Nationalist troops striking north from Paoting and south from Peiping had cleared the Communists from the entire 90-mile rail route between the two cities.

Heavily-damaged sections of trackage must be restored before traffic can be resumed, however. During the past two years of civil war, this railway has been alternately cut and cleared many times.

(Reports from Nanking gave no new details on a major battle which a government officer said two days ago had begun just north of the Yangtze River between government forces and the Communist army of Gen. Liu Po-Cheng.

(Latest accounts said only that the battle was in its "preliminary phases" and that government planes were scattering leaflets appealing to the Communists and the public to join the government side.)

In Shantung, government reinforcements were reported to have broken a two-day Communist assault on Laiyang, a recently-captured Red stronghold.

Reds See Dulles Putting Noose About French

Moscow, Dec. 7 (AP).—A cartoon today in the trade union newspaper Trud depicted John Foster Dulles in the form of a dove, carrying from Secretary of State Marshall to Gen. Charles de Gaulle a noose labeled:

"For the French people, made in the United States."

Dulles, Marshall's Republican adviser, has shunned Communists in his talks in Paris. He conferred there yesterday with General de Gaulle.

by David Stanley Smith, which said in part:

"Be strong: say not the days are evil—
Who's to blame?
And fold the hands and acquiesce —O shame.
Stand up, speak out, and bravely, in God's name.
Be strong, be strong."

After the services, President Truman congratulated Lieutenant Davis on his sermon. On his way out of the chapel, he stopped to talk to some children, and then walked to his temporary White House on the Naval Base.

The Chief Executive was notified by a newspaperman of the death of Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president emeritus of Columbia University. Press Secretary Charles G. Ross issued this statement:

"The President deeply regrets to hear of the death of such a distinguished American educator and citizen."

In his five days at Key West, Mr. Truman has sought to get as much rest and sunshine as possible. However, he has not been able to get away from his work entirely—he never is. On several occasions, it is understood, he has held round-table conferences with Fleet Adm. William D. Leahy, Counsel Clark Clifford, and other members of his party, and has discussed, among other things, his forthcoming message to Congress on the Marshall Plan.

5 Billion Individual Income Tax Slash Reported Objective of Campaign by GOP

By The Associated Press

Republicans were reported by a high-placed party member yesterday as ready to drive for a $5,300,000,000 or more individual income tax slash in 1948.

This is $1,300,000,000 above the four million dollars in two bills voted earlier this year.

The GOP spokesman said tax reduction probably would be tied to the Republican substitute for President Truman's anti-inflation program.

Chairman Knutson (R., Minn.) of the House Ways and Means Committee, who will introduce the new tax bill, probably next week, would not confirm or deny that plans are afoot to boost the tax-cut figure.

Knutson's Program

However, he did indicate his new bill would include these three major provisions:

1. A $100 increase in individual exemptions, from $500 to $600, that would sweep about six million small income taxpayers off the rolls completely, and provide some reduction for the remainder of the 48,500,000. This would cut revenues about two billion dollars.

2. General application of the community property principle whereby husbands and wives may divide the family income equally for tax reporting purposes, holding the income in lower brackets and saving on the over-all tax bill. This system now is effective in a dozen States by local law. Applied to all States, the revenue loss would amount to approximately 700 million dollars.

Additional Reductions

3. Percentage tax reductions, in addition. How and how much is uncertain. So is the revenue loss.

The two bills vetoed earlier this year employed the percentage cutting approach exclusively—30 per cent for the lowest bracket incomes, 15 or 20 for middle incomes, and 10.5 per cent for that part of any income over $302,000.

The G.O.P. tax-cutting program may set up one of the major party battles of the election year, as it comes to a showdown between the Republican controlled Congress and the White House, in January or February.

Filing of Anti-inflation Bills Set This Week After Hearings Fail to Convince

Republican opposition to the control program build a damning record against the plan, many observers believe.

Some of the President's lieutenants think the situation can be corrected by the submission of legislation in which the specific methods and safeguards, standards and limitations, are spelled out.

Legislation is almost ready for transmission to the Congress on every aspect of the program but the restraint of inflationary bank credit. Conflicting points of view on this matter between Treasury Secretary John W. Snyder and Federal Reserve Board Chairman Marriner S. Eccles have not been resolved.

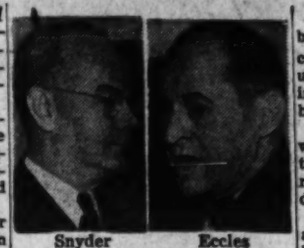
The bills will probably go to Congress piecemeal. But a proposal, originally made by the Budget Bureau, is still alive and may be considered by the President. This is that all the legislation be wrapped up in one omnibus anti-inflation bill.

Snyder's Poor Showing

The poor showing made by proponents of the program is evidenced by many examples:

Snyder, first Administration witness before any House group, appeared before the Banking and Currency Committee with only a perfunctory indorsement of major points of the plan, and spent the bulk of his time asking for a small increased appropriation to speed Federal bond sales.

There and on the other side of the Capitol, before the Senate Banking and Currency Committee and the Joint Economic Committee, he had opposed a recommendation of Eccles to set up a special reserve requirement to curb bank credit. He failed to propose an alternative plan, however, to carry out this phase of Mr. Truman's 10-point program.



Snyder Eccles
They Still Disagree

Whatever the merits of the controversy, the effect of the two men being at odds was devastating psychologically.

Harriman Ineffective

Secretary of Commerce Harriman, meanwhile, in appearances before several committees, was notably unsuccessful in giving any clear picture of how the controls would work.

Congressmen sought illustrations of methods and applications; those few which Harriman provided were so slight as to be unconvincing. He failed also to describe the limits he proposed to be written into the law to restrict powers which looked to be carte blanche.

Secretary of Agriculture Anderson, also appearing several times before at least four committees, gave an unmistakable impression—although he has denied any intent to do it—of running out on another of the 10 points. It related to limiting the feeding of grain to cattle and hogs.

On other major points of the program concerning agriculture, Anderson passed the buck to his subordinates when it came to explaining the techniques. His lieutenants, if technically competent, were not forceful.

The presentation of the program on curbing installment buying was first presented by Federal Reserve Board Governor R. M. Evans. His testimony was generally conceded to be something less than inspiring.

Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach, talking about price and wage controls, refused at any point, under a barrage of questions from irate and frustrated legislators, to become specific.

Like Schwellenbach, most other witnesses were at their vaguest in talking about the price control and rationing portions of the President's program.

In Administration circles there are several explanations to be heard of the unprecedentedly weak campaign waged by Mr. Truman's aides.

One is that the remarkably favorable reception given by press and public to the President's message caused Cabinet leaders to grow overconfident and rest on their oars. Their thought was that little further effort would be needed and that the Republicans were stuck firmly over a barrel.

Another explanation is that important members of the Cabinet did not favor major elements of the plan. Still another is that the President himself did not really intend the plan to be carried out, but proposed it only for political purposes.

Investigation suggests that these last two interpretations are without foundation.

The most common reason which is adduced and the one with most apparent validity, is that the program was developed principally by the Council of Economic Advisers, not by the Cabinet.

According to this explanation, Cabinet members approve wholeheartedly the recommendations. But they make poor witnesses in its behalf because neither they nor their departments developed or worked up the underlying economic research which resulted in the program.

The Council, meanwhile, did not "feed" the Cabinet witnesses with the supporting and underlying material. Not having "lived with" the economic bases of the plan, the witnesses went to Congress half "uneducated" and half inarticulate.

Experts Not Witnesses

The three members of the Council, although themselves steeped in the economic facts which they believe make the program necessary, have not appeared before Congressional committees. This is the result of a decision made by Council Chairman Edwin G. Nourse, counter to the recommendations of his associates, Leon H. Keyserling and John D. Clark.

Some Administration strategists believe that there is another, final explanation, for the diffident case made out on Capitol Hill. They hold that the doling out of different phases of the program to different Cabinet members was a mistake.

They think the original Budget Bureau plan would have been better: a single omnibus bill, presented at the outset to a single committee, and defended, under the direction of a single coordinator.

The program is such, these advisers think, that it can be viewed, promulgated and justified better as a whole than in separate parts.

Anderson Tells Of Finer Plants By Use of Drug

By The Associated Press

A drug used to treat gout in humans will produce finer plants "that otherwise would be impossible," Secretary of Agriculture Anderson said last night.

He dropped that report into a radio talk dealing with the scientific march of agriculture, but did not identify the drug.

"In the future, on the same land we have today, fewer farmers will furnish greater abundance for more people," he said. "We shall have increasingly better crop varieties, including more hybrids . . . scientists will create improved varieties to resist new strains of disease and insects that threaten our crops."

looking at the future

Yes, he has a long way to go to reach the future that his parents plan for him . . . but he'll grow up in no time and they will be glad they had a savings account.

That is why sensible men and women today are saving regularly.

They want the best opportunities for their children, and they realize that a growing savings account is the best means to this end.

Nothing affords one greater pleasure than to see his or her children succeed.

Similarly, there is nothing like the feeling of security that comes with having money in the bank.

You, too, can enjoy these happy experiences if you save a little each pay day.

In fact you will find that the things you want most in life are within your reach if you follow one simple rule:

SAVE REGULARLY . . . Save at the bank that welcomes your account.

Hirohito Inspects Bombed Hiroshima

Ruined Germany

Japs Warned Of Disastrous Spending

Tokyo, Dec. 7 (AP).—Finance Minister Takeo Kurusu warned the House of Councilors today that Japan's inflation by the end of this month will approach the rate of increase which broke the German economy after World War I.

Kurusu predicted that spending will push the Bank of Japan note issue to 200 billion yen, or 40 times the outstanding issue in June, 1941. German money ran wild in 1919 when the issue reached between 40 and 50 times the prewar level, he said.

Foreign loans, increased national savings and a tight lid on government spending, Kurusu said, are the most effectvie remedies still open. His statements were made in a "financial white paper" read this morning before the budget committee of the upper house.

Kurusu admitted that conditions in Japan are somewhat different from those under the Weimar republic. He added, however, that the Japanese people do not fully recognize the seriousness of "the unprecedented crisis of our economic situation . . . The nation at present is at the crossroads of successful economic construction or total collapse."

100,000 Japanese Line City's Streets To Cheer Emperor

Hiroshima, Japan, Dec. 7 (AP).—Emperor Hirohito paid his first postwar visit today to this atom-bombed city and commented, "There seems to have been considerable damage here."

Responding to the thousands who shouted a welcome, the Emperor said, "I have inexpressible sympathy for the sufferers of war disaster. I hope you will try to establish a peaceful nation and contribute to world peace."

The Emperor spoke from a platform of raw lumber, erected on the site of a onetime shrine to war dead. The crowd, packed almost to the suffocation point, roared "banzai." Japanese reporters estimated that 100,000 were present.

Before mounting the platform, Hirohito greeted Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Thomas Cloward of Washington, D. C.; Capt. Peter Somers of Gary, Ind.; and Paul Kent, occupation headquarters observer from Johnstown, Pa. The two officers are connected with the Hiroshima military government team.

Hirohito did not see any atom bomb casualties or visit the famed Red Cross hospital, but drove through the city and surveyed the ruins from the top of the city hall.

From that vantage point he could see no more than 15 buildings which survived the blast of August 6, 1945. These stood out amid acres of rubble, as yet little touched by the flimsy reconstruction so noticeable in the business district.

The streets he traversed had been carefully swept and were lined with cheering, reverent thousands of men, women and children who struggled through police lines for closer view of their Emperor. There was no evidence that they in any way linked him with the war disaster that befell their city.

WAA Proposes Priority End On Surpluses

By The Associated Press

An end to the priorities for veterans and small businessmen in buying war surplus items was proposed yesterday by the new War Assets Administration as a means of speeding up the end of the sprawling War Assets Administration.

Congress would have to agree if the prorities are wiped out. They already are becoming less useful to buyers as surplus stocks dwindle, Administrator Jes Larson said, and they slow down the final clearance job.

Larson plans to close out WAA by next June 30. At the moment the Federal Works Agency is his personal choice among the old-line Federal agencies to take over the long-term task of liquidating finally the disposal effort, but he is not ready to make an outright recommendation. The liquidation job may last 15 years or more.

WAA, which once employed 55,000 as one of the largest emergency agencies, will be down to about 17,000 by the time it passes out of existence, Larson forecast. Even so, it would be almost as big as FWA.

Larson forecast that the estimated 30 billion dollars in war surpluses will have been reduced by mid-1948 to less than three billion dollars in "white elephant" war plants and other real property, plus eprhaps 800 million dollars in other surplus—all in terms of original cost to the Government.

Although WAA was turning over nearly one billion dollars a month in sales revenues to the United States Treasury early this year, the time is approaching when the cost of running the agency will exceed income, Larson said.

awaiting decision, with the result that 28 were referred back to retiring boards and 15 returned to active duty.

"Naturally," he wrote, "I am more familiar with what was done at Navy than with what was done at Army, but Secretary (of War Robert P.) Patterson and I undertook to proceed along parallel lines wherever possible. Instead of attempting to review in this letter the steps which the War Department took in 1945-47, I have asked Secretary Royall to prepare a summary, which I shall forward to you."

He explained that the Army-Navy Personnel Board began its studies last September, and submitted its report in November.

Rangoon, Dec. 7 (AP).—Burma Communist Leader Thakin Than Tun declared today that "disseminators of false news" were responsible for reports that Communists had seized power in central Burma and set up regimes of their own.

Officials in the government of Premier Thakin Nu said Friday that the Communists had assumed power in Tougoo, Pyinmana and Yamethin districts north of Rangoon. Police were dispatched to the area to restore order.

O'Conor Would Finance Aid by U. S. Economies

Baltimore, Dec. 7 (AP).—Senator O'Conor (D., Md.) today said the best way to finance aid to Europe is for the Federal Government to tighten its belt by cutting down operational costs.

Back in 1913 Government costs represented only 7½ per cent of the total national income," he said in his weekly radio address on WBAL. "Today, it is almost four times that percentage and still rising."

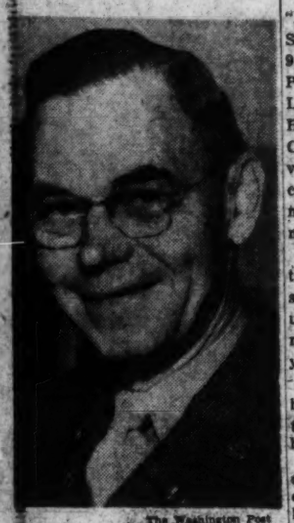
Sergeant's 32 Years in Army Ended



The Washington Post
M/SERGT. VICTOR T. NIXON

Drinking champagne with the King of Spain is just one of many special memories of Master Sergt. Victor T. Nixon, who is retiring from Army life after 32 years.

Fifty-year-old Nixon, who lives at 1910 T pl. se., a member of the Bolling Field Air Force Band, will retire the first of January.

A retirement party in his honor is to be held at the National Press Club Wednesday night and earlier that day he will conduct the recording by the Air Force Band of a march he composed, "Into the Blue."

After 23 years as a member of the Army Band, he became leader in 1941 of the Fiftieth Army Air Forces Band, Alaskan Division, serving with it until 1945.

Long Flight to Play

"This unit would fly from Great Falls, Mont., to Nome, Alaska, making 16 stops en route to play at remote stations," he recalled yesterday at Bolling Field.

"We'd give a concert in the afternoon and play for a dance that night. Some of the places were so remote that girls would be flown in from Fairbanks or Edmonton for the dance."

While a member of the Army Band, Nixon went on a tour to Spain in 1929. It was the first time in history that a contingent of American soldiers had crossed the Spanish border in a body, and everybody turned out to see the strange Americans," he said.

Concert For King of Spain

"In Madrid we played in the palace for King Alphonso. Afterwards we all had champagne and cake, and someone stole one of the king's glasses. He was pretty put out about it, and raised a fuss."

The sergeant, a native of St. Petersburg, Fla., says he was "born into the Army." His father was also an Army musician.

Sergeant and Mrs. Nixon have two daughters, both married to naval officers stationed in California, and a son, Thomas H. Nixon, a Navy veteran who is now a mail carrier here.

Upon retirement, Nixon plans to attend a piano-tuning school in Harrisburg, Pa., and then go into business in the Middle West.

2 Officers Face Jail Death Trial

Elkton, Md., Dec. 7 (AP).—A State police trooper and a deputy sheriff will go on trial tomorrow before judges of the Second Judicial Circuit on manslaughter charges growing out of the death of a Salisbury automobile dealer after a fight in the Wicomico County jail.

The two officers—State Trooper John L. Harbaugh and John W. Turner, night turnkey at the Salisbury jail—were indicted by a Wicomico County grand jury after the death of Milton H. Jones, 31, on July 27.

Jones had been arrested by Harbaugh on that date on a drunken driving charge. The case was moved here on a change of venue.

But Rep. Schwabe Approves Work of Thomas Committee

The listing of so-called subversive organizations by the Attorney General was termed "very dangerous" by Representative Max Schwabe (R., Mo.) yesterday.

Speaking on the radio program, "Is Congress Doing Its Job," Schwabe discussed the branding of 91 groups as subversive with Lee Pressman of the CIO National Lawyers Guild. He favored the House Un-American Activities Committee as the agency to provide protection against un-American groups, instead of the Administration with its loyalty measures.

Pressman took sharp issue with the Representative when the latter said the American people should uphold the committee, whose members, being elected every two years, "can be trusted."

"The Thomas Committee has been condemned for the same tactics as the Attorney General has used," Pressman declared.

The lawyer, who is the CIO's chief legal counsel, said he knew of no precedent in the peacetime history of the United States for a Government official to set up a proscribed list. The Attorney General, he pointed out, "doesn't tell us the standards he used."

Members of the groups named as un-American would have no idea what the charges are against them, Pressman continued, by whom they were made, or what could be done to appeal. The procedure, he said, is "completely at odds with every basic precept of our democracy."

The speakers agreed that listing groups as "subversive" was a dangerous procedure, but Representative Schwabe declared "the American people want protection and they demand that something be done."

J. T. Cousins to Speak

Winchester, Va., Dec. 7 (Spl.).—J. T. Cousins of Richmond, Virginia department commander, Spanish War Veterans, will speak at 7 p. m. Thursday at the annual meeting and banquet of the local Col. James C. Baker camp.

Bookshop, Negro Veterans Deny They are 'Subversive'

Two organizations, branded "subversive" by Attorney General Tom C. Clark, yesterday issued denials.

The Washington Cooperative Bookshop saw Clark's action as an attempt to "gag the whole American people." The Cooperative was listed by Clark as the Washington Book Shop Association, but officials of the shop said the designation was meant for them.

The United Negro and Allied Veterans of America declared Clark's designation "is a lie out of the whole cloth. It is," a press release asserted, "a cynical and callous attempt on the part of our country's highest law enforcement official to intimidate Negro veterans in their fight for justice, freedom and security."

The UNAV's press release was signed by National Commander George B. Murphy, jr.

The bookshop, in a statement attributed to Ray Pinkson, publicity chairman, said "we will continue to contribute to the cultural life of our community by presenting the best thought and leadership in the sphere of art, science and literature."

"If championing the cause of the disfranchised, the houseless and the unfed is the Attorney General's yardstick of subversion," the Cooperative said, "we promise him grimly we shall not cease to be subversive."

U. S.-Soviet Friendship Group Demands Hearing

The National Council of American-Soviet Friendship announced in New York last night that it formally has protested the listing of the council among "subversive" groups and demanded that United States Attorney General Tom Clark provide a public hearing on the matter.

In a letter to the Attorney General, the Rev. William H. Melish, chairman, said the council insists "it is our right to work for American-Soviet friendship so essential to the preservation of the peace of America, without being hampered by unwarranted public accusations."

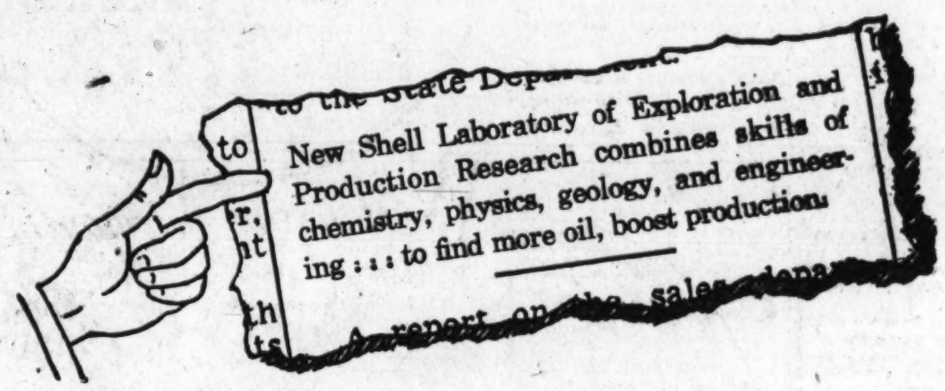
Oil looks Beyond tomorrow

How Shell works to increase our petroleum resources



New Shell Laboratory of Exploration and Production Research combines skills of chemistry, physics, geology, and engineering . . . to find more oil, boost production.

This should surprise you:

The average American drinks ½ gallon of water every day. 3 times that much oil —1½ gallons a day—is needed to fill his demands for all oil products. How is this ever-expanding demand to be met? The new Shell laboratory seeks—(1) better ways to locate new oil reserves...(2) more efficient ways of bringing oil to the surface.

Every precious drop:

Wringing from present fields every possible drop—leaving none wasted—that's the aim of production research. The life of many a long-used field is prolonged by pumping gas back into wells to force petroleum to the surface . . . or . . . by flooding old fields with water to drive the oil out.

Oil is more than "skin deep":

The face of the earth presents few clues. Crude oil lies deep . . . under swamps . . . mountains . . . oceans . . . even city streets. But with advanced scientific methods, oil men "see" into the earth—identify underground formations where oil is most likely to be found.

Better "mud pies"—more oil:

One way to get more oil is to improve drilling methods. Specially prepared mud, pumped down through hollow drill stems, cools the drilling bit, flushes out bit cuttings, and keeps fabulous subsurface pressure under control. So, Shell Research works to improve drilling muds as another way to increase our oil supply.

Stop, look, listen:

Shell scientists use radioactivity to help find reservoirs of petroleum and natural gas . . . make geologic explorations with echoes from dynamite explosions . . . chart underground rock formations by checking their magnetic and gravitational attractions. Chemistry, physics, geology and related engineering sciences—every scientific skill is employed to help find new oil fields.

Tools tailored to order:

Often, scientists work so far "in advance" that tools they need for research haven't been built—or invented. At the new Shell laboratory they have machine shops capable of handling heavy pipes or hair-like wires . . . and a completely equipped glass-blowing room—to build needed instruments to their design.

Department of Ancient History:

At Shell's laboratory, paleontologists and geologists study ancient fossils and rocks to learn how, when and where oil is formed . . . how it moves through underground strata. The research plans of these scientists will turn the "underworld" into familiar ground.

Doctors of Conservation:

Aside from its vitally important research experiments, the new laboratory serves as a school. With its help, exploration and production field men can keep abreast of newly developed techniques for finding and producing petroleum—and pass them along to their colleagues working "in oil."

Demands for over 1,200 different petroleum products continue to grow. The new Exploration and Production Research Laboratory is Shell's latest step to insure continued supplies to meet these needs.

While seated in a restaurant at 4th and N sts. nw., Willie Jackson, 22, of 634 O st. nw., was slapped in the face and robbed of $4.80 by an unidentified man, according to police.

Body Processes To Be Studied in Problem Drinking

New York, Dec. 7 (U.P.).—The Research Council on Problems of Alcohol announced today a grant of $6000 to the University of Texas for a study to determine whether body processes contribute to problem drinking.

Dr. Anton J. Carlson, University of Chicago physiologist and president of the council, said the study will include men and women of various ages, backgrounds and temperaments.

Carlson said the project "will fulfill a long felt need" to determine whether some persons are more prone to alcoholism than others because of unique physiological characteristics in the body tissues.

Identical twins, members of Alcoholics Annonymous, and men and women of Irish and Jewish descent, "who generally have very different patterns in drinking" will be included in the research into individual patterns of metabolism and their relation to alcoholism.

Capital Prepares to Greet World Fliers on Wednesday

Washington's globe-girdling Piper Supercruiser pilots, Clifford V. Evans, jr., and George W. Truman, will be welcomed home by the Washington Board of Trade in ceremonies planned for Wednesday.

The pilots will be met by an official delegation of representatives of Government, military, civic and flying groups when they arrive at National Airport at 2 p. m. Their junket will have ended officially with their expected arrival tomorrow at Teterboro, N. J., whence they took off August 9.

(Bad weather delayed the pilots at Dayton, Ohio, yesterday, but they planned to leave there at 6 a. m. today for a nonstop flight to Teterboro. "You can get killed over the Alleghenys as easily as over the Himalayas and we are too near the end of a 25,000-mile trip to take chances," Evans said.)

Following a scheduled appointment with the President at the White House at 3:45 p. m. Wednesday, Evans and Truman will be escorted to the District Building, where they will be greeted by the Commissioners. There they will receive commemorative scrolls from John A. Reilly, Board of Trade president.

Representatives from the embassies of countries where the fliers stopped on their 22,000-mile flight will be present at the District Building ceremonies.

A reception by the Washington Association of Flying Clubs is scheduled for 5 p. m. in the Congressional Room of the Willard Hotel.

Evans, 27, is a member of an old Washington family. Truman, 39, is a native of California. Both live in Greater Washington, Evans at 1416 N. Abingdon st., Arlington, and Truman at 4804 V st. se.

"adequate and efficient railway transportation service for the nation"

FROM THE OFFICIAL REPORT of the Interstate Commerce Commission on awarding a temporary freight rate increase of 10%, we quote:

"The law requires us to give due consideration, among other factors, to the need of revenue sufficient to enable the carriers under honest, economic, and efficient management to provide adequate and efficient railway transportation service for the nation . . ."

A moment's thought should convince any fair-minded person that keeping the American railroads healthy is to everybody's advantage.

Every family, every businessman, even the Nation itself is in danger when this vital artery of American life is weakened.

And that threat is real, and it is now. For with increases in the cost of railroad operation piling up one atop another, how can the railroads' multi-million dollar program for desperately needed new equipment be continued? How can improvements in roadbeds, yards, stations, rolling stock, which took a merciless beating in the war years of peak traffic, be carried through?

They can't... UNLESS—

Unless the railroads are granted freight rates adequate to meet the wage and materials cost increases, and at the same time keep hundreds of American industries busy with new machinery and equipment orders.

Government requires that the railroads maintain a high standard of efficiency because You demand it, Industry depends on it, and the Nation must have it.

We are asking a permanent freight rate increase of the absolute minimum to meet our need—which is in every sense your need.

Committee Plans U.S. Spending For Housing Advocated

By The Associated Press

Some Federal spending program to encourage private construction of low-rent dwellings will be recommended by a Senate-House committee studying the housing shortage, Senator McCarthy (R., Wisc.) predicted yesterday.

McCarthy

But the Senator, vice chairman of the joint committee, told a reporter he intended to fight any move to provide such dwellings under a public housing program.

"Public housing has proven to be the worst way to get the most for the money," McCarthy declared. "Private industry can do the job cheaper and better."

The joint committee is due to submit recommendations by March 15.

"I am sure," McCarthy said, "that a majority of the committee will vote to provide Federal money to stimulate construction by private industry of homes to rent from $35 to $50 a month.

The Senate already has a measure before it—the Taft-Ellender-Wagner bill—which, among other things, is designed to encourage private construction of rental units by guaranteeing a specific return to insurance companies and other investors.

The bill, however, provides for Government subsidies, which McCarthy opposes.

Tell Me, 83% Say on Cancer

mately the same per cent of white and Negro women have died from cancer in the U. S. while a slightly higher percentage of white men have died of cancer than of Negro men.

Possible explanations of the difference may be failure to diagnose cancer among Negroes, lack of information about the disease among Negroes, or greater feeling among them that contraction of cancer is disgraceful and not to be talked about.

Many fewer of the poorly educated and of the low income groups also say that they have had close friends or relatives who have had cancer.

Asked: "Has anyone living in this household had cancer within the last 12 months?": Three per cent of families reported cases of cancer within the last 12 months.

The occurrence may be somewhat higher because of reluctance to report the disease and because of failure to diagnose it.

Post Pollers then asked:

Do you think cancer is always fatal, or do people sometimes recover?

The answers:

	All Groups	Educational level Grade	High	College
Believe cancer is always fatal	37%	39%	28%	19%
Believe people sometimes recover	54	47	63	76
Don't know	9	14	9	5

Thirty-nine per cent of the grade-school-educated, 28 per cent of the high-school educated and 19 per cent of the college-educated think there is no hope of recovery for people stricken with cancer. During recent years an intensive campaign has been carried on to inform people that cancer is curable if discovered early enough, but many still do not accept this.

National Group To Open Two-Day Session at Statler

The Marshall Plan for European reconstruction will be discussed at today's opening sessions of a two-day meeting of the National Planning Association at the Statler Hotel.

Reports prepared by subcommittees of the agriculture, business, labor and international committees of the NPA will be analyzed at joint noon and afternoon meetings today.

H. Christian Sonne, chairman of the board of trustees, said yesterday the agenda will include, in addition to the Marshall Plan, the problem of inflation and a stable economy, labor-management peace, and a redefinition of moral values that should underlie all democratic planning. Over 80 members are expected to participate.

Committee chairmen who will guide discussions are Donald M. Murphy, editor of Wallace's Farmer and Iowa Homestead, Des Moines, Iowa, agriculture; Beardsley Ruml, chairman of the board, R. H. Macy and Co., New York, business; Marion H. Society Issues Yule Travel Tips for Youngsters

If you're sending Junior off alone for Christmas at grandmother's, you'd better be sure of certain things.

Such as—that he knows grandmother's address or has it written down; that he isn't carrying too much luggage; that he isn't under 7 or 8 years old.

A partial list of do's and dont's for parents was released yesterday by Mrs. C. F. Alexander, executive secretary of the Travelers Aid Society of Washington, in an attempt to "forestall misfortune for young travelers."

Here are some of her pointers:

1. Be certain that the child is expected at the other end of the line.

2. Give the child a careful briefing on what he should and shouldn't do while en route.

3. Let the child carry a prepared lunch for he may find it difficult to order in dining cars.

4. Do not send a child alone who is timid and easily frightened.

5. If possible, pick a train or bus which does not reach its destination during late hours nor have long layovers at inconvenient times.

6. If the child is going on a long train trip, west of Chicago, arrange for Pullman accommodations.

U. S. General Appeals For CARE Austrian Aid

Lieut. Gen. Geoffrey Keyes, commanding general and United States high commissioner of United States forces in Austria, has issued an appeal for CARE food packages for Austrian families at Christmas.

General Keyes urged that all contributions be sent to CARE, Washington, D. C., for the Austrian Christmas fund. The parcels, he said, will be delivered by American soldiers at Christmas.

Antisocial Landlords

Rufus S. Lusk's charge that scores of apartments in Washington are allowed to remain vacant for periods up to six weeks, while appeals for rent increases are pending, is a shocking indictment of the owners. In our opinion, any landlord who deliberately withholds housing accommodations from residents of this congested city deserves to be classed as a public enemy. He is not only injuring the community at large by his antisocial behavior, but he is also helping to create public hostility and resentment toward landlords as a class, and that may delay removal of rent controls. Moreover, those self-seeking landlords who forgo present rental income merely to avoid protests from tenants that might delay action on pending requests for rent increases are as likely to lose as to gain by such tactics. For a good many months will pass in all probability before permitted rent increases will suffice to offset loss of current income.

We sympathize heartily with the great majority of landlords who complain of the delay in rendering decisions on applications for apartment house rent increases. Hearings on rental applications have in many instances been unnecessarily prolonged, while decisions apparently not presenting any difficult problems have been withheld for many weeks. Rent Control Administrator Cogswell has good reason, however, for rejecting the proposal of the Building Owners and Managers Association to increase rentals on various types of apartments solely on the basis of sworn statements covering real estate taxes, water rentals, fuel and service payrolls. This method would not only eliminate hearings required by law but also would deprive tenants of an opportunity to expose landlords who fail to provide adequate service. Nevertheless, it should be possible to speed up hearings instead of allowing tenants to air their grievances, imaginary as well as real, at great length.

The Washington situation clearly calls for less deliberation and more reliance on rough and ready decisions. No real harm would be done by such procedure, provided rent increases were moderate—as they have been—and limited to amounts warranted by increases in current operating costs.

Nicholas Murray Butler

Dr. Butler is dead at the age of 85 without having achieved what for a considerable part of his life was deemed his abiding ambition; that is, to be President of the United States. Yet it is probable that he had a profounder influence than most Presidents on the destinies and characters of his countrymen. He was one of a small group of men who, in the early years of this century, transformed the business of higher education into a great national industry. Without this transformation, the present grandiose program of veterans' scholarships, provided by Congress, would have been altogether inconceivable.

When in 1901 Dr. Butler assumed the presidency of Columbia University, it was, by contemporary standards, an institution of extremely modest proportions, although even then one of the largest. There were slightly more than 4000 students and the annual budget was slightly more than a million dollars. When he retired in 1945, the total of enrollment was well over 28,000 students and a few years earlier had been well over 31,000. The total of capital investments was approximately a quarter billion dollars, and the annual budget was more than 15 million dollars.

This achievement doubtless accounts for the sobriquet of "Nicholas Miraculous," which is said to have been bestowed upon him by the first President Roosevelt. What seems all the more miraculous is that the business of hunting for endowments, editing an educational journal and attending to his ever-growing educational cartel absorbed only part of Dr. Butler's time and tremendous energies. He was involved in one way or another in almost every important public controversy, setting forth his opinions in speeches, articles, interviews and pronouncements. For the better part of two generations he was one of our foremost national figures. To most Americans, as we said on the occasion of his retirement, "he had come to seem . . . a public institution himself, and independent of time like the Constitution or the Republic of Plato."

Nevertheless, he was preeminently a man of his age. His miracles of expansion had been made possible by the multiplication of great private fortunes and the new fashion of seeking memorials in the form of educational endowments. The astonishing variety of studies and research activities thus made possible in institutions like Dr. Butler's Columbia, the emphasis on specialized training, the pedagogic innovations sponsored by such influential components as the Teachers College, came to inspire reproaches about "learned barbarism" and "intellectual anarchy." The contemporary doctrines concerning the theory and purpose of higher education seem in full retreat from those which were dominant throughout the greater part of Dr. Butler's tenure.

Too Liberal For What?

Two chief lines of attack are directed against the European aid program in the House of Representatives. One group is contending that the 597 million dollars approved by the Senate to save western Europe from economic disaster during the winter months is too much. Another group is contending that the Communists are already plunging France and Italy into chaos from which no sum of American dollars can rescue them. In our opinion, each of these arguments goes a long way toward canceling the other out.

Representative John Taber is foremost among the critics of the aid-to-Europe bill on the ground that it is "too liberal." We must expect Mr. Taber, as chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, to keep a rigid check upon Federal expenditures. But when he tells us that the careful estimates as to the sums necessary to avert calamity in France, Italy and Austria are "too liberal," he ought to specify what yardstick he is using. Too liberal for what? With experts indicating that upward of 20 billion dollars should be forthcoming for reconstruction of western Europe, it would be absurd to say that a bill authorizing the expenditure of a small fraction of that sum for emergency requirements' carries more than is needed to do the job.

Does Mr. Taber mean that the Senate bill provides more than we can afford? Here again it seems to us beyond the pale of reason to say that we could afford more than 300 billions for war and cannot afford a few billions or even a few hundred millions to prevent the victory we won from turning to ashes before our eyes. Or can it be that Mr. Taber means that the peace, security and freedom which are sought through the granting of aid to free peoples in distress are not worth the price? To make any such assumption would be to deny the most compelling beliefs and traditions that our people cherish.

Some sharp questions ought to be asked also of those defeatists who assume that, in any event, it is too late to save Europe from sinking into communistic despair. Our emergency relief and long-range rehabilitation programs are unquestionably belated. But it is not now a question of whether we should have launched the Marshall Plan last spring. It is a question of what we can and should do today. Undersecretary of State Lovett put into words last week what everyone had known when he said that the Communist-led strikes in France and Italy are "an extension of Soviet foreign policy." Probably nothing would please the Kremlin more than to convince the United States Congress that aid to western Europe would now be futile. Is it conceivable our legislators will be taken in by Communist demonstrations designed to frighten them?

To be utterly candid about it, the spread of tyranny over Europe would lead inevitably to war. The establishment of police states in France and Italy, which would mean a similar fate for Germany and Austria and probably every other country in Europe, could have no other outcome than a repetition of World War II with infinitely more destructive weapons. Can any legislator seriously pretend that it is too late to move resolutely against this potential calamity? Of course, there can be no guarantee that either temporary aid or the Marshall Plan will succeed. But the consequences of inaction would be so contrary to everything the American people want that we do not see how their representatives in Congress dare to continue quibbling over petty details while the forces of tyranny further entrench themselves.

Church And School

As we approach the annual celebration of the birth of the Prince of Peace, it is a national humiliation to have conflict break out in the Brooklyn public school system over the singing of Christmas carols. But the Protestant and Catholic churches that have built up in the New York school system the largest released-time program for religious instruction in the whole country should realize that they have only themselves to blame for this regrettable occurrence. For wherever this program has been forced upon our public schools, the tensions created among the children, their parents and the local communities have almost invariably resulted in unfortunate manifestations of one kind or another.

In the past our public school administrators have known how to organize Christmas and Easter festivities without offending non-Christian groups; they have been equally successful in interesting their classes in the significance of the Jewish or other religious holidays, thus creating among their pupils a spirit of mutual tolerance and cooperation. To be sure, differences arose even before the released-time program existed, but formerly these were episodes settled by the teachers in a neighborly and friendly way.

What the released-time program does is to emphasize religious animosities and make them more acute. The violent debates now raging between Protestant and Catholic church leaders have necessarily been carried over into the schools by the released-time program, and have brought about a situation more harmful to religion and to the social solidarity of our people than the meager and doubtful benefits of that program could possibly justify. A New York City teacher, who has taught there for 35 years, wrote The Washington Post recently: "I have seen the little Jews assembled in one room, the little Protestants in another, the little Catholics in a third, prior to being led to their various places for religious instruction. As the half hour left of the school day was of value to the teachers for doing their clerical work, the poor little pagans, heathens or whatever term of opprobrium the orthodox might choose to apply to them, were most unpopular, as you may well imagine."

In the New York City released-time program, 110,000 elementary public school pupils participate, of whom 80 per cent are Catholic, 15 per cent Protestant, and 5 per cent Jewish. If a minority group now begins to assert its influence in Brooklyn, where it happens to predominate, that is exactly what should have been anticipated. For the majority groups do the same thing throughout the country wherever they have the upper hand. The result will be that we shall soon have Protestant, Catholic or Jewish public schools, with rebellious minorities everywhere.

Fortunately, our church and school authorities in Washington have had the good sense to maintain the independence of both these institutions, a practice which has been the custom in our country for over a century. Have the Christian churches elsewhere—especially the Protestants, who initiated the released-time program—ever really studied its devastating effects and asked themselves whether it is, in fact, a moral act consistent with their religious principles when they inject among little children the regrettable dissensions of their adult intolerances and rivalries?

Today the Champaign (Illinois) case, challenging the constitutional right of the clergy to teach sectarian religions in the public schoolrooms of that small community, will be argued before the Supreme Court by a great array of legal talent. Whatever the decision may be, the dignity and influence of the Christian churches can only suffer from such debates before the highest seat of justice.

Because The Washington Post is as much concerned about the position of the churches in our society as about the democratic unity and harmony of life in our public schools, we hope the religious groups who still advocate the released-time program will withdraw from the public schools before court decisions or popular indignation subject them to the damaging effects of an enforced retreat.

Margarine Tax

Time was when producers of margarine had to struggle against the handicap of consumer prejudice as well as tax discrimination. Wartime butter shortages that forced many butter-eaters to turn to margarine did much to dissipate a prejudice that was based partly on ignorance and partly on occasional sampling of inferior kinds of margarine. Soaring prices for butter, now approaching a dollar a pound in some cities, are daily making new friends for the no longer despised, lower-priced substitute.

Secretary of Commerce Harriman, who has been eating margarine instead of butter ever since the war, voiced the sentiment of millions of Americans when he declared that he couldn't tell the difference between margarine and butter and was surprised that people would pay a dollar a pound for butter. Since the Secretary of Commerce is one of America's wealthiest men, his favorable opinion of margarine is plainly not based on its comparative cheapness. His indorsement merely provides further evidence that the producers of margarine are winning the battle for acceptance of their product because it has proved its worth.

However, the margarine manufacturers have scored only minor victories so far in their long fight for removal of discriminatory Federal and State taxes and hampering regulations. The Federal tax of 10 cents a pound on colored margarine has heretofore been one of the chief targets of attack. But now that millions of housewives have discovered how easy it is to introduce coloring matter into uncolored margarine we doubt whether this particular tax is very much of a deterrent to an expansion of margarine sales. Much more obstructive are the Federal and State licenses, fees and other restrictions that have made it unprofitable for many wholesalers and retailers to carry margarine. The revenue obtained from discriminatory excises is negligible; in fact, tax returns would doubtless be greater, if margarine production were encouraged by removal of these taxes, whose only purpose is to protect the dairy industry from the competition of a cheaper substitute product.

The inequity of the margarine excises from the viewpoint of the industry is obvious. The consuming public is likewise an interested party since taxes imposed on margarine are shifted to consumers. Furthermore, to the extent that such taxes hamper the production and distribution of margarine, the consumer pays the higher prices resulting from a restricted supply. Since the Government professes to be concerned about the high cost of living, there appears to be no legitimate excuse for retention of a system of discriminatory excises and license fees that add to the cost of a wholesome butter substitute. If Congress were to take the lead in abolishing restrictive Federal taxes on margarine, as Senator Fulbright has suggested, the drive to eliminate similar levies and nuisance regulations imposed by various States would be greatly strengthened.

GRAY SQUIRREL: ARABESQUE

Like the quick flash of quicksilver, seen and gone, the silver squirrel is antic on the silvery beech boughs;
like dancing music notes on austere staves
the bright jet glitter of his eyes, the ripple of plumed tail that flashes, vanishes, only to appear again; arched, flowing, mercurial little acrobat of instant postures instantly dissolved, moving to bright wild surge of autumn sun and wind, the silver squirrel among the copper leaves of beech performs an agile demisemiquaver of pert ears and then, elusive, almost quicker than his shadow, disappears in silver flash as silent as his shadowed self.

Movie Dismissals

May I moralize a minute on the dismissal of the movie writers charged with contempt of Congress? The courts are going to consider carefully the legality of their action. So the movie magnates did not dismiss them for illegality. Neither were they fired because of the quality of their work. No work was more incessantly under review than theirs. Why were they dismissed? They were dismissed because the magnates thought it would "pay." They were dismissed for the ugly reason that the magnates acted with unrelieved materialism; they wanted "the gate."

Such cruel and I think faithless materialism is not capitalism, nor is it I believe, caused by capitalism. It is a peculiar and growing vice in certain kinds of culture. But I think Mr. Eric Johnson may confuse the two. I think he may have felt that he was striking a blow for capitalism, instead of against it, as many will feel. We must do better. We must perceive the true nature of the problem troubling the Nation. We must find ways of encouraging those other values which give society coherence and a sense of fellowship.

One way, perhaps a minor one, is to condemn this vice which the magnates have revealed so publicly and plainly. And also to acclaim the virtues of courage and fidelity to their conception of civic duty which the 10 writers and managers possessed. In this unbelievable drama the employers have come off a very poor and contemptible second best.

Mason's Record

We have indorsed Charles H. Houston for District Commissioner to fill the vacancy created by the expiration of Guy Mason's term.

In taking this stand we recall the sad record of the Commissioners in dealing with the strike against the hotels in 1946. The Commissioners generally did little to bring about a speedy solution of the strike. Guy Mason's role was particularly peculiar. Commissioner Mason presented a formula to hotel management for "settling" the strike.

This is what The Washington Post said editorially about his proposal:

"The Commissioners themselves, it appeared, were coming to the rescue. And who was to be rescued? Why, the hotel association, of course—as a reward presumably for the stubbornness with which it has prolonged the strike into its third week. Chief Rescuer Guy Mason, in collaboration with hotel association counsel, Joseph C. McGarraghy—but without even consulting the counsel of hotel employes—submitted a proposal for settlement of the strike. . . . This was, to accord it the most generous interpretation possible, a gross ineptitude. What kind of mediation is it that ignores one party to a disagreement? It looks very much like something quite different from mediation—like an attempt to force upon the employes a management proposal by giving it the appearance of an award determined by impartial outsiders."

When the striking employes rejected this proposal, Commissioner Mason washed his hands of the whole dispute.

This has been the experience of Local 209, Cooks, Pastry Cooks and Kitchen Employes Union (AFL) with Commissioner Mason.

We, therefore, feel very strongly that Mr. Houston, a native of the District and a prominent attorney, will truly represent the needs of labor and of Washingtonians generally.

YMCA Discrimination

It goes almost without saying that singularly repugnant is the pious profession of a status which disposition and practice conspicuously belie. Of questionable merit, therefore, is the recent pronouncement of the board of directors of the local Young Men's Christian Association relative to a particular phase of the rather equivocal and unhappy state of interracial affairs in the Nation's Capital. Their resolution states, in part:

"Be it resolved that the board of directors of the YMCA of the Metropolitan Washington Area sustains the action of the central branch committee of management to continue the present policy and practices in connection with service in the central branch coffee shop."

Such "policy and practices" entail, need it be said, the board's reaffirmation of its policy of refusal to serve Negroes at its restaurant. LEON E. WRIGHT.

Traffic Violations

I wish to congratulate you on the good work you are doing in publishing the names of traffic violators whose tickets are adjusted each week. Please continue to do so. I believe it is unfortunate that many who could well afford to do so are not required to pay the penalty, while those of us who earn our bread and butter driving vehicles receive a ticket and are always forced to pay the penalty for the slightest offense. I am only a cab driver, not a Congressman.

Navajo Needs

The biggest blot on our map is the Navajo Reservation.

The inhabitants of these tribal desert lands, reaching up into New Mexico, Arizona and Utah, have the illiteracy and the greatest death rate in the United States. Here 55,000 Americans are making a brave struggle for life on a sandy waste where half that number of whites would die.

The Navajos have only two vocations other than sheep herding. These, they got from the early Spaniards. They are rug weaving and silversmithing. But they have not enough wool for their rugs and the white traders have found it more lucrative to have "Navajo jewelry" machine made.

Their overcrowded dirt "hogans" are miles apart, scattered over 18 million arid acres. They cannot find the white man's road because many of them cannot even speak English. Because of the great distances day schools are of no avail.

What they want are a number of large vocational boarding schools. Among their other vital and immediate needs are good roads and good hospitals. This would require an outlay of 50 million dollars to begin with and would necessitate a very definite and progressive plan, if these worthy people are to be saved.

At present they relish dried peaches from the sprouting stumps of the trees Kit Carson left them 100 years ago in the Canyon de Chelley when he raided their homes and led them into captivity. And they are glad that pinon nuts still grow in the scrub.

In the treaty which was then made after their best lands were lost to them forever, they were promised that they would be educated so that they could make a living in the white man's way. That promise has never been fulfilled. The people of this democracy are undoubtedly responsible for the unutterably sad plight of the Navajos. It should rest heavily upon the national conscience.

Chinese Communists

Although Mr. T. A. Hamilton (letter published November 29) purports to educate me on the Chinese situation, he has given himself to so many misstatements that it must be a case of student teaching the master.

To begin, Mr. Hamilton makes the fantastic statement that "the Russians have not aided" the Chinese Communists. The record, which can be found in the daily press, and in the statements of responsible officials, proves otherwise. The Soviets have supplied the rebel armies with armaments seized from the Japanese troops. They have provided military supervision and planning and a number of Soviet officers have been found dead on the battlefield. Furthermore, the refusal of the Soviets to evacuate Manchuria in accordance with the terms of the Sino-Soviet treaty gave the Reds a chance to infiltrate. Even today the persistent violation of the treaty by the Soviet Union is making the job of putting down the rebellion in China more difficult.

Mr. Hamilton goes back to a passing incident of 1927 to prove that the Chinese Communists are not really the genuine Moscow-made article. If he were to look at the record since that time he would agree that they are faithful followers of the party line. I would like to ask Mr. Hamilton to name but one single instance in which the Chinese Communists have deviated from the Comintern program during the past 15 years.

To claim that a statement made by Mao Tse-tung, dictator of Red China, during the war, about the good will toward all men by the Communist Party can be accepted as a statement of policy, is completely untenable. It was the policy of the Comintern to ply the Western democracies with propaganda about the sudden reform of the Communists and their burning desire to collaborate with the capitalist world in the common struggle against Hitler. The same sort of tripe was dished out by Earl Browder and the other Communists in this country.

Let Mr. Hamilton examine the statements that Mao is making today about the American monopolist imperialists in exactly the same words as Dictator Dimitroff in Bulgaria, Dictator Groza in Romania, Dictator Rakosi in Hungary, Dictator Tito in Yugoslavia, as well as Comrade Vishinsky in the United Nations.

In support of his views, Mr. Hamilton proudly cites as his authorities such writers as Edgar Snow and T. H. White. When the Saturday Evening Post wanted to present to the American public an apology of Soviet truculence it chose Snow to do the job. It is recommended that Mr. Hamilton read the new book by a capable journalist, Freda Utley, entitled Last Chance in China.

Mr. Hamilton is perhaps correct in stating that a "few million dollars will not . . . prevent attack by the Communists." In order to prevent the conquest of the unhappy Chinese republic by the Moscow-sponsored Red regime of Yenan, the United States must contribute much more than money. It must support the government of China with arms in exactly the same fashion as the Soviets are supporting the rebels.

We must further provide the Chinese with sound military and diplomatic advice which can effectively counteract Soviet infiltration in the Chinese armies. Finally we must see to it that the Soviet Union lives up to the terms of the Sino-Soviet treaty or else heed the advice of Congresswoman Clare Boothe Luce and denounce the treaty. VERITAS.

On Going To Pieces

HITLER IN OURSELVES, by Max Picard; translated from the German by Heinrich Hauser. (Henry Regnery Co., $3.50.)

This, as you may have inferred from the title, is another effort to diagnose the spiritual malady of the 20th century of which Hitlerism was merely the extreme manifestation. It is one of those books concerning which it is difficult to decide whether it is truly profound or whether it derives an appearance of profoundity from a kind of portentous ambiguity. Dr. Picard is a Swiss physician who has made himself known abroad through his treatises on physiognomy; his name suggests a French-speaking ancestry, but he writes in German and certainly his thought has not that simplicity and precision which is comprehended in the term clarte. At all events, he appears to explain the modern sickness as a kind of monstrous irrelevance, or, as he prefers to call it, discontinuity. The human consciousness has become so thoroughly fragmented or atomized that nothing is any longer connected with anything else.

Thus in the field of psychopathology the characteristic disease of our times is schizophrenia, which is the new word for what was formerly called precocious dementia and means the progressive fission or disintegration of the personality. All of us, it seems, suffer in some degree from this disorder, but I gather that Dr. Picard considers those schizophrenes who disappear into the asylums to be less mad, or at any rate less sinful, than those of us who come to terms with the schizophrenic universe, as exemplified in the picture magazines and the radio programs; anyway, "the sin of discontinuity and its punishment are made manifest in these victims; the destruction of the human image through this sin is demonstrated by them." In the physio-pathological field the characteristic disease is cancer, which is the irrelevant behavior of cell tissues. "The cancer tears up the total bodily context; it disintegrates the total continuity of the physique into total discontinuity." In a similar analogy Dr. Pickard accounts for the ubiquitous eroticism of modern life. Sexuality, it appears, is the opposite of continuity; it is the essence of the momentary. This is why sexuality pervades every aspect of our disintegrating society; and here we come to Dr. Picard's quarrel with the psychoanalysts, who assist and regulate, as he says, the "invasions of sex into spheres where it does not belong," and thus perform the function of a psychological fifth column; for it is "as if in the case of a Hitler invasion the threatened country would place its railroad system at the invader's disposal, so as to make his going easy." In this context neurosis appears as an effort by the psyche to elude the tyranny of irrelevance, "an attempt by the individual to escape from the rush and the turmoil of the momentary by putting on the brakes of some inhibition or by fixing some idea." Thus "what appears as a disease is actually an attempt to become healthy again."

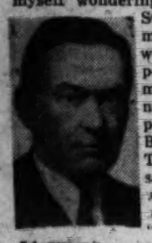
Modern education affords an effective preparation for the schizophrenic universe. Studies are no longer "knitted into the web of context," but each subject is made to seem "a world in itself," and Dr. Picard finds it to be more than coincidence that "Germany, the land of the greatest disjointedness, was also the land of the 'best schools.'" The modern disease is also faithfully reflected in the fantastic irrelevancies of contemporary art and literature, and has even found philosophic expression in the existentialism of Heidegger and Sartre. All this helps to explain why the artists and scientists of Germany found it so easy to accept nazism and to subscribe to its crimes. "The inner life of these men was completely dissolved in a surging turmoil of a thousand emotions and thoughts. . . . As a man's inner life begins to react according to the laws of physics, it becomes congenial to chaos. . . . In this realm Hitler can be expurgated only by some even bigger noise."

Hitlerism, then, is the translation of psychological disintegration into an objective and visible reality. Hitler, says Dr. Picard, was a psychological necessity. "This one pre-eminently visible and distinct figure corresponded to the vagueness and confusion of the human masses . . . as the positive print corresponds to the negative. It belonged to them, it could not have developed without them . . . The seemingly impossible had now become possible; the individual was no longer lost in his disjointedness. Through Hitler the senselessness of disjointedness seemed to make sense; one no longer had to be ashamed of one's own disjointedness." For this reason it is the gravest mistake to suppose that Hitlerism will not return in some other place under some other name and with another set of catchwords. It is again the very irrelevancy of the Nazi cruelties that distinguishes them from those, for example, Caligua or Nero or Genghis Khan, lifting them out of all human dimensions and making them seem the more horrible. It was a purely mechanical cruelty produced by an apparatus in charge of a man who resembled "a pedantic postoffice clerk," meaning of course Himmler, and which, by a slight adjustment of the dial, could also be made to produce Bach concerts or child welfare programs.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Diplomatic Boondoggling



THE OTHER DAY while reading the newspaper reports of a speech by Mr. Bullitt I found myself wondering what Joseph Stalin would make of it. It was from Stalin's point of view a most extraordinarily flattering picture that Mr. Bullitt painted. There is a man, said Mr. Bullitt, who will "eventually" mobilize "all the resources of Europe and Asia against us." He will "organize" 450 million Chinese. He will organize 350 million Moslems and Hindus of India. He will organize all the Arabs. He will organize all the French, Italians, Germans, Poles, Scandinavians. He will organize them into "overwhelming masses of men and machines."

Lippmann

Stalin is, in short, at once Caesar, Napoleon, Hitler, Ghenghis Kahn the Great Mogul, and the biggest Manchu of them all. If Mr. Bullitt's estimate of Stalin's ability is even approximately correct, when we are dealing not with a man but with superman himself.

THE PURPOSE of this kind of hysterical agitation is, presumably, to rouse the country and to persuade it to give money, arms, and men to Chiang Kai-shek and to everyone else in Asia and Europe who is struggling with Communists. We cannot afford, I believe, to let ourselves be rattled by this kind of agitation. It can lead only to the squandering of our wealth, our power, and our influence in an immense diplomatic disaster.

For the American people are not rich enough, the United States does not have the troops, and it does not have the political influence, required to intervene decisively and effectively all over Asia and all over Europe. The practical result of the kind of policy Mr. Bullitt is agitating for would be to entangle us at so many places, commit us irrevocably in so many widely separated conflicts, that we would lack the resources and the energy to be successful anywhere. That is not foreign policy but diplomatic boondoggling of which, considering the results in Korea and in Greece, we have had quite enough.

THE DIFFERENCE between Mr. Marshall's foreign policy and what preceded it is that Mr. Marshall has been acting on the strategic principle that a nation must concentrate its effort at the point where the greatest results can be obtained. In his China policy and in his European policy Mr. Marshall has been seeking to correct the error, which we had fallen into, of dispersing our effort on secondary objectives while we neglected our primary objectives.

Mr. Marshall has had, of course, to carry on as best he could the commitments which he inherited. But the policy which, quite justly, bears his name—the Marshall Plan—calls for a concentration of American effort at that point on the face of the earth where our civilization is most deeply threatened, and where on the other hand, there are the greatest opportunities for the recovery and the revival of our civilization. That point is not China. It is not the Middle East. It is not the Balkan peninsula. It is in the British Commonwealth, in France, in Scandinavia, in the Benelux countries, and in Italy.

IT IS there that the struggle will be won or lost, in the advanced countries, not in the backward ones. It will take our utmost effort to succeed. But if we entangle ourselves in many other places, we shall not have the resources that are necessary if we are to succeed. We shall have made the catastrophic mistake of trying to do so many things that we do none of them successfully.

18 Rail Unions Form Political Action League

By the United Press

The presidents of 18 railroad brotherhoods yesterday organized "Railway Labor's Political League" to inform their 1,250,000 members of each Congressman's record on labor issues and to get out the railroad vote in next year's general election.

With the CIO and the AFL already seeking $1 contributions from their 13,600,000 members to defeat legislators who voted for the Taft-Hartley Labor Act, the projected brotherhoods campaign could swell to 20 million dollars the fund which organized labor hopes to throw into the 1948 campaign.

Brotherhood officials indicated that they, too, would adopt the voluntary contribution system to keep within the Taft-Hartley Act, which outlaws use of union dues for political purposes.

Would Give Voting Records

The brotherhoods did not say outright that they would gun for Taft-Hartley Act proponents, but the preamble to the by-laws of their new league states that the organization was formed "to encourage railway workers to more fully and effectively exercise their right to vote" and to inform them:

1. Of the attitude of candidates for public office toward the social and economic problems of railway workers.

2. Of the voting records, statements and other actions of candidates for public office in matters which involve the interests of such workers.

3. Of the opinions of various railway labor organizations with respect to the qualifications of such candidates and "to do such things as may be deemed proper to fully inform railway workers as to the qualifications of such candidates."

A. E. Lyon, executive secretary of the Railway Labor Executives Association, who was elected league chairman, emphasized that all contributions from railway workers would be "voluntary."

He said the brotherhoods took no position on any candidates, nor was indorsement of any presidential candidate discussed.

Not represented in the new league are the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, headed by A. F. Whitney, and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, headed by Alvanely Johnston.

Both organizations, however, have their own political action programs. Whitney broke with President Truman two years ago over antistrike legislation growing out of the national railroad strike, but recently announced that he would support Mr. Truman if he runs for reelection next year.

C. & O. Stops Advertising Contributions

By the United Press

The Chesapeake & Ohio Railway Co., announced yesterday that it has canceled further contributions to the advetising budget of the Eastern Railroad Presidents Conference because its policies tend to "injure labor-management relations."

Board chariman Robert R. Young sent identical letters to leaders of all railroad labor arganizations advising them of the action.

"It seems to us," he wrote, "that the solution of the railroads' problems is not in antagonizing labor, but in working shoulder to shoulder with labor in improving the financial, physical and human assets of the railroads."

Young did not go into detail, but he presumably referred, among other things, to recent newspaper advertisements condemning the alleged "feather-bedding" practice of railway labor unions.

Young has been a continual thorn in the side of other railroad managements in recent years. He withdrew the C. & O. lines from the Association of American Railroads more than ayear ago, denouncing it as a "has-been outfit" and saying his company believed the $250,000 paid annually in AAR dues could "better be spent by ourselves."

The carriers were grantad a temporary 10 per cent hike early in October pending a final decision on their over-all request for a 27 per cent boost.

Last week the roads asked another 3 per cent to cover recent wage increases to two operating brotherhood and anticipated adjustments for three others.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph Alsop

Turning Point In London

LONDON, DEC. 7.—There is a kind of tense, unspoken drama in the air of London at the moment. At Lancaster House, the wranglings of the Foreign Ministers make it daily more apparent that the formal division of the world is about to occur. The morning papers, bringing news of France and Palestine, daily proclaim the magnitude of the burden the United States would have to shoulder to meet the Soviet challenge alone in the divided world ahead. And here, meanwhile, in the ancient government offices along Whitehall, in the coal fields, and in the industrial cities of the north, the question of the British future is being decided by the British people.

For Americans, this is a vital question. If Britain continues to lose strength, as she has been losing strength continuously since the end of the war, the whole task of meeting the Soviet challenge will fall squarely upon us in every region of the world, from the Baltic to the China Sea. Under the circumstances, it is fortunate that Britain at last seems to be rounding the postwar corner.

OUTWARDLY, things are worse than last year. To be sure, the grim and battered drabness of London is now here and there relieved by a little new paint, which gives the effect of the first hesitant buds of a very late, very cold spring, but rations are lower than a year ago. Queues are longer, people look more shabby and seem less optimistic, the simplest, most ordinary pleasures of life are more expensive and harder to come by. Underneath this depressing surface, however, three major events are at last beginning to take shape, which by this spring, should give the British people far better grounds for hope than they have had before.

First, the postwar slump in workers' output seems to be coming to an end. In every country, after every major war, this slackening of effort invariably occurs. It is natural that it should, since the stimulus of self-preservation is suddenly removed from men and women who have overdriven themselves for years. Recovery is generally automatic, but until this fall there was a big question in Britain whether the workers would really recover at all. The circumstances of their lives were hard; few prizes could be offered for increased effort. There seemed to be no reason why they should ever begin again to make the same expenditure of energy as before the war.

That doubt has now been largely laid to rest by the crucial figures on coal output. In 1938, production in the mines was 1.14 tons per man shift. At the beginning of this year, it was only 1.03 tons. But in November, manshift production in the mines rose to 1.12 tons. This winter there is every reason to hope that the effort of the British workers will return to and perhaps surpass the prewar normal. It speaks volumes for the determination of the British people that this should be happening while the conditions of life have actually deteriorated.

SECOND, while the workers are getting down to business, the government seems to be doing the same thing. On the one hand, the necessity of limited national commitments has been faced. At the end of the war, with severely reduced resources, Britain attempted to do twice as much as ever before. An unprecedented program of internal reconstruction was combined with an immeasurably greater military effort (forced on her by the Soviet Union) than Britain had ever before made in peacetime. Both these forms of effort have now been cut down, although perhaps not so far as may be necessary in the long run.

Meanwhile, the labor government has been putting its own house in order. The disastrous Emmanuel Shinwell was some time ago removed from the crucial post of organizer of coal production, and now, by a strange accident, Dr. Hugh Dalton has retired from the exchequer. He has not gone without doing harm. With a strong assist from our Treasury, and an even stronger one from the Bank of England, Dalton has the major responsibility for wasting $1,200,000,000 on convertibility. The loss leaves Britain in a temporarily desperate financial situation. But the replacement of Dalton by the brilliantly able Sir Stafford Cripps, and the integration of the whole national economic effort under Cripps' direction, give hope of better things in the future.

Finally, with the British workers and British government getting down to business, it is most important of all that the United States is also getting down to business. The embryo pattern of economic organization for the non-Soviet world can be dimly discerned in the Marshall Plan. At the same time, the Marshall Plan will at last begin to provide the new capital which Britain so urgently needs. Without the Marshall Plan, the British cannot pull through. The present program may prove to be no more than a beginning but the fact that the beginning has been made at least offers the British (and therefore, indirectly, ourselves) a way out of what would otherwise have been proved a dead-end street.

LET US MAKE no mistake about it. Before we can relax our own efforts, there will be many bad times to get through. Here in Britain, Dr. Dalton's financial errors are likely to result in further ration cuts this winter. There is also a grave possibility, if the Marshall Plan is passed too late, that there will be another run on the British treasury.

The prospect of ration cuts is already driving the Left Wing group in the Labor Party to urge economy overseas. If we do not grasp the need to maintain our partner in health and strength, we must be prepared for troop withdrawals from still more important key areas, including even Germany, on the pattern of the withdrawal from Greece. As for another run on the Birtish treasury, it would bring the British Commonwealth down in ruins, and leave us facing the Soviet Union to all intents alone. In short, the British people and the British government are doing their end of the job with a nerve and a willingness to tighten their belts that any foreigner must admire. The real question here is whether we in America, in our own hard-headed, cold-blooded interests, will do our share of the job wisely, generously and in time.

Experts See Boom Lasting Through 1948

By the United Press

Boom conditions will continue next year in almost every American industry, the Commerce Department reported yesterday, but it added that the outlook is subject to upsets by the international situation.

Department experts disclaimed any attempt to make a forecast for 1948, but on the whole their report on commodity trends was optimistic.

Citing steel as an example, their report said that demand will continue high and that there are prospects the current scarcity will be relieved to some extent by increased production facilities. But it also said that getting more steel will depend on cracking the bottleneck in scrap iron and coke.

Lead Scarce Over World

The department sees a "disturbing" situation in the copper and brass mill industry which may require Government controls. But it looks for more stability in aluminum and megnesium. It added that lead, which is a global scarcity, will continue to command an "inordinately high" price.

Zinc will be on an "even keel" but there is no prospect of normal tin supplies before 1950.

The department said that passenger-car production this year will top 3,500,000 and that the outlook for 1948 is five million cars ahd one million trucks. Truck production this year is estimated at 1,200,000.

The department also sees a record level of farm machinery production.

USES Figures On 60,000,000 Jobs in 1948

By the United Press

Robert C. Goodwin, director of the United States Employment Service, predicted yesterday that employment in 1948 again will hit the "dream" mark of 60 million jobs.

Goodwin said his "best information" is that national employment will hover around record levels most of next year. He said that farm labor will be scarce, but the employment service is planning a drive to recruit agricultural workers.

In this connection, the Government has reached a new agreement with Mexico to permit the importation of more than 100,000 Mexicans for farm work next year.

Watson B. Miller, Commissioner of Immigration and Naturalization, said the agreement was reached last week in joint United States-Mexican conferences at El Paso, Tex. He said it soon would be announced by the State Department.

Miller said the agreement is an extension of a wartime practice begun in 1943. The old arrangement, however, limited the importation of Mexican labor to 100,000 annually. The new agreement will have no limitation.

Goodwin said "the demand for farm labor in 1948 probably will be the greatest in peacetime history."

Trenton, N. J., Dec. 7 (U.P.).—The State CIO convention after a bitter fight today called on all New Jersey local affiliates to eliminate Communist officers, after charging that Communists had interfered "in trade union affairs."

D. C. Printers Are Confident Agreement Can Be Reached

Confidence that an amicable settlement can be reached here between union printers and the Washington Publishers' Association was expressed yesterday at a special meeting of the Columbia Typographical Union.

Almost 600 printers, at one of the largest of their meetings ever held here, gathered at Pythian Temple to give a unanimous vote of confidence to their scale committee conducting contract negotiations with the publishers.

Douglas Davenport, head of the union scale committee and employe of The Washington Post, gave a report on negotiations with the publishers' representatives, a union spokesman said.

The negotiations have been continuing since the union's contract with the publishers' association, which includes all four Washington newspapers, expired on November 11.

Last union meeting with the publishers' representatives was on Wednesday, at which time the publishers announced they would call another meeting within a week when additional proposals would be submitted. Last week the publishers agreed to make retroactive to November 11 any agreement reached within 60 days.

NLRB Warns Builders, Unions On Jurisdictional Disputes

The National Labor Relations Board has asked the building industry and unions to develop an iron-clad system for settling jurisdictional disputes or face Government intervention it was revealed yesterday.

Heads of the AFL building trades unions have just completed a series of conferences here on the board's position. Groups of contractors are due to meet on the same issue soon. Some progress reportedly is being made.

Board Chairman Paul M. Herzog said it "is going to take time" to work out the techniques. He said Congress "evidently intends" in the Taft-Hartley Law that the board "should step into these situations only when the contesting parties do not succeed in adjusting their differences promptly by themselves."

"We are already doing what we can to encourage labor and employers in the building industry to devise effective methods to resolve their own difficulties," he said. "We are making it abundantly clear the reserve power of the Government is not dormant."

Under the Taft-Hartley Law, the board is given final authority to decide which union shall do what work. It is empowered to ask the Federal Courts to enforce such board decisions. Refusal to obey a court order backing up the board could mean jail sentence or fines for contempt.

Delinquency Curb Programs Outlined

Conference Issued 18 Booklets Giving Results of Study

The National Conference on Prevention and Control of Juvenile Delinquency urges action against juvenile delinquency at "the grass roots level" in its program just published by the Government Printing Office.

The Conference's findings and recommendations are included in 18 pamphlets discussing such phases as juvenile court laws and administration, case work, responsibility of church, school and the home.

The reports note the lack of uniformity in national, State and local approach to delinquency problems, and urges State and local conferences to be held as step toward co-ordination.

The parsimonious approach of some State and local governments toward juvenil edelinquency work is also criticized in the reports.

The 18 reports had their origin in the convening of the Conference at the call of Atty. Gen. Tom C. Clark in Washington a year ago.

In addition to the pamphlets, a handbook has been prepared on procedure for local conferences, and is available at Conference headquarters in the Department of Justice building.

Under 1868 Treaty

Navajos Ask 30 Millions From U. S.

By the United Press

Norman M. Littell, former Assistant United States Attorney General, announced yesterday that he would present claims against the Government for between 30 and 50 million dollars on behalf of the Navajo Indians of New Mexico.

The Navajos have retained Littell as their chief counsel in claims arising under their 1868 treaty with the Government. He said the suit would be based on alleged violations of the treaty.

"No matter how great the recovery from the Government might be after years of litigation," he said, "the recovery will still be inadequate to repair the damages to the Navajos. . . ."

President Truman already has sent Congress a special message on behalf of the Indians, stating they urgently need both emergency and long-range aid.

Littell said the chief target of his suit will be alleged failure of the Government to provide adequate educational facilities for the Indian children. He said the treaty pledged one teacher for every 30 children but, instead, there is no schooling whatsoever for 16,000 out of 24,000 children.

He said Interior Secretary J. A. Krug "inherited a generation of trouble," but should be given full credit for tackling the Navajo problem "bravely and vigorously."

Stassen Accuses Soviet of Blocking Europe Recovery

New York, Dec. 7 (AP).—Harold E. Stassen accused the Soviet Union today of "obviously trying to block the recovery of Europe and said the United States should not ship "one single machine or material to Russia that might become part of a war machine."

The former Minnesota Governor, a candidate for the 1948 Republican presidential nomination, said the United States sent more electrical machinery and apparatus to Russia this year than combined United States shipments of similar material to England and France.

Stassen spoke on a radio program during which he discussed his recent book, "Where I Stand."

After the program, Stassen told reporters the recent strikes in France and Italy were part of what he described as Soviet "obstructionist tactics."

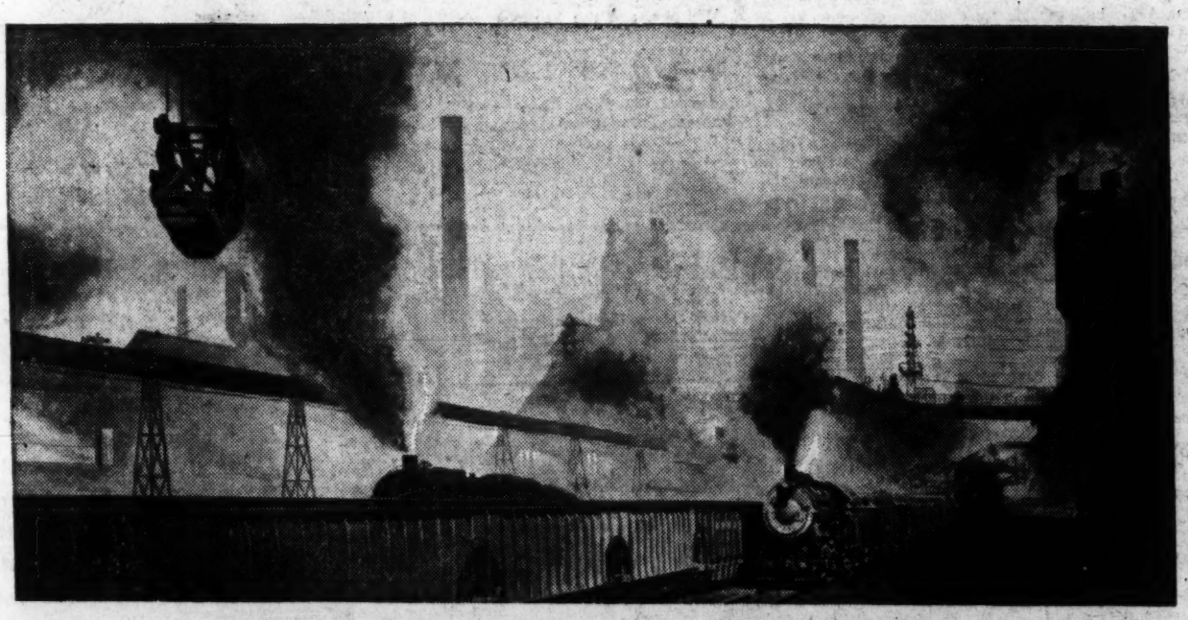
MORE STEEL IS ON THE WAY



ONE BILLION DOLLARS
Worth of New Plant Capacity Is Being Added

STEEL production in 1947 is breaking records.

More than 7,564,000 tons of ingots were turned out in October, which is more than the average monthly output during the peak year of World War II.

Total tonnage for this year will be 17,000,000 tons more than the record for any previous peacetime year. This has been accomplished despite shortages and poor quality of raw materials, particularly scrap and fuels.

The mills are going at high speed now, and more production is on the way.

Steel companies are spending more than one billion dollars to expand and improve their plants. Over 2,500,000 tons of new steelmaking capacity is being added.

Demand still is great and some shortages still exist. But production is catching up as rapidly as possible. Every month there is more steel for the things you want.

Skins Do Nothing Right, Lose Again, 35 to 10

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—Along about Wednesday of this week, the major leagues will take up the matter of the Pacific Coast's petition for big-league status, but that is pure trivia on the agenda. The Coast league is certain to get a brushoff. During their three-day meeting here, the majors are concerned chiefly with their own player deals.

POVICH

The plea of the Coast league will be given a polite hearing, and decision will be deferred, which will be tantamount to telling the Coast people to "come back some year after you've grown up." If it should come to a vote, the Coast league is doomed anyway.

The majors' reluctance to welcome the Coast league as a brother big league is understandable. The majors would lose the right to draft Coast league players at $10,000. Of course, its only money, otherwise known as legal tender, and therefore no more important than a bank account.

By the way, what am I saying?

An indication of how the big leagues are already reacting to the Coast leaguers' demand for major league rating was gleaned last week at Miami. The American Association voted 8-0 in opposition to the Coast's plan.

A MAJORITY of the minor leagues voted to approve the Coast's attempt to go big league, but not by the necessary three-quarter margin. The vote of the American Association in solid opposition was significant in that most of the AA clubs are major-league controlled and certainly did not ballot without consulting the home office.

Anyway, according to Clark Griffith, recognition of the Coast league as a major league at this time would stigmatize the caliber of big-league ball. "They're not even a good double A league," says Griffith. "I'd class them with my Charlotte club in the Class D Tri-State League. Only a couple of their towns are big enough to support big-league ball and pay big-league salaries. There aren't enough big-league players to go around now."

There can't be a third big league, according to Griffith, unless you have a three-league World Series, "and that's impossible," he says. "The fans in this country don't want any round-robin World Series. And if we did recognize a third big league, we ought to pick the best of the AAA leagues—the American Association or the International League."

MEANWHILE, GRIFFITH is more concerned with his own Washington club's problems. He arrives at the trading session tomorrow in his most desperate position in a decade, and virtually compelled to make some deals or resign himself to a second-division club in 1948. As the tally stands now, Griffith lacks an adequate second baseman, third baseman, shortstop and catcher, and he could use another outfielder.

The Nat's owner has placed himself squarely in the middle with his announced determination to trade off his only second baseman, Gerry Priddy. The Berardino deal with the Browns may have solved that position, but that one is now cold. It is suspected that Griffith is now seeking Bob Dillinger, good third baseman of the St. Louis club, but that will take a cash outlay of $100,000.

As trading material, Griffith is flourishing a pretty good pitcher, Early Wynn, and Wynn can command a great deal, particularly from the Yankees who are alarmed at the new strength of the Red Sox. Thus far, however, the Yankees have offered little except Hank Bauer, promising young outfielder from Kansas City. Griffith is insisting on one of the Yankee infielders in addition, either Bill Johnson or Bobby Brown.

The Nats' bosses at this point are admitting to no deals brewing, but there are. They admit they have received offers from four clubs—the Yankees, the Indians, the Athletics and the Browns. The Yankees and Athletics want a pitcher, the Indians want Stan Spence and the Browns want cash.

ORDINARILY, Griffith is reluctant to trade a solid pitcher like Wynn, but for years he has taken a dim view of Wynn's disposition toward pudginess. The weight of his pitchers is a fetish with Griffith. That's why he gave up on Dutch Leonard, only to rue it when Leonard, as his new svelte self, won 17 games for the Phillies last season.

From the Athletics, Griffith is demanding Outfielder Sam Chapman. He's been after Chapman for three years now to fill the need for a right-handed hitter with power. Griffith's outfield, as it is now stacked, with Stan Spence, Buddy Lewis and Gil Coan, is unanimously left-handed and he fears the consequences.

A deal with the Indians for Spence appears contingent on Griffith's success in landing Chapman from the Athletics. After that he could talk terms with Cleveland on the basis of Spence for Catcher Jim Hegan. Two deals like that would make the Nats look much less unsightly.

Cards Score Six Times In Last Half, Win, 45-21

Philadelphia, Dec. 7 (AP).—The Chicago Cardinals surged to six second-half touchdowns today for a smashing 45-21 victory over the Philadelphia Eagles before 34,342 and threw both Eastern and Western Division races of the National Football League into a last-game scramble for the championships.

The Cardinals, knocking Philadelphia from the Eastern Division leadership, climbed into a deadlock with the Chicago Bears in the Western race, which will be settled next Sunday in the Windy City title match.

Eagles Lead at Half

The first half ended with the Eagles in front 7-3, but in one ripping drive of 79 yards, negotiated in 11 plays, the Cards wiped out that lead. Charley Trippi bulled the last 3 yards and Pat Harder placekicked the point. That put the Chicago team ahead—to stay.

95	Yards lost by penalties	119

Philadelphia started out as if it would make the game a runaway, hitting pay dirt with an 86-yard drive from the opening kickoff. Van Buren lugged it over. John Patton converted.

The first Cardinal scoring drive started from the Eagles' 29, where Trippi was dumped after a 21-yard punt return, and ground to a halt on the 9. Pat Harder dropped back to the 14 and booted a field goal over the crossbar.

Trippi Goes 62 Yards

There was no denying the Cards' scoring surge as the third period got under way and before it ended they had tallied twice. The big spark was Trippi's 62-yard gallop with a Christman pass.

A desperate Eagle attempt to come back went awry soon after the final period opened, with Mac Kutner clutching a Tompson pass that had been tipped by Neill Armstrong. Mal ran 56 yards down the sideline to score, and tallied again 2 minutes later on a 21-yard pass from Christman.

The Cards came back with a 60-yard scoring march from the kickoff, then in the gathering dusk Trippi snatched a Mackrides pass and rambled 69 yards for another six-pointer. That was quickly matched by the Eagles on a 32-yard pass.

Bears Upset By Rams, 17-14, After Leading 14-0

Chicago, Dec. 7 (AP).—The Los Angeles Rams erased a two-touchdown deficit today to defeat the Chicago Bears, 17-14, snapping an eight-game winning streak for the Bears, who slipped into a first-place tie with the Chicago Cardinals in the Western Division of the National Football League.

Bob Waterfield, who passed to both Ram touchdowns and booted the field goal margin of difference, shot a 20-yard toss to End Red Hickey midway in the fourth period for the clinching score.

The defeat, witnessed by 34,215 fans in a misty rain at Wrigley Field, made next Sunday's finale between the Bears and Cardinals at Wrigley Field a showdown for the Western title.

The Cardinals defeated Philadelphia, 45-21, today to deadlock the Bears at eight victories and three defeats.

Bears Score in First

The Bears scored both of their touchdowns in the first quarter for a 14-0 lead, but were held scoreless thereafter, being stopped on the four in the last period following a 71-yard interception return by Bob Fenimore.

The Rams drew blood in the second period when Waterfield completed a 40-yard pass to Dante Magani and then a few minutes later booted an 18-yard field goal to leave Los Angeles trailing, 14-10, at half-time.

After a scoreless third period, the Rams pulled the game out of the fire by marching 73 yards in five plays to register on Waterfield's 20-yard shot to Hickey, who made a brilliant catch in the corner of the end zone.

The Bears looked headed for their ninth straight victory as they struck for their two touchdowns in the first period, moving easily despite a quagmired field.

Luckman Fuels Drives

The first Bear touchdown came on a 68-yard drive as Don Klindt smashed over from the one-foot line, after Sid Luckman completed a 52-yard toss to George McAfee.

Three straight successful Luckman tosses gave the Bears their second touchdown, produced on a 34-yard grab by Ken Kavanaugh.

Waterfield converted after both Los Angeles touchdowns and Ray McLean added both points after the Bear touchdowns.

Luckman completed 20 of 34 passes for 286 yards, but Waterman, who connected on 13 of 29 tosses for 182 yards, was the better marksman when the chips were down.

Crowley Ends Grid Career, Quits Rockets

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 7 (U.P.).—Coach James H. (Sleepy Jim) Crowley today ended a colorful career in football by announcing he was quitting as an executive of the Chicago Rockets, pro football team in the All-America Conference.

"I'm retiring from football altogether after today's game with the Los Angeles Dons," Crowley said. Up to today, the Rockets had won only one game in 13 conference contests this season.

Crowley signed up two weeks ago to take a position with Paul Bell, Inc., New York export-import firm, and plans to go to New York soon to learn the nature of his new duties.

* * * *

CROWLEY came to the Rockets a year ago as principal member of a trio of boyhood friends who purchased the Chicago football club. With him in the venture were William S. Toohey, Chicago businessman, and John Brogan, Green Bay, Wis., industrialist.

What disposition Crowley would make of the 51 per cent of the Rocket stock he reportedly owned was not revealed.

"I'm getting out of football," he repeated when asked if he was quitting his three jobs with the Rockets as head coach, general manager and executive vice president.

* * * *

WHETHER the disastrous season of the Rockets influenced Crowley's decision to quit football was not disclosed.

"Football has been good to me but I think it is time to get into another business," was his only explanation for his action.

When he came to the Rockets last December, he resigned as commissioner of the All-America Conference. He was appointed to that post in April, 1945, about the time he returned from a Pacific assignment with the Navy.

His football career of more than a quarter of a century started in Green Bay where he played high school football.

In 1922, Crowley became one of the famous four horsemen of Notre Dame, teaming in the backfield with Elmer Layden, Harry Stuhldreher and Don Miller.

Only Stuhldreher remains in football, at Wisconsin.

Governali Tosses Four Touchdowns For Giants

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

New York, Dec. 7.—The sixth anniversary of the sneak attack on Pearl Harbor is a day that will live in futility for the Washington Redskins.

An air attack, appropriately enough, by the New York Giants, smashed the Braves of Marshal Institute, 35-10, today before the smallest crowd to witness a game in the Polo Grounds this season—25,594.

It was just no contest. The Giants, worst team in the league on their record, sewed it up with two touchdowns in the first 11 minutes of play and floated in to their second triumph in 11 games.

Already boasting its most horrible season in history, Washington added to its laurels with its eighth loss.

Paul Governali was mostly to blame, what blame the Redskins could spare from themselves. Paul threw four touchdown passes while his more highly advertised opponent in the pitching department, Slingin' Sammy Baugh, threw none.

As a matter of fact, Baugh threw very little of anything. He completed 14 out of 34 tosses, with a pair intercepted, in one of the worst exhibitions he's ever given. It just wasn't his day.

But Sammy continued his record-breaking just the same. His 34 aerials brought his total for the season to 313, 18 more than has ever been thrown in one season before.

Of course Governali, the Giant's acquistion from the Boston Yankees, had some help in the touchdown passing department. Ray Poole and Howie Livingston each caught two, their scores coming on plays that covered 27, 53, 42 and 6 yards.

To top it off Art Faircloth, former Anacostia High ace of Washington, fresh up from the Giants' Jersey City farm club, hurled a 12-yard touchdown pass to George Cheverko in the final period.

And on the end of all five scores was an extra point by the old master, Ken Strong.

Saens Scores

The Redskins' only touchdown came in the final period when it mattered not at all. Baugh had retired after seeing his only pass in the fourth frame collected by Frank Reagan.

Jim Youel was doing the tossing after the count was 35-3, and fans were beginning to leave the park.

On the kickoff tackle Ernie Williamson made a great return of the ball to the Giant 48, and Youel's first heave was good for a first down on the 35.

An 18-yard run by Youel when he couldn't find a receiver left the 'Skins on the 17 and after one unsuccesful attempt, Youel connected with Eddie Saenz who was clear on the four.

Dick Poillon kicked the extra point just as he'd booted a 17-yard five goal earlier in the second quarter.

That was when the Redskins still had a vague chance to win. Governall had clicked on his two payoff passes in the first quarter and

Steelers Clinch Tie for Title With 17-7 Victory Over Yanks

Pittsburgh, Dec. 7 (AP).—The Pittsburgh Steelers clinched a tie for the Eastern Division title in the National Football League today by plowing through mud, rain and fog to a 17-7 victory over the Boston Yanks as 31,398 looked on in a game finished under floodlights.

The Steelers led all the way, scoring 10 points in the first period and adding an insurance touchdown in the final period.

Pittsburgh's victory, coupled with the Philadelphia Eagles' loss to the Chicago Cards, put the Steelers back in first place in the divisional race by a half game.

The Steelers completed their regular season today, but Philadelphia has a chance to deadlock the Eastern title race by winning their finale against Green Bay next week.

Playing without their offensive ace, Johnny Clement, the Steelers went ahead to stay in 7:46 of the first period when Tackle Jack Wiley blocked a punt by Howard Maley on the Boston 8 and Johnny Mastrangelo picked up the ball back of the goal line for a Pittsburgh touchdown.

A field goal by Joe Glamp, the Steelers' kicking specialist, from the Boston 30 in 13:30 of the opening quarter gave Pittsburgh the 3 points needed to win but Steve Lach bucked over from 1 foot out in 5:25 of the fourth period to add an insurance touchdown. This score climaxed a 55-yard Steeler drive.

Orlando Ends In 3-Way Tie

Orlando, Fla., Dec. 7 (AP).—Two members of the Ryder Cup team, Jimmy Demaret of Ojai, Calif., and Herman Keiser of Akron, Ohio, and Wilmington, Del., Professional Dave Douglas tied at 274 for first place in the 72-hole Orlando golf tournament today.

They will play off for the title tomorrow at 1:30 p. m. over the 6454-yard Dubsdread Country Club course.

Demaret and Keiser, two of a trio tied at the 54-hole mark, had two-under par rounds of 69 today, while Douglas fired a 66 to get into the playoff.

The best score by an amateur was Frank Stranahan's 279. The Toledo entrant shot 69 today.

Otto Greiner, Baltimore pro, added a 70 to his 219 for a 289 total, while Washington's Lew Worsham, shooting his second straight 77, dropped further behind with 295.

2 Skate Teams Win Crowns

World champions were crowned in the mixed pair and dance team divisions last night at the National Arena.

The Belgian team of Elvire Collin and Fernend Leemans was adjudged the top mixed pair. Runner-up was the combination of Jean Phethean and Kenneth Byrne of England.

Grittna Muller and Karl Peter, Switzerland, were third; Joan Atkinson and G. Donald Stirling, England, fourth; Charlotte Ludwig and Jude Cull, United States, fifth; June Henrich and Reggie Opie, United States, sixth, and Nancy Reuter and William Reed, United States, seventh.

B. Killip Gallagher and Fred Ludwig, United States, won dance team honors. Phethean and Byrne were second; Patricia McIlwain and William Wiecker, United States, third; Charlotte Perkins and Walter Clancy, United States, fourth, and Atkinson and Stirling, fifth.

Majors Ready For Trade Talk

New York, Dec. 7 (AP).—Reports that the Dixie Walker-to-Pittsburgh deal is about to be announced by Brooklyn preceded the main contingent of the major leaguers into town for the winter meetings today, following the official word that Leo Durocher has been rehired as Dodger manager.

With the 16 managerial jobs now fully manned, the owners are expected to engage in a busy player-swapping session, the groundwork for which was laid in Miami.

Actual league meetings open Tuesday and continue Wednesday leading up to the joint session under Commissioner A. B. Chandler Thursday. Most of the official news will come from that final conclave.

Clarence Rowland, president of the Pacific Coast League, again will present his plea for recognition as a provisional major league at the joint meetings. President Ford Frick of the National League admits "we promised to give Rowland an answer in December" but otherwise refused to discuss the Coast situation.

Other matters to come before the majors are consideration of the St. Louis' Browns plea for unlimited night baseball and further discussion of a college coaches' plan to outlaw signing of college players until their class has graduated.

That high school ruling of Chandler's, formalized by official communiques from his Cincinnati office, probably will be placed in the rule books. So will a similar restriction against signing American Legion junior players.

Der Maxie Wins One

Hamburg, Germany, Dec. 7 (AP). Max Schmeling, former World Heavyweight Champion, won a decision over Hans Joachim Dreagestein of Berlin tonight in a 10-round contest. Schmeling weighed 192 and his foe 205.

Buffalo, 49ers Stage Late Rallies, But Wind Up, 21-21

San Francisco, Dec. 7 (AP).—Scoring two touchdowns apiece in a thrill-filled final period, the Buffalo Bills and the San Francisco 49ers battled to a 2-21 tie today in their wind-up football game of the All-American Football Conference.

A crowd of 22,943, held down because of rain that preceded the contest, saw the two elevens go through a scoreless first period and then each score a touchdown in the second quarter.

San Francisco racked up the first points on the scoreboard when Southpaw Frankie Albert passed seven yards to Left End Nick Susemoff, who caught the ball in the end zone.

Ratterman Connects

Buffalo came back on the next series to move the ball 70 yards and to tie the count. With the ball on the 49er 7-yard line, Ratterman connected with Alton Coppage, right end, who snagged the ball in the end zone.

Buffalo broke the deadlock in the last quarter after grabbing the ball on San Francisco's 12-yard line. Fullback Lon Tomasetti recovered a fumbled lateral. Two line bucks moved the ball to the 8-yard line. Then Ratterman passed over the goal line to Gibson again, and the Bills held a 14-7 advantage.

49'ers Retaliate

San Francisco came back with a 61-yard thrust to even the count with Sub Right Halfback Ned Mathews going around left end for the last 2 yards.

Mathews gave the crowd one of its many thrills by intercepting a pass by Ratterman to return it 35 yards for a touchdown. Shortly afterward, with San Francisco leading, 21-14, and only a few minutes to play, Buffalo tied the count on an 80-yard drive in which Ratterman again was the moving force. His touchdown toss went 16 yards to Sub Right End Lafayette King.

Crown Involved In Both 'Robberies'

London, Dec. 7 (U.P.).—Peter Wilson, the only British sports writer who covered the Joe Louis-Joe Walcott fight Friday, cabled his newspaper, The Sunday Pictorial, that the verdict was the "greatest robbery since Colonel Blood stole the crown jewels in 1871.

Walcott Gets Welcome Home

Camden, N. J., Dec. 7 (U.P.).—Jersey Joe Walcott, Camden's most prominent citizen since he nearly dethroned heavyweight Champion Joe Louis Friday night, will be given an official welcome by his home town tomorrow.

Although Joe spent the weekend at home here and went to the Merchantville Baptist Church this morning, he will be "officially" welcomed when he returns to Camden tomorrow afternoon, after attending a meeting of the New York Boxing Commission at 11 a. m.

Lujack, 2 Teammates Play in East-West Tilt

San Francisco, Dec. 7 (AP).—Johnny Lujack and two of his Notre Dame teammates today agreed to play with the Eastern team in the annual New Year's Day East-West football game here.

Besides the stellar passing back, the other Notre Dame players invited are the first string tackles, George Connor and Z. Czarobiski.

Champion Browns Take It Out On Colts Again, This Time by 42 to 0 Before 20,574

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 7.—Next to acquiring a football team, the chief ambition of the Baltimore Colts in 1948 will be to score on the Cleveland Browns.

They tried it for the third time this season here today and the closest they got was to the 12-yard line. The Brownies, however, had no trouble whatsoever, scoring six touchdowns and as many extra points for a 42-0 victory in the All-America Conference finale for both clubs.

What little satisfaction the Colts could derive out of their first season in the AAC was to be found in the stadium today where 20,574 turned out for the get-away clash.

This brought the season's total home attendance for seven games to 198,574.

From the opening whistle to the game-ending gun, fired with the stadium lights ablaze, it was strictly a Cleveland show.

They scored the first time they gained possession of the ball in the first quarter and called their shots the rest of the way.

The AAC champs, who defend their crown against the New York Yankees next Sunday, produced two touchdowns in the first period, one in the second, two more in the third and got another one in the last period just to keep their hand in.

Quarterback Otto Graham, Northwestern's contribution to the powerized Browns, contributed three touchdown passes to Cleveland's 12th victory of the year.

Graham, whose 25 tosses for TD's top the AAC with plenty to spare, had able assistance from Ed (Special Delivery) Jones, Dante Lavelli, Lewis Mayne and Bill Lund, the touchdown makers.

Jones scored twice, as did Lund while Mayne and Lavelli crossed the line once each. Fullback Marion Motley, the 245-pound battering ram, added plenty to the Brownies' varied attack with bull-like smashes through the Colt line.

The Browns paraded 83 yards for their first score, climaxing the drive when Graham lobbed a 21-yard pass to Jones. Lou (The Toe) Groza made it 7-0 with a perfect placement, one of the six he kicked during the lopsided scuffle.

Touchdown No. 2, also in the first period, required only 51 yards. Graham again wrapped up the drive with an eight-yard peg to Lavelli.

With Graham hitting his receivers with monotonous precision and Motley and Jones ripping the Baltimore line to pieces, the Browns drove 91 yards for the third tally, Jones going over from a yard out just before the half ended.

Graham made his final scoring

10-Yard Kick Comes With Minute Left

Brooklyn, Dec. 7 (AP).—Harvey Johnson's 10-yard field goal in the final minute of play gave the New York Yankees a 20-17 edge over the lowly Brooklyn Dodgers who had thrilled 14,166 Ebbets Field customers by staying with the Eastern Division champs of the All-American Conference for 59 minutes.

The end came with only 32 seconds of play remaining when Johnson booted his seventh field goal of the season.

With Buddy Young and Spec Sanders doing most of the carrying, the Yanks had moved from their own 46 to the Brooks' 4 before Johnson went back to the 10 to add the three winning points.

Brooklyn Ties It Up

Bottling up the Yankee stars, who meet Cleveland at the Yankee Stadium next Sunday in the championship playoff the Dodgers pulled up from a 17-3 deficit to tie the score in the third period.

Bob (Hunchy) Hoernschemeyer sped around right end from the 5 and Phil Martonivich, who also kicked a field goal in the first period, added his second extra point. Dub Jones had scored the earlier Brooklyn touchdown in the second quarter.

Sanders had his worst day of the season, carrying the ball 16 times for 48 yards and completing only two of eight passes for 29 yards but he passed for the first touchdown, a 19-yard toss to End Bruce Alford.

Lloyd Cheatham picked up the New Yorker's other touchdown in the second period.

Johnson booted a field goal in the second quarter before his game-winning boot. He also added two extra points.

FIGHTS TONIGHT—Frank Sweeney goes after his eighteenth knockout victory in 25 fights tonight when he battles Bee Bee Washington, former District middleweight champion, at Turner's

Bee Bee Meets Sweeney at Arena Tonight

Bee Bee Washington and Frank Sweeney, two leading local middleweights, meet tonight in the 10-round feature at Turner's Arena.

It will be a case of Bee Bee the boxer attempting to regain his former form against Sweeney the puncher. In his last outing against Frank Lacey, Bee Bee looked rusty as he lost to the Baltimore fighter.

However, it was the Bee's first bout in two months, and tonight he should be his old jabbing self.

Sweeney Hard Hitter

In Sweeney, Washington will be up against a hard hitter who has won 17 of his 24 professional matches to date by the knockout route. The former National AAU titleholder has dropped but three matches.

One of these defeats was at the hands of Ken Stribling. That loss was the only one suffered by Sweeney at the Arena. Strangely enough, Bee Bee likewise has lost only once at Turner's, against Lacey in his last match.

Bee Bee 8-5 Favorite

Three years Sweeney's senior, the clever boxing Washingtonian will have a wide edge on his well-set-up opponent. This has caused local odds makers to favor Bee Bee at 8-5.

In the five-round semifinal, Johnny Arduini, the Washington boy who did so well in the AAU tournament at Boston last year, will make his professional debut against Charlie Johnson of Philadelphia.

Other preliminaries pit heavyweights Billy Lanham and Leroy Kenney against one another in a five rounder. Bobby Suma meets Sonny Bunn and Jimmy Jeanette faces Skeeter Williams in the five-round openers, starting at 8:45.

Jacobs' Passes Give Packers 35-14 Win

Detroit, Dec. 7 (AP).—Going into the air for three of their five touchdowns, the Green Bay Packers scored in every period today, taking a 35 to 14 National Football League victory over the Detroit Lions before a chilled crowd of 14,055 fans.

Indian Jack Jacobs flipped two touchdown passes to End Clyde Goodnight and Bob Forte fired another to Nolan Luhn, all from inside the 10-yard line, as the Packers piled up a 35-0 lead before yielding two Detroit touchdowns in the final period.

Fritsch Scores one

Fullback Ted Fritsch plowed across from the two-yard line for another Packer score and Walt Schlinkman got the other, also on a 2-yard smash. Ward Cuff converted after all five scores as the Packers hung up their sixth victory in 11 games.

The Lions, closing their season in cold, rainy weather by absorbing their ninth defeat of the year as against three wins, marched 77 yards for their first touchdown with Bill Marguccl passing 6 yards to Ralph Heywood, who had slipped unnoticed out on the right flank.

Getting the ball on their own 33 a moment later, Detroit peeled off 67 yards in four plays, two of them passes, and sent Bob Westfall driving across from the 1-yard line Leroy Zimmerman converted both times.

DEAR FOLKS:

When the horse Prime Minister won last Saturday, the press box wit remarked "I don't want to cast any aspersions on the ability of that horse but he is by High Strung out of a mare named Needle." Would you say he was running without portfolio? After hearing the big fight on the radio and then noting the decision, horsemen say they will stick to racing. The jockey colony here is so heavily populated that a program could be conducted with a different rider on every horse. Pat Kelly, executive secretary of the Jockey's Guild, was a weekend visitor. Haven't we seen enough of the horse Happy Moose or are we waiting for another boy to get hurt? Harold Holland is doing a nice job of starting here which is not unusual. Milton Feldman, publicity director, writes he has arrived at Sunshine Park near Tampa, Fla. He is hoping the track will find the weather more in tune with the name "Sunshine" than was the case last year when rain fell during most of the meeting. Two more weeks here. See you on the rail.—BILL.

Walcott Has Small Chance In Plea Today

New York, Dec. 7 (AP).—It seems a crying shame, but it doesn't look like the effort of Jersey Joe Walcott's handlers to reverse Friday night's split decision in favor of Champion Joe Louis will get to first base.

Joe Webster, Walcott's manager, will appear before Eddie Eagan, chairman of the New York Boxing Commission, tomorrow morning, and claim the heavyweight title on the basis that Judge Frank Forbes' scorecard had Walcott ahead on points, 12 to 9, although he had Louis ahead on rounds, 8 to 6 with one even.

Forbes awarded the fight to Louis along with Judge Marty Monroe. The referee, Ruby Goldstein, gave the nod to Walcott who floored the champion twice.

Eagan pointed out that the rules of the New York State Commission give the judges discretionary power in all matters.

The rule states:

"It shall be discretionary with ring officials to award the contest to a boxer who has won a lesser number of rounds than his opponent only in cases where in the judgment of the officials said contestant has inflicted the greater amount of damage and has proven his definite superiority over the opponent, during the contest, and finished in a better physical condition."

To explain how fights are judged in New York State, under Eagan's point-scoring system, which became effective two years ago, the following are pertinent points from official instructions:

"The rules of boxing in New York State prescribe the method by which judges and referees shall mark their cards. They do this at the end of each round by marking W-L-E, W meaning win, L lose and E even. The rules state the boxer winning the greater number of rounds at the end of the contest shall be declared the winner. It also is stated that if each boxer wins anequal number of rounds, the decision may be a 'draw' or it may be awarded to the contestant in the better physical condition who has inflicted the greater amount of punishment. The rules also leave the power in the discretion of the officials to award a contest to the boxer who has the lesser number of rounds. This can only be done if he has done three things:

1. Inflicted the greater amount of damage.
2. Proven his superiority.
3. Finished in a better physical condition.

If the rounds won are even, the points as described below shall be added. The winner shall be the one with the most points. Should the points be even, the official shall determine the winner as the one in the better physical condition and explain it on his card.

According to the rules, the decisions of the referee and judges are based on four items evaluated in the following order:

1. Clean hits
2. Effective aggressiveness.
3. Defense
4. Ring generalship

It is also noted that sportsmanship should be taken into consideration by the officials and the condition of the boxer at the end of the bout.

The items listed do not have the same evaluation. Clearly, a man who hits his opponent and is aggressive throughout the contest is entitled to more credit than the one who is merely defensive.

Capitols, Bullets Clash Thursday

Washington's Capitols return to Basketball Association of America competition against the red-hot Western Division leading Baltimore Bullets in Baltimore Thursday night.

The Caps are trailing in the Western Division, while the Bullets have won nine of their last 11 starts—since losing their season's opener to the Caps here.

The Capitols are to oppose the Steamrollers in Providence, R. I., Saturday night and return to Uline Arena again against the Bullets a week from Wednesday night, December 17.

Busy Week Ahead for Area Teams

Big-time basketball makes its 1947 debut in Washington tonight when Georgetown's highly touted Hoyas entertain a strong Denver University quintet in the first game ever played at the National Guard Armory.

Coach Elmer Ripley, of Georgetown, expects to field one of the Nation's top teams this season, and has not been backward about saying so. The Hoyas have all of last year's starters intact, it is true.

But the Hoya schedule is one of the toughest ever slated by any team, so it will take better than a "good" team to compile an outstanding record.

Other Games This Week

On Thursday at the armory the Hoyas meet the powerful Loyola of Chicago five, led by its 6-ft., 8-inch center and high scorer Jack Kerris, and Saturday night Georgetown plays St. John's in Madison Square Garden, New York.

George Washington also has a pair of major games on tap, this week, meeting Virginia at Charlottesville Wednesday and playing host to VMI at the Armory Saturday night.

Maryland plays at Western Maryland Thursday and is at home to Loyola of Baltimore Friday, while American U. entertains Mt. St. Mary's Thursday and fast-stepping Muhlenberg on Saturday. Catholic U., in its only game of the week, visits (Loyola (Balt.) Saturday.

Denver Fast, Seasoned

Denver is the first of the tartars on the Hoya list. Coached by Ellison Ketchum, the Rocky Mountain boys are a fast, experienced squad.

The Pioneers downed mighty St. John's, 54-52, last week at Madison Square Garden and were so impressive that Ned Irish has already booked them again next season.

Leading the team is Ken Jastrow, a 5-foot 1-inch playmaker who is considered one of the best passers and ball handlers in the West. Jastrow is the key man, and as he goes, so go the Pioneers.

Hauser Pointmaker

The two leading scorers on the Denver team are Jack Hauser and Paul Hickey. Hauser, leading pointmaker in the Rocky Mountain region for the past two years, stands an inch over 6 feet.

Hickey, a sophomore, is the tallest of the invaders at 6 feet 3 inches. He shoots with either hand and is the leading rebound man on the squad.

Rounding out the first team are Leonard Alterman, oldest man on point of service, who was a member of the All-American AAU squad in 1943, and Bill Weimar, the team's second high scorer last season. Alterman and Weimar both are 6 feet 2 inches tall.

Game Starts at 8:45

Georgetown's starting five will comprise Capt. Andy Kostecka and Eddie Brembs at the forward posts, Ken Brown at center with Danny Kraus and Ray Corley holding down the guard positions.

The game will begin at 8:45. Fans can reach the Armory by taking a Lincoln Park street car at 14th and F sts., nw., to the end of the line.

Manor Golfer Scores 190-Yard Hole-in-One

L. D. Ritter sank a 190-yard hole-in-one using a No. 3 wood yesterday on the seventeenth hole at Manor Country Club.

Governali Pitches 4 Scores as Giants Win

the Redskins had finally staged a 54-yard march to the Giant 11.

They ran out of downs there, however, and Poillon kicked the 3-pointer that would have won if the Tribe had collected only two touchdowns later on.

They didn't. Their big boast was that they held the hosts scoreless until intermission. Then the Bears scored one in the third frame and two more in the fourth.

The Redskins came close to making themselves famous for the things they did wrong. A good indication of the way things were to go came the first time Washington was in possession. Livingston stole the ball from Bob Nussbaumer for an interception and from there on matters became progressively more unhappy.

It took Governali and Gene Roberts, the runner of the team, just five playes to score the first time with Livingston doing the receiving in the end zone and Nussbaumer as the "goat."

The next time New York had the ball it took just one play. Columbia Paul was back of his own 47 when he pitched to Livingston.

When the pair split up, Livingston had the ball and was touchdown bound, while Tood grasped a lot of chilly air.

As the first half progressed Hugh Taylor dropped a touchdown pass, and the Skins picked up two first downs in a march to the Giant 31, the whole thing going for naught on four straight misses by Baugh and his receivers.

In the third period, Washington opened with one of its prize marches to nowhere. From their 44 the Skins romped right down to the Giant 13—and lost the ball on downs.

The "killers" then were a 48-yard pass to Saenz, called back because the Redskins were clipping, and a touchdown pass that Nussbaumer caught as he dived just out of the end zone.

Again the Redskins threatened with a 30-yard advance but this time they fizzled at midfield when the fourth penalty for too much time in the huddle dropped them back on third down.

Poillon's kick out of bounds on the Giant 3 at this point was one of the features of the game.

George Wilde was the victim of Governali's 42-yard toss to Poole in the third, and in the fourth it was Jack Jenkins over whom Poole dived for a 6-yard touchdown catch.

From their 20 the Redskins tried one of the game's prizes shortly afterward. Youel hurled four straight incomplete passes and on the last one was accused of intentionally grounding the ball. Three plays later, after taking over on the 10, Faircloth clicked with Cheverko from two yards farther back.

Nobody was excited when the Redskins finally got six points all at once, midway of the closing period. They needed a small matter of four touchdowns.

Steelers Whip Boston, 17 to 7

the Yanks in the thick of the ball game, came in the second quarter after Frank (Boley) Dancewicz' 30-yard pass gave the visitors a first down on the Pittsburgh 13.

After a line play lost 1 and two passes fell incomplete, the Yanks bamboozled the Steelers on a fake field goal attempt which sent Joe Golding scampering 14 yards around right end for the touchdown. Frank Maznicki, who was the "kicker" in the fake with Golding supposedly holding, booted the extra point.

13 Colleges Still Unbeaten

New York, Dec. 7 (U.P.).—There were 13 teams today which didn't consider that number unlucky after all, because they were still undefeated and untied when the 1947 football season came to an end.

They ranged from mighty Notre Dame, which completed its first perfect season in 17 years with a 38-7 win over Southern California, down to some of the smallest crannies in the Nation.

By sections, the East and Midwest have the most perfect teams with five each. In the East, it's Penn State, Wesleyan, Conn., Princess Anne College of Maryland, and Montclair, N. J., Teachers and West Chester, Pa., Teachers.

In the Midwest, it's Missouri Valley, Notre Dame, Michigan, Denison, and Loras of Iowa.

The South has Jacksonville, Ala., Teachers, the Southwest boasts the Cameron, Okla., Aggies, and the Far West has Pepperdine, which wound up in the select circle after a 13 to 0 win over Loyola of Los Angeles Friday night.

contribution in the third period with a 40-yard flip to Mayne. Three minutes later sub-Quarterback Cliff Lewis got into the act with an 18-yard pass to Lund. That wound up the scoring for the third-period, but not for the game.

The Browns had one more touchdown in their system and they got it out early in the final quarter when Lund zig-zagged his way 53 yards to the goal.

Billy Hillenbrand, Frank Sinkwich and Ernie Case constituted Baltimore's anemic offense. Case was the leader of the trio, passing and diverting the attack as far as the Brown 12 in the third quarter. There, however, the Clevelanders dug in and took over.

U. S. Taxes to Take About $5000 Of 'Hush' Money

By The Associated Press

The Internal Revenue Bureau figures "roughly" that the winner of the "Miss Hush" radio contest will have to pay about $5000 Federal income tax on her prizes, estimated to be worth $20,000.

The fact that the winner, Mrs. Ruth Subbie of Fort Worth, Tex., plans to share her winnings with members of the family does not alter the fact that the prizes are to be regarded as income to her, a bureau spokesman said.

He said a definite precedent had been set in such contests when the bureau made a ruling, at the winner's request, in the first "Mr. Hush" guessing game.

Under Texas law, the income of a married couple is divided equally between them for taxation purposes. The offhand estimate that the Government will take a fourth in taxes, the bureau official said, is based on the assumption that their other income will take care of their tax exemptions.

Montgomery Has 75 Delegates at Two-Day Convention

Preliminaries to the thirty-second annual convention of Maryland Congress of Parents and Teachers were held in Baltimore yesterday, highlighted by a pre-registration officers meeting. The convention proper will begin today.

Delegates from Maryland's 23 counties began arriving at the Lord Baltimore Hotel for the two-day convention, which has as its theme "Assignment for Tomorrow."

Montgomery County, which accounts for about 30 per cent of the total membership in the congress, sent about 75 delegates, headed by Nathan Gilbert, 4611 Davidson dr., Chevy Chase, president of the County Council of Parents and Teachers. Between 35 and 50 delegates from Prince Georges County, led by Mrs. Wells Harrington of 4-C, Plateau pl., Greenbelt, also are attending.

The Montgomery and Prince Georges groups will invite the congress to meet next year in this area.

Government Clerks Who Failed Test Needn't Worry About Jobs Now

CLERICAL: These are the latest developments in the huge general clerical field of Federal jobs here:

The general clerical exam for jobs in Grade 1 through Grade 4 will be repeated early next year by the Civil Service Commission;

Very few, if any, of the war service and temporary clerks who failed the recent test will be fired any time soon, and,

Those who did pass the test will be certified for probational appointments leading to permanent status in the agencies where they are now employed.

These are the vital statistics on the recent clerical test as compiled by the Civil Service Commission:

Forty-four thousand people here took the test of whom 23,000 were given eligible ratings;

Of these 23,000, between 21,000 and 22,000 now hold war service and temporary jobs which they will be in line to hold indefinitely, and finally,

This leaves a backlog of no more than 1500 eligibles, if that many, to fill vacancies and hundreds of new clerical jobs that are to be created.

Civil Service officials are convinced that the 1500 will be offered jobs within the next few weeks. Hence, the necessity for a new test.

More than 1000 persons who passed the test from outside the Federal service have already been certified to jobs in the insurance offices of the Veterans Administration. Civil Service officials have serious doubts whether VA will be able to hire all the people it needs from the 1000 eligibles. It's a fact that people are rejecting low-grade Federal jobs in large numbers. In addition, the number quitting jobs in the low grades is increasing.

The clerical exam for jobs here was also given throughout the country. Officials estimated at one time that it would produce from 15,000 to 20,000 eligibles for Washington jobs. They were dead wrong. Only a handful qualified—no more than 500—and it's a good bet that not more than half of them will accept jobs when they are offered.

It all sums up to this—that very few people the country over are interested in low-grade Federal jobs at the present salary scales. Both the FBI and Navy have people out in the States on recruiting campaigns for jobs here. Neither have been successful to date.

When the new clerical exam is given—perhaps next spring—the war service and temporary employes who failed in the recent test will be given an opportunity to take it again.

HOPELESS: Civil Service officials say the typist and stenographer shortage is "hopeless," that it's now worse than at any time during the war. The commission has no stenographers and typists on its eligible lists and every agency in the city seems to be in need of them. It's etsimated that there are now upward of 1500 vacant typist and steno jobs in Federal agencies here.

RFC: One of the best-paying Government jobs will be open soon. It's the $12,500-a-year job as controller of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. Harold W. H Burrows is reported ready to resign to accept a more attractive offer in private industry.

The controller job was set up last year to offset criticism made in a General Accounting Office report on RFC's bookkeeping methods. Burrows, a hard-driving official, was selected for the post which pays more than most high-ranking Federal officials are paid. He has been responsible for a drastic reorganization of RFC in the short time he has been there.

CIVIL SERVICE: will start moving its fourth regional office back here from Winston-Salem, N. C., this weekend. The office will be moved to Tempo R Building at 3d st. and Jefferson dr. sw. Its branch office here was moved to Tempo R over this weekend. Persons seeking information on regional jobs in Civil Service's personnel office will be moved into the branch office's old space in the Tariff Building.

NOTES: The 300 persons here who applied to take the substitute railway postal clerk test will be examined December 27 in McKinley High School. Some 62,000 veterans applied outside of this city . . . Nellie L. Yeatman, an actuary in the Civil Service Retirement Division, has retired after more than 36 years of Government work . . . The Federal Club will meet tonight in the Willard. Officers for next year will be elected.

LOYALTY: The Civil Service Loyalty Review Board has set up a subcommittee headed by Chairman Seth W. Richardson to make a detailed study of proposed rules and regulations to cover loyalty cases. This means the rules won't be sent to Federal agencies for at least two more weeks.

PAY RAISE: The Independent National Alliance of Postal Employes will meet here on January 19 to demand pay raises up to $1000 a year, and enactment of the Langer-Chavez retirement bill. Representatives will come from 32 States. The organization has 10,000 members and 82 branches.

Union Heads Ask Windup Effort for Chest Fund

Intensified Drive In Last Four Days Urged to Provide 23% Still Needed

With only four days left in the current drive, Washington labor leaders yesterday reminded residents that it would be deplorable for the Community Chest Federation campaign to fail.

Statements urging even more sturdy support from trade unionists and others—to raise the 23 per cent still needed to meet the drive's $3,900,000 goal—came from Clement F. Preller, president of the Washington Central Labor Union (AFL); Henry C. Beitscher, president of the Industrial Union Council (CIO), and Mrs. Mary Gannon, president of the Washington Telephone Traffic Union (Ind.).

The union spokesmen emphasized that members "in every field" are working to make the campaign a success. Simultaneously, they pointed out that those who have already given still can increase their gifts.

"Support from every union member is mandatory," Preller declared, "if the policy of the Washington Central Labor Union of the AFL is to be carried out." Failure of the drive, he asserted, "is a prospect no ordeal trade unionist can afford to have developed in his home town."

Chest leaders pointed out that the campaign so far has brought in only $3,007,559.

Beitscher urged local CIO members to give "all you possibly can" to help "maintain these essential services." He pointed out that in certain places where unions are strongly organized—such as Freedmen's Hospital—workers have succeeded in pushing the drive over the top already.

Mrs. Gannon described the services provided by the 125 Chest-sponsored agencies in Greater Washington as "fundamental to the American way of life."

She said Chest services "symbolize democracy," benefiting not only "the less fortunate, but everyone in the community." Since "everyone agrees" these services are essential, the woman labor leader stated, "then ways must be found for everyone to help support." She added:

"If there isn't enough money, the agencies just won't be able to perform their jobs. Individuals needing help will be turned away, health services neglected, children and older people not properly cared for, recreation and welfare work seriously curtailed."

Young British Farmers Pay Capital Visit

Weatherman Predicts More Rain Today

Temperature to Hit 58; New Storm Moves From Central Plains

Leaden skies spilled a chilling drizzle on Greater Washington yesterday and last night as the Weather Bureau forecast more of the same for today.

Cloudy with temperatures about 58 degrees and brief periods of rain is the prediction for today. The high yesterday was 45 degrees at 3:58 p. m.; the low 31, at 10:26 a.m.

A new storm developed over the Central plains yesterday and began moving eastward, the Chicago weather bureau reported. It will reenter Canada and then put back, bringing snow flurries to New England.

Winchester Man Dies

Winchester, Va., Dec. 7 (AP).—Floyd G. Potts, 23, was fatally injured late last night when an automobile in which he was riding with two other persons went out of control on a street in Winchester and crashed into a service pole and was demolished.

Potts was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ensley Potts and was employed at a bottling establishment. Russell Fletcher, 25, and Miss Mary Elizabeth Perry, both of Winchester, escaped with minor injuries.

Visiting Britishers Compare U. S. and Own Farming Aims

The American farmer strives for high production per man, while the British agriculturist aims for high production per acre.

That was the conclusion of five young farmers from the British Isles who are completing a two-month trip to this country and Canada by visiting Washington.

The youths, who represent three (British) young farmer groups, have visited several agricultural States, attended agricultural shows and participated in meetings of the Future Farmers of America, the 4-H Clubs and the Rural Youth group.

Methods Summed Up

Their observations on the main difference in farming methods here, as compared with theirs, were summed up by John L. Cornah, leader of the group. A leading member of the British National Federation of Young Farmers' Groups, and an experienced dairyman at 23, he said:

"The great difference is that you have so much land that you go all out for output per man. At home, where we have about one third of your population living on one thirty-third of your area, the output per acre is more important. It makes the whole outlook different. We also try to produce more of the high cash value crops."

Intensive Farming Major Factor

The youths compared their average wheat yield of 36 bushels per acre with that of Kansas fields, which they cited as about 20. Though this is partly due to higher rainfall in the British Isles, intensive farming is the major factor.

As for milk production, William Edge, representative of the Junior National Farmers Union, who, at 21, has had five years' experience on his father's cattle farm in Staffordshire, declared quality was uppermost in the American dairyman's mind, while in England quantity was considered more important.

Kenneth J. Osborne, 21, and Hywel Evans, 22, of England and Wales, respectively, agreed with Cornah and Edge that the best dairy farms here are not so far advanced in dairy machinery as the best ones in their land but that the average farm here is more advanced in that respect.

Raises Oldest Herd

The fifth member of the group—a sixth has already left for home—was Alexander Campbell of Scotland, who, at 20, works on his father's farm where the family breed and raises the oldest herd of beef shorthorns in the world. His family has sent shorthorns to this country and other parts of the world since 1846, when they founded the herd.

All five were enthusiastic in their praise of American hospitality, of which they had a taste while staying with members of the youth farm groups in this country.

Their trip was financed by their farm groups and by the British government, with accommodations in Chicago and here in Washington provided by the National Committee on Boys and Girls Club Work, a nonprofit private farm group.

Fredericksburg, Va., Dec. 7 (Spl.). Richard Verna of Brock rd., and Clifford Hudson of Shiloh won first prizes in the yellow and white classes, respectively, in a community hybrid corn show sponsored by the Southern States Cooperative here. Second place in the yellow class went to George W. Bryan of Dogue and in the white to F. W. Stewart of Chancellor.

Traffic School Planned Here For Violators

Judges Would Pick 'Students' From Those Appearing in Court

School bells soon will ring out for traffic violators here.

Formal approval of the plan whereby traffic violators will have fines, or portions of fines, remitted upon agreement to attend a traffic school, is expected to be made this week by the District Commissioners.

Police Inspector Arthur E. Miller, who will head the school, yesterday said he hopes it can get under way by January 1, dependent upon the Commissioners' order.

Miller declared that the school "is not intended as punishment—we want to help the people who get into trouble."

Motorists from Maryland and Virginia who are not employed in Washington will not be assigned to the school, because of difficulty in attending the traffic classes.

The question of which violators will be given the alternative of attending the school will be decided by Municipal Court judges hearing their cases.

"We have reserved the right to act in accordance with our own discretion," Chief Judge George P. Barse of Municipal Court said yesterday.

Parking law violators will not go to the school, and the decision as to what fines will be wholly remitted and what fines will be remitted in part upon attendance at the school will depend upon the offense.

In addition to those sent to the school by the court, "students" will also included those whose permits are either suspended or revoked by the Board of Revocation and Restoration of Operators' Permits, and those who fail to pass tests for operators' permits.

"For the present," said Inspector Miller, "we probably will have to exclude anyone else who wishes to attend."

Classes will be held in the Detective Bureau squad room at the Municipal Center, said Miller. The room has a capacity of about 75 persons.

The course will consist of six hours of study, in two-hour periods, with classes held on Fridays from 8 to 10 p. m., and on Saturdays from 10 a. m. to 12 noon.

Inspector Miller stressed that attendance will be a voluntary choice by violators, and, pointed out that there would be no discrimination by race or sex in the classes.

Originally proposed by the Commissioners' traffic advisory board last spring, the course will stress traffic rules and regulations and include a final written examination. Results of this will be entered in the violator's traffic record. A somewhat similar course is being operated under auspices of the District Department of Corrections for those sentenced to jail terms.

"We'll have a simple examination, with a passing grade of 70," Miller said, "and if anyone fails to pass we will certify that back to the court for action."

Miller said there may be some delay in starting the course in order to get attendance cards and certificates ready. In addition to Miller, the faculty will include Capt. Lorraine T. Johnson, Sergt. Walter R. Ostrom, Sergt. Edward H. Sennott and Sergt. John F. Ryan of the Traffic Division; representatives from Traffic Director George E. Kenelpp's office, and Assistant Corporation Counsel Clark King.

Floyd T. Anderson Named

Fredericksburg, Va., Dec. 7 (Spl.). — Fredericksburg's Volunteer Firemen's Association last night elected Floyd T. Anderson president. Other officers: Ernest A Potvin, vice president; Chapman A. Minter, chaplain; Frank Boutchyard, secretary-treasurer; Carroll R. Carter, sergeant-at-arms.

Law Curbs Police In Arrests Unless They See Crime

Personal Freedom Right Held Involved In Nabbing Suspect for 'Probable Cause'

Publication of the President's Civil Rights Committee report, and the recent visit of the Freedom Train have called attention anew to our basic rights as Americans. The average American takes his rights for granted—until he comes into conflict with the law. The following article deals with the police power to arrest. A subsequent article will discuss the rights of an individual when arrested.

By Sam Stavisky
By a Post Reporter

"YOU can't arrest me!" This corny famous last line is invariably sputtered by a vaudeville comedian, cast in the role of Indignant Citizen, as the cops seize the cluck and haul him off to the hoosegow.

What tickles the collective funny-bone of the audience, despite the age of the gag, is the indubitable fact that the police ARE arresting the clown. Ergo, the question whether the minions of the law CAN arrest the protesting stooge becomes academic.

But t'ain't funny, McGee. Give it a little thought and see for yourself that it's a serious question—whether the police can arrest you. It involves personal freedom and liberty.

Began 700 Years Ago

More than 700 years ago a group of English barons forced King John to affix his seal to the Magna Carta, a truly remarkable document which is the foundation stone of our own American system of justice.

In signing the Great Charter, the English monarch gave up his power to toss "free men" in the gaol at will or whim. Henceforth "free men" could be arrested only under the laws of the land, and punished only by judgment of their peers.

THROUGH the years, the principles of the Magna Carta have been broadened, deepened and strengthened by "free men," sometimes after a few heads were broken. So today our rights as "free Americans" are safeguarded by the Constitution, and a firm foundation of law.

The policeman's authority to arrest John Q. Citizen is a strictly limited power. Here is how things work in the District of Columbia.

Arrest Without Warrant

In the case of misdemeanors—minor law violations, punished by fine or a term in jail or workhouse—the policeman must actually witness the breaking of the law in order to make an arrest without a warrant. For example: Traffic violations, disorderly conduct, being drunk in public.

So, if a copper sees you sneak through a red light, he arrests you for committing a misdemeanor. He can take you to the police station directly to charge you with the infraction of the law, or he can give you a "ticket," which permits you to show up at the station yourself.

But if the patrolman does not see the misdemeanor committed he needs a warrant to arrest the lawbreaker. Thus, if John Jones backs his car over the curb and knocks down George Smith's fence, and then drives off without so much as "Oops, pardon me," a policeman called to the scene will need a warrant to arrest Jones. The irate Smith can swear out the warrant, or the policeman can do so once he learns the facts.

[To get a warrant, the accuser and any available witnesses appear in the offices of the corporation counsel or district attorney, criminal division of Municipal Court, 5th and E sts. nw. An assistant corporation counsel or assistant district attorney listens to the accuser and the witnesses. If it appears there has been a violation of the law he approves the issuance of a warrant by the court. There is no fee involved.]

IN THE CASE of a felony—a serious violation of the law, like robbery, rape, grand larceny, forgery, assault with a dangerous weapon (punishable by a prison sentence of more than a year)—it is not necessary for the officer to see the crime committed in order to make an arrest without a warrant. The policeman may arrest any person whom he has "probable cause" to believe has committed the crime.

But what is "probable cause?" Well, if the officer either from his observation or from statements of witnesses, has a knowledge of the facts which lead a man of ordinary common sense to believe that the suspect has committed a felony, he has "probable cause" to arrest the suspect.

For example, if the restaurant down the street is held up and robbed by a lone gunman and several witnesses to the incident should identify the bandit as a former employe, the policeman would have "probable cause" to arrest the accused man.

In the case of felony—as in that of misdemeanor—John Q. Citizen can swear out a warrant against a miscreant.

You Can Make an Arrest

Furthermore, John Q. Citizen has the right to arrest a person committing a felony in his presence. For example, a citizen may apprehend an escaping burglar. It might be wiser, however, to let the police make arrests.

WHEN an officer makes an arrest, he must identify himself. Of course, if he's wearing his uniform, the policeman's identity as an arm of the law is established to all intents and purposes. But if the arrest is made by a plainclothesman, he must show a police badge or otherwise identify himself as a policeman. The Police Manual further provides that "members of the force shall give their names to persons who request them."

If the arrest is made on a warrant, then the policeman must show the warrant to the accused on demand. In other words, when John Q. Citizen gets arrested, he has a right to know why he is being arrested.

Not Wise to Resist

One more point. It is not the part of wisdom to resist an arrest, even if you should happen to believe the arrest is illegal. A police officer is authorized to use such force as may be necessary to make and maintain an arrest. That's for the cop's protection, should you have the impulse to take a sock at him in protesting arrest.

But John Q. Citizen, on the other hand, also has some protection from being unduly roughed up by the policeman making the arrest. The cop doesn't have the right, for instance, to bang a drunk's head against the police call box in order to quiet down the rubbery-legged nuisance.

IF A POLICEMAN uses more force than reasonably required to make the arrest, he commits an assault, and becomes subject to prosecution and discipline.

The Police Manual bluntly declares:

"Prisoners shall be treated with consideration. Harsh, violent, or obscene language on the part of the officers toward prisoners will not be tolerated. The use of force beyond that necessary to maintain an arrest or restrain a prisoner may subject the offending officer to removal from the force."

The importance of things in the out-of-doors—the business of teaching girls to live with themselves when they don't have money for expensive recreation—these ideas matter.

They are intangibles, but parents agree that when you give these intangible qualities "to so many girls, you cannot help making thousands of better communities, built around millions of better citizens."

That is what the Girl Scouts are trying to do. And with these objectives, they are trying to reach girls of all income groups.

There is no bar by race, color or creed to membership in the Girl Scouts, and the movement in the Washington area is growing almost too fast to be kept pace with by the Girl Scout organization.

Financial Support Needed

Right now the early "war babies" are reaching the stage where they are potential "Brownies." Those in charge of the Girl Scout organization are concerned that they may not have enough financial support from the community to permit this new crop of girls to join. The "war babies" may have to wait for Scouting.

Since early 1942, when the community first felt the push and pull of its war-brought population increase, the Girl Scout organization here has had rough going. Early in the war, the Girl Scouts were seriously drained of their volunteer helpers, many of whom felt they should serve the community in some capacity more closely affiliated with the war effort.

To accommodate the growing numbers of Scouts, the organization decided to expand troops—in the Brownie group, aged 7 to 10, from 16 to 24; in the Girl Scout troop, from 20 to 30, and in the Senior troops, from 15 to 24.

More Girls Accommodated

By this means, more girls were accommodated in Scout troops—but there was still another problem. Washington had population with girls of Scout age where there never had been population before. The Scout organization had to revise its city-wide geographic setup.

By the middle of 1944, the Scout organization got its first break. The volunteers who had left the Scouts in 1942 for war-connected pursuits started coming back as it became apparent that the war was having a definite reaction among younger people, increasing tensions there as well as among adults.

By 1946, the Girl Scouts had an organization of 5500. But financial support had begun to drop. This year, instead of trying to expand their activities, the Girl Scouts are using their financial support to carry their membership.

And what they would like to do is get enough money to put more emphasis on camping—one of the larger functions of the Scout organization. At the present time, the camping the Scouts are able to do is financed entirely by donations, camp fees, and Scout cookie sales.

They want to expand the present weekend camping trips to one or two week campouts. There is a need to develop more camp sites in order to care for the Scout membership. And this need will increase as the organization continues to grow. A membership of 10,000 Girl Scouts in Washington and Montgomery County is expected by 1950.

It isn't all play for Girl Scouts. During the war, they performed a thousand and one chores to help those both at home and abroad. And now they still are contributing to the community through such projects as acting as nurses' aides in Gallinger Hospital, in the crippled children's clinic. Last year, there were 138 Girl Scout troops in Washington and Montgomery County, and they were working out of 31 institutions.

In addition to the Girl Scout Council, Washington, D. C., and Montgomery County, Inc., there are Girl Scout organizations in Alexandria, Arlington and Fairfax Counties, Va., and in Prince Georges County, Md.

These Girl Scout organizations are among agencies which you help to support when you make your contribution to the Community Chest Federation campaign.

Cure for Sweet Potato Disease Is Reported

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 7 (AP).—Research this year at the Virginia truck experiment station showed that scurf, a disease that causes a brown stain on the skins of sweet potatoes, can easily be eliminated, Dr. Harold T. Cook, plant pathologist, reported.

It was found, Cook said, that the disease was eliminated by planting scurf-free plants in fields that had not been used for sweet potatoes in at least two years. Most scurf results from fungus surviving from one season to the next on potatoes that are bedded for sprouts, Cook said.

Missionaries Held Factor in World Peace

By Robert Tate Allan
Post Reporter

The need of an expanded missionary program to maintain world peace was stressed yesterday at the church services recalling the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor six years ago.

Among the speakers at services were former missionaries and other authorities on Far Eastern affairs.

Leeds Gulick, Congregationalist missionary in Shikoku, Japan, from 1921 to 1938, urged American churches to send books, school materials, food, clothing, money and missionaries to Japan, in preparation for the day when the destroyed churches and schools can be rebuilt.

Gulick, now chief of the Japanese-Korean desk of the reorientation branch, civil affairs division, Department of Army, spoke before the Fellowship Class of Chevy Chase Methodist Church, Connecticut ave. and Shepherd st. nw. He praised the SCAP (Supreme Command for Allied Powers) for its work in reestablishing freedom of education and religion in Japan, under General MacArthur's leadership.

Mrs. J. Warren Hastings, in a sermon at National City Christian Church, Thomas Circle, described the missionary movement as the greatest single factor in maintaining world peace.

Occupying the pulpit for her husband, who is filling preaching engagements in Texas, Mrs. Hastings pointed out that missionary work has progressed in Japan despite the last war.

"In the last 17 years non-Occidental Christians have doubled in Japan," she said at the annual "Woman's Day" observance. "A Christian University for Japan is being planned by the united Christian forces. The new Japanese premier, Tetsu Katayama, is an active Christian."

Combined American and British trade sanctions against Russia were urged by Walter W. Hubbard, writer and lecturer on Oriental affairs. He addressed the Forum at Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, 9th st. and Massachusetts ave. nw.

Calling for more American support for China, Hubbard said it was "regrettable" that before Pearl Harbor "we sent 815 million dollars worth of commodities to Japan and only Bibles and bandages to China."

Hubbard said the world's eyes are now focused on the industrial area of North China, "which the Russians are now trying to grab." He said America can avert war with Russia by avoiding secret diplomacy; by changing its diplomatic representatives in Russia; by refusing to sell Russia anything and by sending truthful information about America to Russia's satellites.

Two Churches In Area Burn Mortgages

Two nearby Maryland and Virginia congregations yesterday afternoon burned their mortgages at impressive ceremonies.

Dr. Lenski

The mortgage-burning at St. Mary's Episcopal Church, 26th st. and North Glebe Rd., Arlington, too place during the consecration of the church by Virginia Episcopal Bishop Frederick Dean Goodwin.

At Christ Lutheran Church, 8011 Old Georgetown rd., Bethesda, the mortgage-burning was a feature of the congregation's 13th anniversary.

Dr. E. Maurice Blackwell, retired commander in the Navy medical corps, charter member of the parish and senior warden, touched the match to the mortgage at St. Mary's. It was in his honor that a recent debt-clearance drive was held. He was also formerly Sunday School superintendent. A reception was held for Dr. Blackwell after the service.

Other participants in the consecration at St. Mary's were the Rev. John Sadtler of Falls Church, Va., first rector of St. Mary's, and the Rev. George Tittman, present rector and former Navy chaplain. Bishop Goodwin confirmed a class of 16 adults and children.

Dr. Gerhard E. Lenski, pastor of Grace Lutheran Church, 16th and Varnum sts. nw., addressed the mortgage-burning rites at Christ Church — a congregation which Grace Church helped to organize.

The Rev. Raymond A. Vogeley, who organized Christ Lutheran Church during the depression years by ringing doorbells, spoke at the morning anniversary service and the Sunday School program. In 1945 he resigned to become director of parish education in the American Lutheran Church.

Duck Plentiful For Va. Season

Back Bay, Va., Dec. 7 (AP).—Prospects for the water fowl season opening tomorrow at noon "are the best in three or four years," Game Warden Roland Halstead of Princess Anne County, reported tonight.

After an inspection of these famed duck-shooting grounds, Halstead said, "There are some canvas backs and many red heads, black heads, coots and ruddies in Shipps Bay, North Bay, the upper end of Sand Bay and the lower part of Back Bay."

Optimism over prospects for the shortened season—only 30 days, as compared with last year's 45 days—stems from an improved supply of duck food, Halstead explained. This improvement, he reported, resulted from an increase in salinity in the lower part of the bay.

Funeral Rites For Dr. Butler Set Tomorrow

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, 85, president of Columbia University for 44 years prior to his retirement in 1945, and an eloquent spokesman for world peace, died early yesterday in New York of bronchial pneumonia.

Dr. Butler, who had been blind for the past year and a half, died in St. Luke's Hospital where he had been admitted last week for a check-up after an attack of indigestion.

Since entering Columbia at 16, Dr. Butler had literally spent his entire adult life with the university, becoming president at 39 and president emeritus at 83.

World peace, with arbitration and a form of world union, was a cause that enlisted his best efforts for many years.

In 1933, the year Hitler came to power in Germany, Dr. Butler declared, "the security of no nation can be established by force or by a display of force."

Awarded Nobel Peace Prize

He called for a world-wide organization, to supplant the League of Nations, as early as 1934. "The foundation upon which it was made to rest was outworn and insecure," he said. "It must be rebuilt in terms of today and tomorrow."

For his efforts for world peace, which included the presidency of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace for 20 years, he was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize in 1931, which he shared with Jane Addams.

He was born in Elizabeth, N. J., in 1862. His academic prowess was evident at an early age: at 10 he passed high school entrance examinations with grades of 100 in English and 98 in geography and arithmetic.

At graduation exercises—three years later—he said, "Of far more importance than the conquests of war . . . is the progress made in the arts of peace."

He was graduated from Columbia College in 1882, and received an M. A. degree a year later, and a Ph. D. in 1884. At the age of 23 he was an assistant in the philosophy department, and the next year became president of what is now Teachers College, Columbia University.

In 1887 he designed the public library system of New Jersey, and two years later drew plans for a university to be built upo Columbia College.

Had Low View of Journalism

Under his presidency, which began in 1901 when he was 39, the university developed into one of the world's largest institutions of higher learning. In 44 years its enrollment increased from 4440 to 31,411 students.

During his regime the Nation's first school of journalism was opened—although he once called the professional "the enemy of constant and continuing interest in any serious subject," saying that "it elevates superficiality to the plane of an occupation."

Another of the varied fields in which Dr. Butler was active was politics. He was the Republican vice presidential candidate in 1912 when President Taft was defeated for reelection, and in 1920 he was the favorite-son candidate of the New York delegation at the convention which nominated Harding.

Dr. Frank Fackenthal, Acting President of Columbia, announced that funeral services would be held at 11 a. m. tomorrow in St. Paul's Chapel on the campus, picked by Dr. Butler before his death in spite of the fact it seats only about 700 persons.

Eisenhower Notified

Funeral services will be conducted by the Rev. Raymond C. Knox, chaplain emeritus of the university. Private interment will be in Cedar Lawn Cemetery, Paterson, N. J.

Adm. Dulanto Is Guest At Farewell Supper

By Marie McNair

To speed the parting guest happily on his way, the Charge d'Affaires of Peru and Senor de Fernandez-Davila entertained at a buffet supper Saturday evening in honor of Admiral Federico Dulanto, head of the Peruvian Naval Mission in Washington.

Admiral Dulanto is leaving soon for Lima to be gone two, possibly three months, but he's leaving Senora Dulanto and their two young children here as hostages against his return.

The party was held at the Peruvian Embassy, a charming house set in its own park of more than a hundred acres in Chevy Chase.

We might learn a lesson from the Latins on how to have fun.

The evening is never ended until everyone is dancing or singing, or both. After supper Saturday night the young people started the Victrola with lilting tunes of South America, and before long the young and not so young were twirling about the floor.

Belles of the ball were Zulita Fernandez-Davila, the dark and lovely daughter of the hosts, who wore a floating white chiffon gown, and Teresa and Luisa Monteza, daughter of the Military Attache of the Peruvian Embassy and Senora de Monteza, the one in French blue, the other in white. Senorita Elena Ivanissevich, the Argentine Ambassador's daughter, also the stag line's delight, had the "new look" in an ankle-length full skirted ivory brocade gown.

"No husbands and wives together," Senora de Fernandez-Davila had warned as guests found seats for supper at small tables arranged in the dining room and petit salon. A feature of the buffet was "chocio," a deep-dish corn pudding over a meat pie.

Among those there were Admiral and Mrs. Clark Woodward, Admiral and Mrs. William O. Spears, Capt. and Mrs. Joseph R. Barbaro, Comdr. and Mrs. Edgar Thompson, the former Finance Minister of Peru, Romulo Ferraro, Guillermo Llosa, director of the School of Engineering in Peru; Col. Jose Fernande, Assistant Military Attache of the Argentine Embassy and Senora de Fernandez; Senora de Camino, and Mrs. Julia McLean.

That little group of women who are out to promote inter-American good will, have been invited by Senora de Mora, wife of the Minister of Uruguay, to meet at her home on Thursday afternoon. Senora de Mora has planned to acquaint her guests with scenic Uruguay as well as the folklore, musical and culinary specialties of her country. A feature of the afternoon will be the dance by Senora de Mora's daughter, Gladys, in gaucho costume, who will execute the graceful "el gato," Uruguay's national dance.

Hostesses will be Senorita Minerva Bernardino, Mrs. Charles W. O. Bunker, Mrs. Frank Morrow, Mme. Rybar, Mrs. Emil Hurja and Mrs. Tomas Cajigas.

Engaged Girl Wants to Ask Godmother to Wedding After Receiving Beautiful Letter From Her, But Mother Fiercely Opposes Any Exchange With Lady

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Recently my engagement was announced and local newspapers carried the story, since when a problem has come up that is disturbing me a great deal.

My godmother, whom I haven't seen since I was 12 years of age, read the newspaper announcements and wrote me a beautiful letter, wishing me luck and great happiness and asking me to call on her, bringing my fiance.

I really would like to do that, and also would like to invite her to my wedding, but when my mother saw the letter she flew into a rage and said if I acknowledged it or called on my godmother I would have to leave home.

Women Were Dear Friends Years Ago

THIS LADY and my mother were dear friends at one time; in fact, she was one of mother's bridesmaids; but somehow they drifted apart. They haven't seen each other for several years and for imaginary reasons mother seems to have turned against her.

There never was any quarrel or trouble so far as I know; but mother is, I think, jealous of her because she looks younger and much better looking. She is a widow without children and has a very fine position.

I am bewildered by mother's attitude and would like your opinion of it. She tells me she will abide by your decision as to whether I should call on my godmother, but never will consent to inviting her to my wedding. Please advise. E. C.

Is Godmother Trustworthy?

DEAR E. C.: On the surface, your godmother's cordial letter seems charmingly apropos, whereas your mother's hostile reaction to it seems unjustifiably ugly. However, things aren't always what they seem.

The situation distinctly implies that there has been trouble between the two women; and doubtless it had to do with a man, probably your father.

Possibly your godmother became a rival for your father's love some years after marriage, maybe slyly exploiting her role of trusted friend to try to win him for herself, or maybe boldly fanning a reckless flirtation; and if so, she might be properly regarded as a viper in the bosom of the family, who deserved to be sent to Coventry by your mother.

On the other hand, it could be that your mother grew jealous without warrant, insofar as the lady's behavior or intentions were concerned,—with uneasiness based on nothing more tangible than inferiority feelings acutely aggravated by awareness that your father was genially impressed by her good-looking talented friend.

In any event, the women didn't just drift apart. Their friendship was broken for unhappy reasons never disclosed to you, and your godmother isn't unaware of your mother's bad will, towards her—else she would have communicated with her also, when proclaiming fond interest in your engagement.

Effusive Letter Not Quite Cricket

BEING a childless widow of uncertain age, with sentimental memories associated with your parentage, yet estranged from your mother, it is understandable that she might, for mixed reasons, welcome excuse to try to draw closer to you, now that you are about to marry.

However, in going over your mother's head to ply you with gracious come-hither at this time, she smacks of being a suave opportunist, blandly aggressive, whose sensibilities aren't as fine as her phrases. All things considered, it is my hunch that her gesture isn't quite cricket and that your mother's dudgeon is vaguely justified.

For advice: If your mother doesn't want her at the wedding, she shouldn't be asked, if only to spare the lady embarrassment. Therefore, you shouldn't call on her in the meantime, either with or without your fiance, if you wish to be nicely diplomatic.

Send a note of thanks for her letter, offering polite excuse for evading her invitation, and let the matter go at that—at least until you are married, mistress of your social program and better posted on the reasons for your mother's attitude.

By Ida Jean Kain

What is the only sure morale booster for a dieter . . . lost pounds, of course. Those of you who wound up with a 3 to 5 pound loss on the Mr. and Mrs. diet are convinced there's something in this calorie business and feel optimistic about getting down to normal weight just by clipping calories here and there in the fats and trimmings and serving sizes. It's really not half bad, eating this way—you wish someone had mentioned it years ago, before the pounds piled on.

Unhappily, however, not all overweights are good losers. Along comes a letter from a woman explaining that she lost weight—Mr. didn't. Now he doesn't know whether to distrust his glands or the diet, and let's it be known that he doesn't think much of either. And blames his wife to boot . . . she got him into it.

Failure to lose on a diet is always hard to take, and twice as hard for the dubious gent who had to be coaxed into it in the first place. He is entitled to an explanation . . . and it better be good. It's water retention again . . . this failure to lose weight the first, second and even into the third week of dieting is almost due to a temporary retention of water by the tissues. It's this way: water and fat weigh the same. And when stored water replaces lost fat, there is no change on the scales. If the calories were definitely below the number used daily, he really did lose—the scales to the contrary—and if he will continue to cut calories, the tissues will give up the water and the scales will show all the loss in a lump. It might show 4 or 5 pounds off at a single weighing.

For anyone who is a heavy salt user, the water retention may be laid to that. You know what happens to salt in damp weather . . . it absorbs water. Better go light on salt when trying to lose weight. The amount of water drinking, however, does not influence water retention. Continue to drink plenty of water between meals.

Protein helps to counteract the tendency to water storage. Make sure each meal contains plenty of protein—cottage cheese, American cheese, or fish at lunch; eggs at breakfast, and a liberal serving of lean meat or fish or chicken at dinner. To this add a glass of buttermilk or skim milk for calcium and more protein. Someone pointed out that I did not give the exact proportions of meat loaf or the dimensions of the piece of meat. Well, most of you know what an average serving means, and a little extra protein does not add up as fast as extra butter, bread or dessert. Protein actually helps to burn the calories.

If our overweight gives up before the water in the tissues gives up, the jig's up! He'll probably never go on a diet again! Let's hope it didn't happen to many. But if it did, and you have the courage to keep on in spite of no weight loss to show for it, you have what it takes to get the best of fat. My dietitian's cap is off to you!

Small Patterns Are Popular In Prints Favored for Spring

Colorful prints will play a big part in the spring fabric pictures as evidenced in the resort collections of leading New York designers.

The imaginative scope of new designs in pure silk and rayon have inspired a wide variety of daytime and evening silhouettes. Small, all-overs patterns in two-toned and multicolored combinations take preference over large splashy designs in most of the collections. Black and white, in patterns ranging from big, bold cubes to the tiny all-over design in the new woven silk jacquard, is stil a favorite for casual and dressy clothes alike.

The trend toward smaller patterns is emphasized in dressy daytime wear. A delicately etched design in black on a gold ground, called "Zodiac" has been translated by Ben Reig into a charming full-skirted afternoon dress. Outstanding among several multicolored designs with Oriental themes is the rich toned "Japanese Lantern" print used by Samuel Kass for a graceful ankle-length cocktail dress.

Several interesting variations of abstract leaf designs were this year's preference over the usual floral prints. Notable in this group is a colorful, surrealistic leaf motif on a black background charmingly handled by Adele Simpson in a gay, young street dress with a low V neck and flaring, circular skirt.

Two striking black and white prints by Don Kingman, "Musie Muse" and "Chinese Coolies," were chosen by David Crystal for casual spectator sports fashions.

Mother Blindly Following Rules Will Meet Discipline Woes

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

It would be easy enough to discipline a child were there rules which said that on such and such an occasion such and such rule should be invoked.

How obvious it is that this is never the case. The mother who blindly follows rules is sure to encounter some obstacles. She may put the rule into effect but be unaware of its influence on the child's future behavior. All of a parent's behavior should have the long-time influence on the child in mind.

Let us accept the fact that children do need some discipline. They have much to learn and their parents are their best guides to that learning. There have to be some penalties attached to deliberate disobedience, else the child would go wild with his own freedom to do as he pleases.

But, despite this acceptance and undestanding of the role of authority, there will be times when the child will not obey, and nothing can be done. It is easy for a child to say, "I won't," or, "No," when there is little meaning to it. For a parent to raise an issue over all such apparent infractions of her authority would be impossible. She couldn't, if she would, punish all such responses.

If she is convinced within herself that she is a person of authority and is respected as such, and can ignore such words, or gain the child's cooperation by saying, "But you will, if I help you." And then help the child.

To grow hot and furious when the child opposes her should lead her to take stock of herself. Does she feel inferior and unsure of herself? If she does, the child's opposition will increase that emotion and she will have to show the child who is boss. Is she under the thumb of a domineering parent, or parent-in-law, or even of her husband? In such cases she will feel compelled to exert her authority over the child and MAKE him mind.

These are often subtle reasons why parents are so determined to get the best of a child, and in so doing influence him to an equally determined opposition. The person with a strong sense of her own rightness and her role of authoritarian, can pass over lightly some unimportant floutings of her demands. A little flexibility in this direction makes the child-rearing far easier.

Ask Anne

Your Questions on Homemaking

I have heard that there is now a nail polish on the market for people who are allergic to most commercial kinds. Do you know if it is sold anywhere in the Washington area? E. McC.

I have been unable to locate such a polish in Washington. Perhaps some reader knows of one and will advise this column.

Can you tell me where I can have moles removed from my face without leaving traces of scars? I would like a place that is reasonable and not too far from Washington. E. W.

Consult a doctor about removing the moles. If you do not know any physicians here in Washington, telephone one of the doctors' exchanges (listed in the yellow section of the telephone book under "Physicians Exchange"). They will give you the names of doctors who can help you with your problem.

Can you give me information in regard to the dyeing of carpets? My husband and I are going into housekeeping for the first time since our marriage. Needless to say, budgeting is necessary and prices being what they are, we don't plan to invest in carpets at the present time. However, both of our families are planning to give us old carpets which they are no longer using. We are wondering if you know of any firm in this vicinity which dyes carpets, what their prices might be, and if results are satisfactory. D. T. M.

The chemist of a large Washington rug cleaning firm tells me that rugs can be successfully dyed if they do not have paper woven into them. Some wartime rugs which have the appearance of cotton, such as braided rugs, were partially of paper and obviously these could not be dyed successfully. He adds that firms dyeing rugs are able to tell their customers, on examination of the rugs, what the chances are of dyeing them successfully. They charge approximately 15 cents per square foot for the dye job. If the color or stains have to be removed before dyeing, the charge is 25 cents a square foot. He adds that rugs are not preshrunk and when the sizing is removed during the dye process, they do shrink some. For companies which do rug dyeing, look among the rug cleaning companies in the yellow pages of the Washington telephone directory.

I have made several handhooked rugs. The largest is about 6 by 9 feet. When I lay them on the floor, they hump up in the middle and do not lay flat at any time. I have had rugs cleaned and they were sized on the back in order to retain their firmness and to make them stay flat. My question is this: Should I size these hand-made rugs myself? Could I do it and what is used to prepare the size? Would you advise sending them to a regular rug cleaning plant to be done instead? E. L. K.

The manager of a large rug cleaning firm tells me that the sizing on hand-hooked rugs does not have the same effect as on rugs with the warp and woof threads woven to the back. When the warp and woof are woven to the back, the rugs have a stiffness that you cannot obtain in rugs where the wool is brought through to the back. He added that sizing does help some to flatten hand-hooked rugs, but frankly, not much. The reason your rugs do not lie flat is because some of the threads are pulled tighter than others, thus causing a small pucker. Sizing will only set this pucker, whereas, if left unsized, the pucker will possibly flatten out with use. To hasten their flattening out, place your rugs between the springs and mattresses of your bed. After you get them flat by this method, if you still wish them stiffened somewhat, I would suggest you send them to a professional for sizing.

My hobby is collecting African violets, but so far I have been unable to find a red or yellow one. If any of your readers know where I could get one, I would appreciate it very much. G. H. M.

Does any "Ask Anne" reader have red or yellow African violets?

Is it proper or in good taste to use sheer curtains under drapes when you have Venetian blinds? Where can I obtain a book on window decorating? Do curtains come to bottom of the window or to the bottom of the drapes? The drapes are almost to the floor. P. N.

Yes, sheer curtains can be used under drapes with Venetian blinds. The length of the sheer curtains, or glass curtains as they are sometimes called, can vary. They may come just to the window sill or to the lower edge of the wood trim of the window (the apron). You will find a very good chapter on curtains and draperies in "Decorating for You," by Florence B. Terhune, published by M. Barrows & Co., New York. Also, "The Good Housekeeping Book" published by David McKay Co., has a helpful chapter on curtains and draperies. Both books are available at most book stores and libraries.

Anne answers questions through her column only. Write Anne, Room 408, The Washington Post, Washington 4, D. C.

How's about a meatless meat loaf, for celebrating Meatless Tuesday this week? This one is made of peanuts and vegetables, and served with tangy tomato sauce and onion rings. Here's the recipe:

1 cup ground red skin peanuts, firmly packed
2 cups finely chopped celery
3 tablespoons minced celery leaves
1 cup rolled oats, uncooked
¼ cup chopped green pepper
2 tablespoons chopped pimento (optional)
2 beaten eggs
3 tablespoons melted butter or margarine
1 teaspoon salt
1½ cups milk
½ cup chopped onion

Combine all ingredients. Pack into a well-greased loaf pan and bake in a slow oven (325°F.) one hour.

Keeping Down the Weight

When you decide to diet a bit and take off some of those extra pounds, don't forget you cut out fats immediately, as these are the things on which your complexion depends. Use plenty of cold cream and avoid those wrinkles that seem to come like magic when we begin to reduce.

The Older Generation

Now that you are a grandmother, try and recall how much you resented your parents telling you constantly the best way to rear your children and stay out of your daughter's method of rearing hers. It is her problem and will be a far happier situation if she comes to you for advice than for you to offer it.

Lists Danger Spots

Red Cross Gives Yule Safety Tips

With the Christmas holidays approaching, the American Red Cross safety service warns that the kitchen and the living room, as well as the shopping center and the toy department, are danger spots.

In the Kitchen, for instance, you should keep children away from the stove when cooking candy, because there are few things hotter, the service says. Also, put away such edged or pointed items as nut picks, knives, can openers and scissors before you turn your back on the youngsters. Use oven gloves when you take out baked or roasted foods.

On shopping sprees, the Red Cross says, Christmas lists are better read in a safe corner of the store not while crossing the street. Motorists should remember that pedestrians may be preoccupied. Also, daylight hours are short at this season, and slower driving is advised to counteract these conditions.

The inflammability of fast-drying Christmas trees may be lessened by keeping them in water and by using flameproof decorations, the safety service suggests. Electric lights and wires should be kept in A-1 condition.

As to Christmas toys, the Red Cross gives a few general ideas:

For infants, toys should be in one piece, colored with harmless dyes. For 2-year-olds toys with motion are preferred, and should be lightweight, with no removable parts. Five-year-olds, in the imitative stage, will like miniatures of household tools or small sidewalk vehicles. For the 10-year-old group, child-size sports equipment and toys made with the safety factor in mind are recommended.

The Red Cross suggests that Christmas costumes and decorations may be fireproofed by dipping in a mixture of 7 ounces of borax, 3 ounces of boric acid and 2 quarts of hot water.

St. Louis to Have 15-Cent Cocktail And Nickel Beer

St. Louis, Dec. 7 (U.P.).—A St. Louis bartender said today he was going to bring back the nickel glass of beer and 15-cent cocktails.

William M. Ernst, a war veteran, got his idea from the Philadelphia butcher who sells meat at wholesale prices to people who pay a weekly service charge. Ernst said customers who pay him a $1.50 weekly service charge, will be permitted to buy all the drinks they want at what he calls "preinflation prices." He expected at least 200 members to join. They must agree to stay a member for four weeks or more.

A member may bring his wife or girl friend to the club at any time at no extra charge, Ernst said.

"I don't want the novelty of nickel beer to go to anybody's head," he said. "Everyone has got to behave."

Elliott Roosevelt Urges President In '49, Stalin Meet

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 7 (AP).—Elliott Roosevelt, calling for the establishment of a "positive foreign policy," today suggested a meeting between the President of the United States and Stalin as soon as possible after next year's election.

"A conference in which both feel that they can completely agree and trust each other is the only type of leadership which will bring about an agreement between us," said Roosevelt, who was the principal speaker here on the Connecticut Forum of the Air.

He declared that an agreement between our President and Stalin could be followed up with exchanges of students, the arts, sciences and professions.

Jeweled Throng Attends Rome Opera

Rome, Dec. 7 (U.P.).—Wives of Roman nobility and government officials opened the royal opera's winter season Saturday night, parading through the house in "new-look" gowns, overlaid with mink, ermine, fancy feathers and glitter-cascades of jewels.

Although the opera management, in deference to the times, announced that "formal dress is not obligatory," most of the capacity audience of 200 which heard Verdi's "Othello," appeared in evening dress.

Practically all of Rome's nobility and the Diplomatic Corps were there, and many members of the government and their families. Only the royal box was empty and three of the five royal loges now reserved for the President of the republic. The other two were occupied by aides of President Enrico de Nicola.

Parliament Acts

Greece Bans Strikes Till Warfare Ends

Athens, Dec. 7 (AP).—The Greek Parliament adopted early today drastic labor legislation outlawing all strikes and providing penalties ranging from six months imprisonment to death. The law is to continue in force until the leftist rebellion has been crushed.

Penalties also are provided in cases where employers pay workers either wages or goods during suspension of work. Such employers can be sentenced to two years.

Defendants under the new statute will be tried by court-martial. Premier Themistokles Sophoulis, the liberal leader, and Vice Premier Constantin Tsaldaris, head of the Populist (Royalist) Party, had agreed earlier on the need for the measure.

Justice Minister Christos Ladas, who drafted the bill, told Parliament that "disturbance of the tranquility on the home front is inadmissible" now in view of the fighting going on in the northern part of the country between government troops and leftist guerillas.

While Parliament was debating the measure the bank clerks' union and other labor groups indicated strikes would be called to protest the rising cost of living and failure to meet wage demands. There have been several 24-hour strikes in the past several weks.

Rcently a collective bargaining agreement covering craftsmen and laborers in private industry was put into effect. It was sponsored by the United States mission distributing aid to Greece.

Greek Owner Protects Cairo 'American' Bar

Cairo, Dec. 7 (AP).—The Ritz American bar, which was stoned last week by demonstrators against the partition of Palestine, had a big, new sign today. Written in Arabic, it said: "Ritz bar owned by M. Kombaros, a Greek."

Finnish Composer Thanks U. S. for Interest

Helsinki, Finland, Dec. 7 (AP).—Jean Sibelius, who will be 82 tomorrow, said tonight he is grateful to the United States "for the great interest they take in my music there." The composer will spend his birthday in his home at Jarvenpaa near Helsinki.

What Price Vaudeville?

Broadway's State Drops Stage Bills

By Richard L. Coe

LOEW'S STATE, in New York, is dropping vaudeville.

This, indeed, is news because the State inherited the mantle of the old Keith's Palace, which, as you know from pictures like "Mother Wore Tights" and endless musicals of similar theme, was the heaven of vaudevillians. When the Palace switched to movies in the 30s, the State became the Nation's top variety house, a post it had battled for since its opening in 1921.

With the key house going over to straight pictures beginning Christmas eve, this leaves only two Loew theaters in the East using stage shows, the New York Capitol and our own on F street.

Reason for the switch, according to Loew executives in New York, is that "inflated performer salaries" haven't allowed "high operating expenses to pay off." Variety reports that "There's some feeling that the stageshow policy will return if grosses dip lower and if performers can be had at normal and reasonable salaries."

It's too bad, really, for the death of so important a performers' showcase means just one more blow to a profession that already is suffering unemployment. If the managerial stand that "exorbitant" performer fees are to blame, then it's the medium-priced performers will suffer, those who can least afford it.

Just how to evaluate the worth of a performer to a theater is an age-old question. Obviously, in our theatrical system of private enterprise, as the phrase has it, a star performer is worth what he can draw into a theater. That's why this retrenchment is tough on the numerous supporting acts.

How it will affect the Capitol's shows is one of those wait-and-see things. As usual, the F st. stage is booked well ahead and results of the State's closing won't be felt for a while. The Loew people in New York, however, hope that it will nudge the performers into what they call "a return to sanity" in the matter of fees.

Florida's Sky-High Offers

The high salaries, by the way, are reflected in Florida's winter season, which, as you must have noticed in that special section yesterday, is rarin' to go.

Down in the winter playland, the night clubs pay juicy salaries for top-flight stars, based on the notion that those who can afford to go to Florida can stand the checks passed out in Miami Beach bistros.

Maurice Chevalier will get $22,500 a week at the Copacabana. Across the street, the Beachcomber has Sophie Tucker, who laps up that Florida sunshine, and will be doing so for eight weeks at $5000 every seven days.

Such salaries, of course, are threatened by the clampdown in Dade County on gambling—which really pays those big bills. However, the Colonial Inn, in Broward County, 16 miles from Miami, can have legal gambling and is shelling out inducements to stars.

The Colonial's Christmas Day opening bill will have Ray Bolger, Joan Edwards, Danny Thomas and Henry Busse's and Pupi Campo's orchestras, one of which works for peanuts. The succeeding variety bill so far includes Joe E. Lewis, Tony Martin and Jane Froman. And they're dangling $25,000 in front of Betty Grable for a week's stay.

All those salaries, of course, are a contributing factor to the demise of the State's vaudeville policy.

SPEAKING OF MONEY, how much of that $250,000 in the damage suit made by Maria Montez against Universal Pictures changed hands? The dispute rose over Maria's complaint that she was not receiving top-billing in Doug Fairbanks' F street-bound, "The Exile." The suit was settled out of court, but the ads you'll be reading on this one should be an interesting achievement in legerdemain. Maria objected to Doug and his new leading lady, Paule Croset, receiving billing above her, though her appearance in the film is comparatively brief.

THE HIPPODROME'S "Green for Danger" raises the question as to what "sister" means in a British hospital. What we call a registered nurse is referred to as "sister" by the British, while the word "nurse" indicates a student or practical, non-graduate nurse in our terminology.

"CHRISTMAS SHOPPING?" asks Bess Davis Schreiner. She suggests her four remaining Theater Guild productions as "ideal" and is at her office in the National mezzanine Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday afternoons to push you along. The Guild's next here will be Charlotte Greenwood's "I Remember Mama" beginning two weeks from tonight and "Carousel," which opens a three-week stay January 5.

TOMORROW: In the final editions, Richard L. Coe reviews Victor Herbert's "Sweethearts," starring the ineffable Bobby Clark.

A Christmas Present Every Day... give a subscription to The Washington Post

For friends in town and particularly for those in other cities where the paper is not easily available, a subscription to The Washington Post is a thoughtful, flattering Christmas gift; one that keeps the giver in mind every morning of the subscription period.

College students are particularly appreciative of this daily reminder of home.

Many former Washingtonians, now moved to smaller cities write that they miss the complete coverage of national and world affairs afforded by The Washington Post.

Look through your Christmas list; you are sure to find someone who would be delighted to receive a Washington Post subscription. The cost is not great, since it is adjustable to your pocketbook by the length of subscription.

Employment Unit to Take Va. Labor Job

Blacksburg, Va., Dec. 7 (Spl.).—The emergency farm labor program is setting its house in order in preparation for an official demise December 31, when the State Employment Service will reassume the responsibility of keeping Virginia farmers supplied with help.

Plans have been made for a continuation of farm placement, an informational service among States to route the migrant farmers to the places where there is work, and Virginia growers will seek to maintain housing facilities for their peak harvest workers, according to D. A. Tucker, State supervisor of the program.

In October the Accomac County Farm Bureau bought the migrant camp at Accomac for housing the migrant workers. The camp at Catawba is owned by the Roanoke-Botetourt Fruit Growers Association. Other camps owned now by the Production and Marketing Administration of the Department of Agriculture, may be disposed of in similar fashion if grower interests continues high.

Want to Buy Camps

Particularly interested in buying camps, Tucker said, are the growers on the Eastern Shore, in the Norfolk area, and in Virginia's main fruit-producing sections.

Tucker emphasized that there has long been an interchange of ideas and close cooperation between the farm labor program and the employment service, and that when the service begins to pilot farm placement in Virginia on January 1, it will be with a background of experience. The service, Tucker explained further, was responsible for the work before the emergency program was begun in 1943.

Meanwhile in Richmond, Commissioner John Q. Rhoads, of the employment service, announced the appointment of J. M. Powell, now assistant to Tucker, as farm placement director.

D. A. Tucker Resigns

The Extension Service announced the resignation of Tucker, who has been on the staff of the agricultural school at Virginia Polytechnic Institute since 1922. Tucker is leaving VPI to accept the position of farm placement director for the Maryland Employment Service. His headquarters will be in Baltimore.

The Extension Service is not withdrawing entirely from farm labor affairs. There is still what Tucker terms a "tremendous" educational job to do, particularly with those migrants who "specialize" in picking certain crops. There has been much difficulty, he explained, in getting a tomato man to harvest potatoes, and vice versa.

There is also, he said, the need for education among the growers themselves, as to how to make satisfactory work agreements, how to maintain good employe relationships, and how to teach the laborers the quickest, most effective way of getting the job done.

Church Relief Supplies Set Record for Week

New Windsor, Md., Dec. 7 (Spl.). The greatest amount of clothing and relief supplies for any single week were received by the Church World Service Center here during November 17-22.

Part of the credit for the new high was given to the Washington Federation of Churches, which sponsored a drive for relief goods early in November and collected approximately 20,000 pounds of material.

Education Called Vital in Attack On Communism

Martinsburg, W. Va., Dec. 7 (Spl.).—Education must have an important part in the struggle against Communism, Dr. Irvin Stewart, president of West Virginia University, said in an address here. He spoke before 200 men and women at the annual Chamber of Commerce dinner.

"The Communist system is built upon a denial of human dignity and self-respect," he said. "The great strength of our position lies in the fact that it is founded upon truth, and a recognition of the aspirations of men.

"Education can contribute greatly to an understanding of the workings of democracy; it can strive for a dynamic democracy whose shortcomings can and should be remedied within its own framework.

"It will recognize that the present economic and social pattern in the United States is not perfect and will seek to improve it. At the same time it will expose those who would exploit the weaknesses of democracy as a means of overthrowing it."

Peanut Crop Value in Va. Up $2,500,000

Blacksburg, Va., Dec. 7 (AP).—The Virginia peanut crop increased in value by more than $2,500,000 this year, largely as a result of sulphur dusting for control of leaf spot, Plant Pathologist S. B. Fenne of the Agricultural Extention Service reported.

Fenne, who said the increased figure was based on an average price of 10 cents a pound, also reported that during 1947 90 new power dusters were purchased, making a total of 376 available in the peanut counties.

He said that 96 per cent of the peanut seed was treated prior to planting and 36 per cent of the 150,000 acres planted were dusted with sulphur.

Research has shown yield increases up to 25 per cent can be obtained by sulphur dusting, Fenne said, and the increased value of the peanut hay alone amounts to considerably more than the cost of the dusting program.

Virginia Agricultural Experiment Station research also has shown, he added, that germination of machine-shelled seed can be increased by 50 to 100 per cent by seed treatment.

Brass Hats Stumped by Navy's Postwar Plan No. 1

During the war days, Wave Lieut. Ruth McKenna was attached to the planning and design department of the Navy's Bureau of Yards and Docks.

When the war was over, she left the service to marry a Civil Engineer Corps officer, Stephen Speer. The couple made their home in New York City.

The other day Mrs. Speer dispatched a telegram to Rear Admiral William H. Smith, the chief planning officer of the Bureau. The telegram read:

"Postwar plan number one completed. "No revision necessary."

When the telegram came through the Navy's communication system, it began to move systematically through "channels." In the due course of time, it came to the attention of the office of the Chief of Naval Operations.

There it raised a major issue—because the Navy's top brass wasn't familiar with "postwar plan number one."

So Admiral Smith was queried, and readily furnished an explanation.

Mrs. Speer was merely informing all her old friends in the bureau that she'd just given birth to a boy.

BARGAIN DAY

One of our afternoon contemporaries recently carried an unusual advertisement for a large department store.

After extolling the merits of a certain brand of physical culture shoes, the ad concluded with the words:

"Choose several pairs, pay only 5.95 for shoes worth $4 and more."

FIGHT SIDELIGHT

A friend of mine who runs a restaurant tells me about the man who had just paid his check at the cashier's desk shortly after 10 o'clock Friday night.

Just as the customer slipped into his overcoat and headed for the door, the broadcast of the Louis-Walcott fight began. Hesitating in indecision, the patron finally murmured:

"Well—I might as well stay two or three minutes and see how it turns out."

Thirty minutes later it finally dawned on him that he was very warm and his feet were beginning to hurt—so he took off his coat and returned to his seat.

PERSONAL NOTES

Helen R. Bowers, 1531 Q st. nw.: Your inquiry concerning Red Skelton has been turned over to our radio department. As soon as they find the answer, they'll contact you.

WEEBEE'S HOME GROUNDS

Like Santa Claus, this story has whiskers. But perhaps if it appears in print once more, anonymous contributors will stop sending it in.

The story is about one of those street Santas who greeted a passing youngster with: "How are y'all, sonny?"

After the boy and his father had continued down the street a bit, the lad asked:

"Daddy, is Santa Claus a Southerner?"

"It seems that way," murmured the wise father gently. "That one was probably from the South Pole."

NICE GOING, PATRICIA

Now it's official that Miss Hush is Martha Graham, and a lady in Texas will get the $20,000 worth of prizes.

As soon as the winner was announced Saturday night, my phone started to ring. Many District Liners suggested that we ought to give proper credit to the little girl who guessed the answer in advance.

They were referring, of course, to 8-year-old Patricia Kirby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. Kirby, of 2500 Q st. nw.

We printed Patricia's letter last Wednesday. In it, she correctly named Martha Graham as Miss Hush, and explained why.

So Patricia—by popular demand—take a bow. If you're that accurate in every contest you enter, your husband won't ever have to worry about supporting you.

ADD SIGNS

George Brenton of 1865 Monroe st. nw. says that the exterior of a 14th st. restaurant bears the signs:

Chill
Coca-Cola

Says George: "I prefer mine ice-cold."

Dorothy E. Walker of 24th st. and Oklahoma ave. ne. recalls the slogan used by a restaurant some years ago.

I KNOW A SECRET

I shall not grow old,
For I've found this truth:
Those who love living
Can never lose youth.

NEW YORK. — M. Roulier, who headed De Gaulle's Intelligence Service during the war, was parachuted into France once a month. Not even Mrs. de Gaulle knew of his missions. At a London conference Roulier heard Mrs. de Gaulle sigh: "Oh, how I'd like to see the azaleas in my garden in Paris." During his next parachute mission into France he completed his assignment, and on his way back Roulier plucked an azalea from the De Gaulle garden . . . When he reached London he presented the azelea to Mrs. de Gaulle, who still didn't know of Roulier's work. She turned to her husband and berated him for sending a man to occupied Paris just for a flower. Then she turned back to M. Roulier and smiled: "Gallantry is not dead."

For the first time in his life Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt is working at a job which has nothing to do with horses. From 8 a. m. to 6 p. m daily, Mr. Vanderbilt works at the offices of the publication Young America. He describes his job as a combination "chairman of the board-office boy."

Alabama soon expects to become a Divorce Mecca. Under its new laws, a divorce for abandonment or cruelty may be granted 24 hours after the plaintiff arrives there.

When Gen. Lucius Clay received Dr. Karl Schumacher, head of Germany's Christian Social Party, the general asked how the Germans looked upon the four-power occupation. Dr. Schumacher replied: "Well, sir, it's like this: The British got the industry, the Russians got the food, the Americans got the scenery and the French got Baden-Baden."

Darryl Zanuck, who granted George Jessel a leave of absence so that he could work in theaters and night clubs, heard of Jessel's triumphant opening at the Carnival and wrote him a reminder of the film productions awaiting Jessel's return. "I am glad to hear," Zanuck added, "that your present night club work is popular and pleases your greatest admirer—which is yourself."

The Roosevelt researchers who found that Mrs. James Roosevelt had kept every letter she ever received from her son Franklin, were unable to find any letters which she wrote to him . . . Nassau will build a three-million-dollar hospital. Although the construction work will be by a British firm, the design will be by the American architect, Neergard

Chinese Hush Romance Rumors

By Drew Pearson

Rumors of romance involving Madame Sun Yat-sen, widow of the founder of the Chinese Republic, and an American Army captan, Gerald Tannebaum of Baltimore, are being fearfully hushed up by the Chinese government.

Madame Sun

To understand why the Chinese government is so worried over this love match, it is necessary to realize that Madame Sun is the Martha Washington of modern China, venerated by Nationalists and Communists alike. Her home and everything connected with her have become something of a shrine in the eyes of the Chinese people.

Madame Sun is also the sister-in-law of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, and the sister of Madame Chiang. She is the youngest of the famous Soong sisters and married Dr. Sun, founder of the Chinese Republic, when she was only 23. She is now 55 and still one of the most beautiful women in China.

In high Kuomintang circles, Madam Sun is regarded as the black sheep of the family, because she has long advocated peace between the Kuomintang and the Communists.

Some high Chinese privately even call Madame Sun a Communist, though, because of her great prestige, no one dares say a word against her in public. Instead, the government guards her as a sort of living national monument, and writers sometimes refer to her as a "palace prisoner."

It was this close surveillance—and an intercepted letter—that led to rumors of Madame Sun's interest in Captain Tannebaum. For three years, however, it remained one of the best-kept secrets in China.

A comparatively young man, Captain Tannebaum met the 55-year-old widow of Sun Yat-sen in Chungking where he was attached to the U. S. Air Forces. Politically they thought alike, and an intellectual friendship was struck up.

Love Letters by Radio Records

After the war, Tannebaum was transferred to Shanghai and Madame Sun followed. He continued to write love letters, addressing her affectionately as "Susie." These were deposited by a Chinese messenger in a secret cache where they would not be censored by Kuomintang watchers. When Madame Sun was under too close observation, she sent records of popular love songs to Tannebaum's office at Shanghai's radio station XMHA, at that time operated by the American forces.

Madame Sun was most discreet and took care to ignore Tannebaum at public functions that brought them together. But when it came time for his discharge from the Army and his return to the States, she took a daring step. She hired him to direct a small relief agency which she had organized. Later, he flew home upon word his brother was dying.

The Chinese authorities seized this opportunity to try to block Tannebaum's return to China. But after several weeks of waiting and wrangling, he managed to get back to Shanghai and the most idolized lady in China.

Best Friend of USA

Senator Warren Austin of Vermont, now United States delegate to the United Nations, arose in the closing session of the Assembly and paid tribute to a great American—Oswaldo Aranha of Brazil.

The average newspaper reader might not think of the former Brazilian foreign minister as an American, because we have the bad habit of thinking that only North Americans are Americans. But not only is Aranha a great American—whether North or South—but he has been one of the greatest friends of the United States.

Time after time during the early stages of the war, when the Brazilian Army and even President Vargas were convinced the United States forces would not recover from the crippling blow at Pearl Harbor, Aranha forced them to give vital Brazilian military bases to the U. S. A. Time after time he threw his weight behind United States requests that Brazil clean out Nazi agents and the Jap colonies in Sao Paulo.

At the recent United Nations meeting, Aranha as President did more than any other one man to pilot the Assembly through the pitfalls of Vishinsky recriminations, British vacillation and Gromyko vetoes. The sometimes wavering United Nations came out stronger and healthier for Aranha's wise leadership.

Senator Austin, who has done a lot for the United Nations himself, had good reason to know all this. The only thing that might have been added to Austin's tribute is that if anyone deserves the Nobel Peace Prize next year, it will be Oswaldo Aranha for his great work as President of the United Nations.

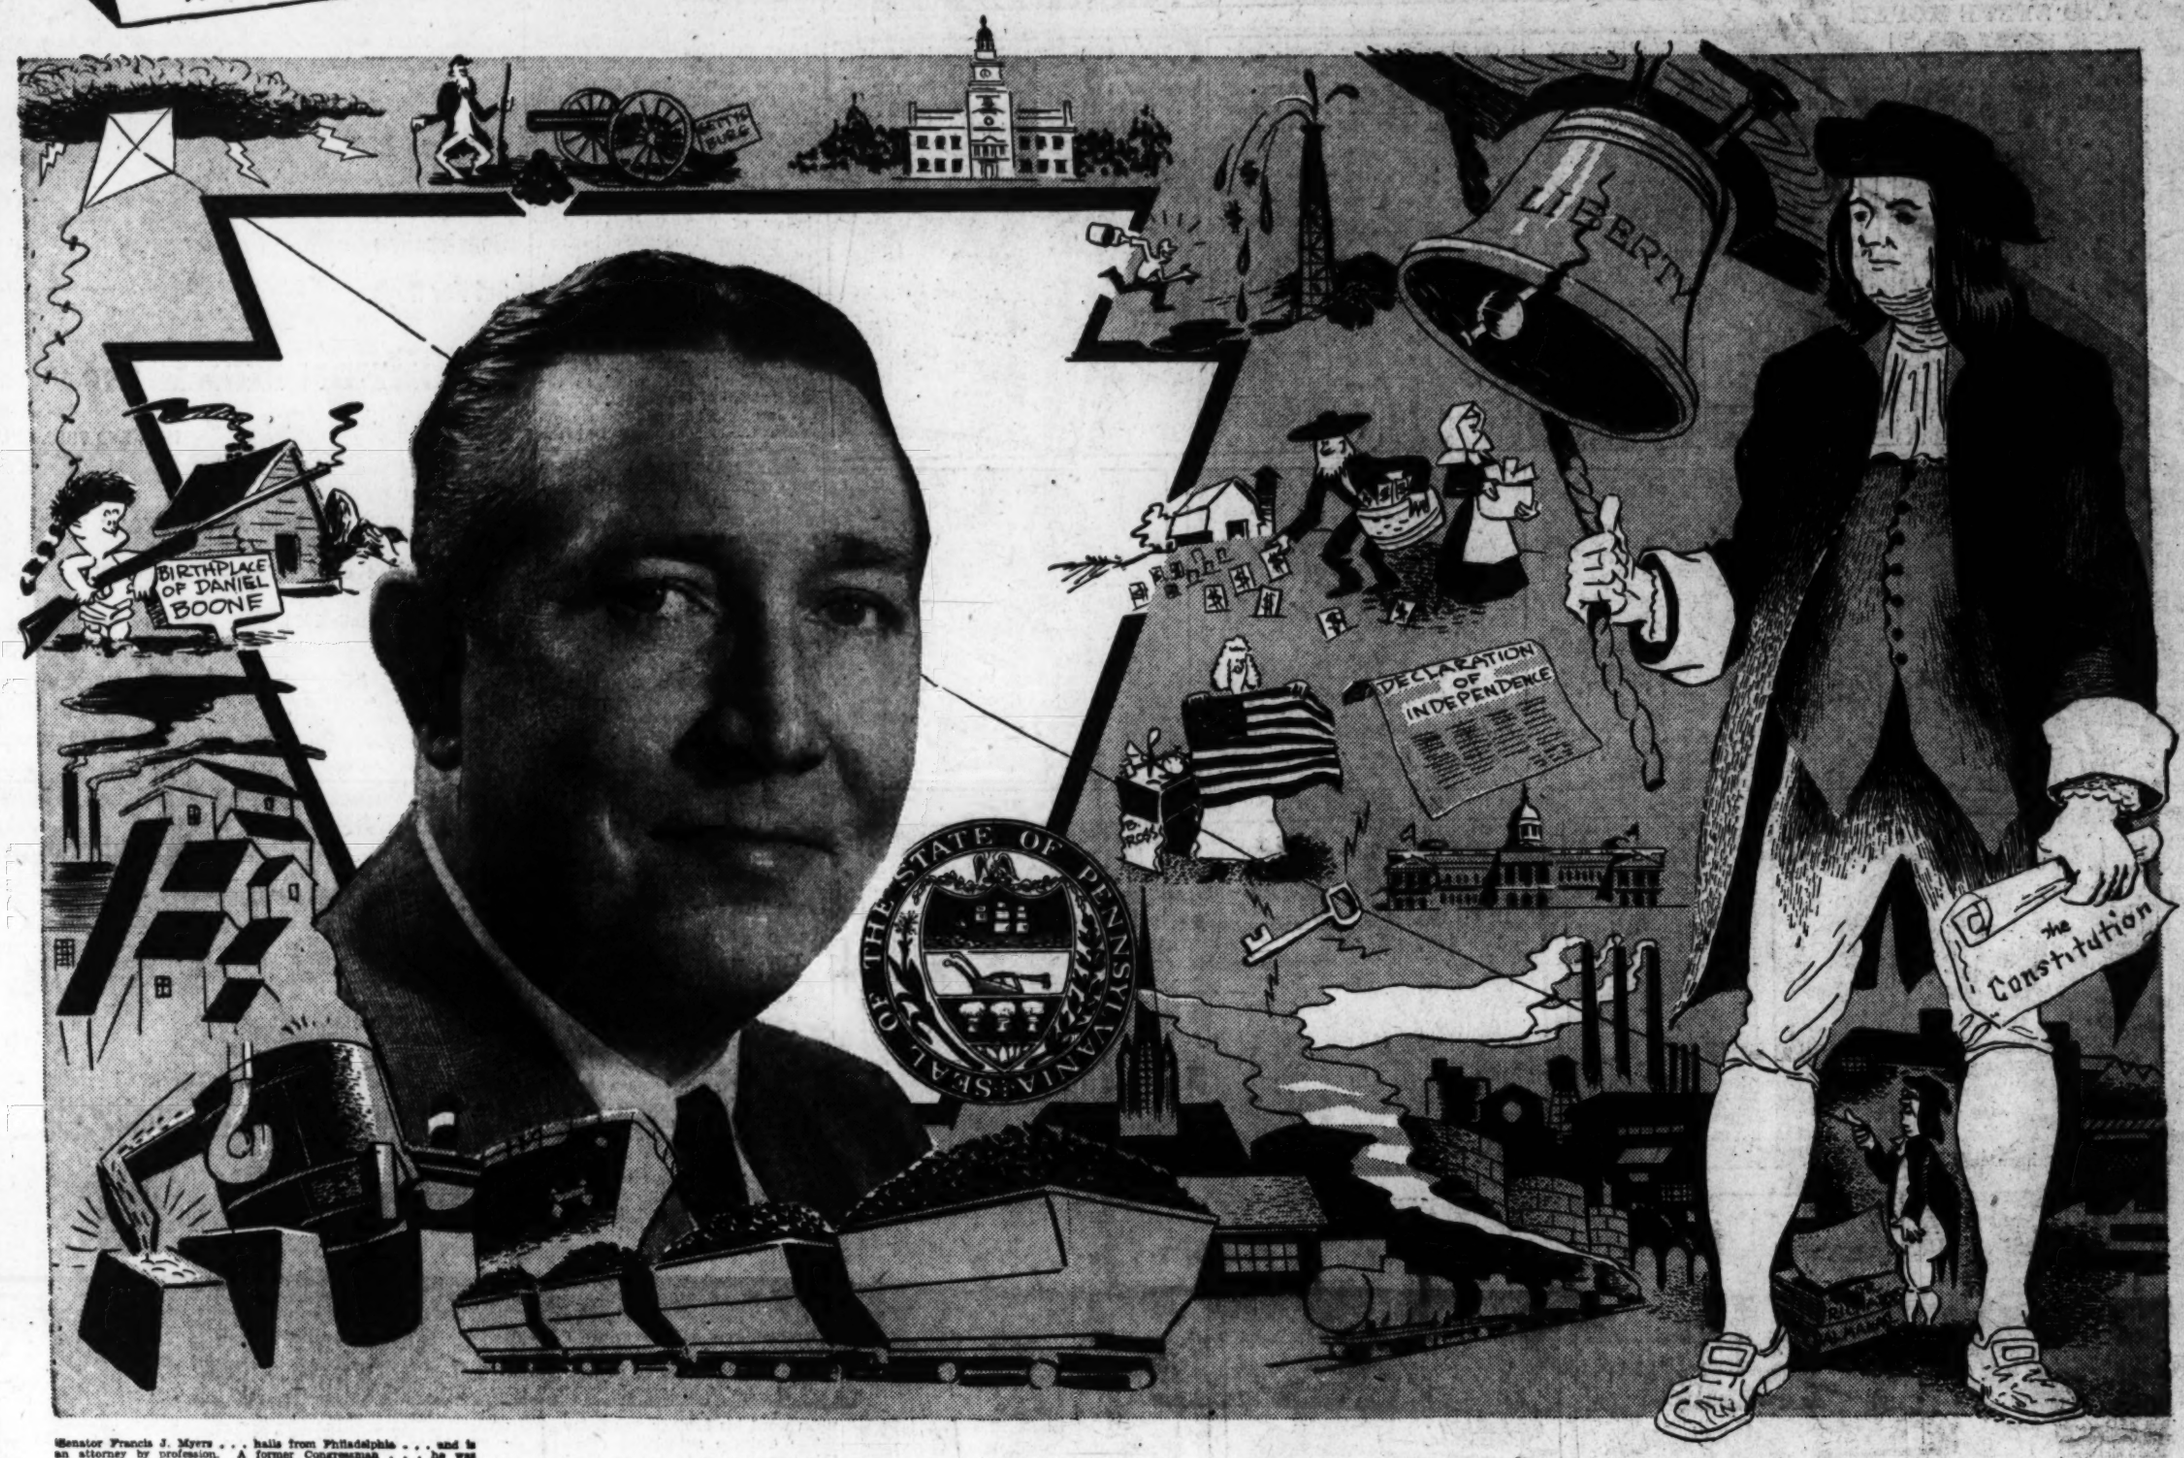
TWO STORES OF NATIONALLY FAMOUS CHRISTMAS GIFTS



Senator Francis J. Myers . . . hails from Philadelphia . . . and is an attorney by profession. A former Congressman . . . he was elected to the United States Senate in 1944.

THE HECHT COMPANY SALUTES THE CITIZENS OF WASHINGTON WHOSE HOMES ARE IN PENNSYLVANIA . . . the keystone state

William Penn founded his colony of Pennsylvania on the precepts of tolerance and freedom. These ideals have been kept alive by patriotic Pennsylvanians throughout the ensuing centuries . . . our State is called the Birthplace of American Freedom . . . and there were born the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution. Philadelphia was the leading city of the colonies in education, arts, science, industry and commerce . . . and was the seat of the Federal Government almost continuously from 1776 to 1800. Iron and steel are the State's trademarks; Pittsburgh is a city built on steel. Before 1692 Pennsylvania was making iron, and by 1727, exporting it to England. Pennsylvania also introduced to the country many other industrial materials, without which the United States could never have reached its present world pre-eminence. Anthracite coal and Portland cement were discovered in the Keystone State . . . and the invaluable fuel—oil. Pennsylvania was for many years the center of the petroleum industry . . . and despite the innumerable barrels of oil drained from her soil, she still ranks high as an oil-producing section. Today the glowing fires of the steel mills are symbols of our Nation's strength and prosperity. Pennsylvania treasures her rich memories; but the talents and abilities of our people . . . and our tremendous industrial resources . . . are bent to achieve the greatest good for all mankind in the present-day world . . . and in the future. We feel that this program of The Hecht Company is an outstanding contribution to the promotion of better understanding and even greater unity between the people of all the States of our great country.

Francis J. Myers

President, Pennsylvania State Society

PENNSYLVANIA . . . Titan of industry . . . one of the greatest mineral producing States in the Union . . . and birthplace of the oil industry. Pennsylvania is a treasure house of historical landmarks . . . the United States of America was born on her soil . . . at Independence Hall, in Philadelphia. Pennsylvania has long been called the Keystone State . . . because of her strategic role in the establishment of the Union. Today she holds a key position in commerce and industry.

PENNSYLVANIA . . . A center of heavy industry since Colonial days. The State is second in all U. S. manufacturing. Most of the country's production of iron and steel centers around Pittsburgh . . . and in Harrisburg, Erie and Bethlehem. Scranton and Reading are textile manufacturing centers. Philadelphia, the Nation's third largest city, is the second busiest U. S. seaport.

PENNSYLVANIA . . . Second in all coal mining, first in anthracite. She is the U. S. leader in the production of cement, coke, cobalt and lead, and zinc pigments . . . and ranks high in clay, peat and natural gas. The Drake Well, the world's first successful oil well, was drilled in 1859 in Pennsylvania. Today the State ranks ninth in U. S. petroleum production.

PENNSYLVANIA . . . Whose farm output rates her first in buckwheat and high in tobacco, apples and potatoes . . . also raises corn, wheat, oats, barley, hay and peaches. The Mennonites, Amish and Dunkards, the "Plain People" of the Lancaster area . . . who cling to the simple customs and clothing of their forebears . . . are rated among the most successful farmers in the country.

PENNSYLVANIA . . . First permanently colonized by the Swedes in 1643. William Penn arrived in America, in 1681 . . . Philadelphia, the "City of Brotherly Love," was planned by Penn, who also gave it its name. In historic Independence Hall . . . the liberty-seeking colonists signed the Declaration of Independence and framed the Constitution. In Valley Forge, Washington spent his bleakest winter . . . and Gettysburg was the turning-point of the Civil War. Here Lincoln delivered his immortal Gettysburg address.

PENNSYLVANIA . . . With many "Firsts" . . . ranging from the first American flag, made by Betsy Ross, to the first pharmacy in the United States. The first cook stove in America was made at Hereford Furnace . . . the first iron produced in this country was from ore mined near Reading. Added to the long list are the first Conestoga wagon . . . the first steel rail . . . and the first United States Bank.

PENNSYLVANIA . . . Whose most famous citizen was Benjamin Franklin, distinguished American statesman and author of the still popular "Poor Richard's Almanac." The Land of Penn was also the home of President James Buchanan . . . "Mad Anthony" Wayne and Arthur St. Clair, Revolutionary military leaders . . . Thaddeus Stevens, the "Great Commoner," and General George G. Meade, Civil War leader for whom nearby Fort Meade is named. Financial and industrial leaders Nicholas Biddle, Jay Cooke, Andrew Carnegie and Andrew Mellon hailed from the Keystone State. In literature Owen Wister, Ida Tarbell, Christopher Morley and Edgar Allen Poe star. Daniel Boone, great Indian scout, was born in Pennsylvania . . . as was Stephen Foster, beloved composer of American folk music.
